MAYOR ORDERS GAMBLERS OUT OF EVANSTON

Council Hears His Report on Crime

BY ROBERT HOWARD

At a packed council meeting last night, Mayor Ingraham of Evanston ordered professional gamblers to get out of town. The mayor's warning came as an aftermath of an outbreak of crime. Other high points of the council meeting included:

1. Presentation by a committee of eight of a resolution demanding authority for the group to inspect all pertinent city records, "especially those referring to the police department and crime."

2. Warning to the mayor by Ald. Elmer Bersbach of the 1st ward that it is the mayor's duty to suppress gambling in Evanston.

3. Vote of confidence in Evanston police by the council.

4. Protests by a score of citizens of what they called "indiscriminate arrests" in the current search for sex criminals.

Over 300 Attend Meeting

More than 300 men and women attended the meeting, which had been advertised as a showdown on the sex crime situation which began Aug. 15 with the rape of a school teacher, and which prompted Sheriff Mulcahy last week to assign county highway police to help patrol Evanston streets.

Mayor Ingraham opened the proceedings by presenting a prepared statement, read by the council clerk. "Institutions of gambling have no place in this community, and will not be tolerated," the mayor said. "Arrests will be made whenever they are found to exist. Nonresident seekers of this type of diversion will have to go elsewhere."

Evanston police are well organized, the mayor asserted, and additional policemen have been assigned to walk beats in residential areas. There is no need of hysteria, he said.

Lauds Citizen Policemen

Mayor Ingraham said there have been seven rapes, with six arrests of guilty parties, and 10 aggravated assaults, including attempted rapes, with five arrests, so far this year. He promised more police by Jan. 1, and he lauded the aid of the emergency citizens' police.

Aldermen William McSteven, 4th; Eddy Brandt, 6th; Neil Reynolds, 2d, and Edwin B. Jourdain Jr., Negro, 5th, denied a crime wave existed.

However, Ald. Robert E. James, 4th, conceded Evanston had been unwise in not keeping up its police strength during the war, and said the seriousness of "even one rape should not be minimized." Ald. Bersbach then told Mayor Ingraham that it was his job to suppress gambling.

Denies Winking at Gambling

Mayor Ingraham replied that police have not winked at gambling, as had been intimated. He said that altho county police are able to get search warrants, Evanston police have more trouble. Moreover, he said, cagey lawyers get their gambler clients off with light fines or sentences. [Since last spring county highway police have made numerous raids on gambling joints in Evanston.]

Debates swung back and forth on gambling and other problems. Then the council adopted a resolution voting confidence in the Evanston police. A resolution was submitted by William J. Mauer, Merritt Laubenheimer, Harold J. Clark, L. Blessing, Philip P. Page, Richard S. Tineher, and Carol W. Alton, citizens, demanding a police probe. It was referred to committee.

Following this the meeting was thrown open, and Ald. Jourdain and several Northwestern university professors, including Curtis G. MacDougall, protested the wholesale arrest of Negroes. Mrs. Esther B. Gandy, Negro, former school teacher, charged that her people were being treated unfairly. Harold Plaaten, 333 Howard st., at another point declared, "There's nothing undemocratic in what we want—we want only to protect our women folks."

N. Y. Elevator Strike Ties Up 2015 Buildings

New York, Sept. 24 [Special] — Hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers — some said 1,500,000 — got an impromptu day off today when an elevator strike tied up service in 2,015 Manhattan office buildings. The city took on a carnival air as the freed workers thronged bars, movie houses, and shopping centers.

Business above the fifth or sixth floor levels was at a near halt in the struck buildings, even for the United States government which maintains offices for the war production board, the office of price administration and the treasury on the 54th, 55th and 59th floors of the Empire State building.

After a day of spreading business paralysis, prospects tonight were for a prolonged deadlock with the strike spreading tomorrow to apartment buildings. City officials planned to meet this threat by proclaiming a health emergency and using fire, police and other city employes to maintain service above the sixth floors in residential buildings.

Marooned Ones Rescued

Some office workers, marooned above the 12th floor, got emergency rescue service today from squadrons of special city elevator operators. Thousands of others walked to the street, passing trickling streams of harried business men puffing their way upward.

The strike put a burden on telephone service, with calls running a million above normal for the day, and tenants of skyscraper offices found efforts to do business further hampered by a lack of mail deliveries.

Mail went out as usual, Postmaster Albert Goldman said, but most of it came back as carriers, shrinking from trudging the stairs of elevatorless buildings, returned with full sacks. Business firms were advised to send messengers to pick up their mail.

Not all of the city's lofty buildings were affected. Exempt, either because of separate agreements with the striking unions or because their workers belonged to other unions or were unorganized, were the Chrysler building, the buildings of Radio City, the Equitable building, the Grand Central Terminal building, and a number of lesser known buildings.

Empire State Hit

The 102 story Empire State building—the tallest in the world—was among the first hit as the walkout got under way at 8:30 a. m. Others tied up were the Woolworth, the Chanin, and the Flatiron buildings.

By nightfall, a police count showed 2,015 buildings affected by the strike and 16,000 workers involved in the walkout.

The strike was jointly called by Local 32-B [operators and maintenance workers] and Local 164 [superintendents], both units of the AFL Building Service Employes' International union. The action was a protest against a war labor board ruling which union officials said cut workers' "take home" pay by $2.10 a week.

The ruling cut working hours from 46 to 40 hours a week and in-

Oak Park Girl, 13, Hangs Self in Home Play

Tales of the west always fascinated 13 year old Jean Lynch of 600 S. Humphrey av., Oak Park, who from her earliest days played cowgirl with lively imagination. Seldom a day passed that she did not recall some stirring episode about desperados and how justice and retribution overtook them.

She and her brother, James Jr., 6, raced home yesterday after they closed their books in St. Catherine's school, kissed their mother, Evelyn, and went off to play wild west.

Rope Around Neck, Chair Tips

"I'm going to show you how they hanged bad people out west," said Jean.

She got a clothesline and made a noose, slipped it around her neck, and told young James to push up a chair. She climbed upon it, tied the rope around a pipe, and said, "See!"

The chair tipped and Jean fell—with her feet just touching the floor.

The weight of her body tightened the noose. As she tried to loosen it, she lost consciousness.

Brother Cuts Rope

James quickly realized that Jean was no longer acting. He tried to lift her, but she was too heavy.

He ran upstairs, got a bread knife, and cut the rope. He ran outside for help and, with tears rolling down his face, met his mother on her return.

Police and firemen, with an inhalator, and Dr. J. J. Cronin, 5301 Chicago av., worked over the girl's lifeless body for 45 minutes.

TWO ROOSEVELT ITEMS STOLEN FROM EXHIBIT

New York, Sept. 24 [Special]—More than 1,000 patrons were held behind locked doors and submitted to being searched tonight when it was discovered that two items from the estate of the late President Roosevelt had been stolen from an arts and antiques show in the 71st regiment armory on lower Park av.

The stolen exhibits were listed as a color print of a navy vessel, "The U. S. Frigate Macedonian in Distress," and a collection of Brazilian stamp issues and covers, presented to President Roosevelt in 1940 by President Vargas of Brazil, and autographed by both men.

The stolen items had been loaned by Mrs. Roosevelt from the Roosevelt memorial library at Hyde Park.

TRUMAN GIVES BIG AND COSTLY PLANE TO GEN. DE GAULLE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—President Truman gave Gen. de Gaulle of France a C-54 transport plane, delivered in Paris today, but just what appropriation covers such a gift is a bookkeeper-and-lawyer mystery.

Said the White House: The gift was "in line with a precedent" set by the late President Roosevelt who gave planes to Winston Churchill, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and the king of Egypt.

The treasury said it's a White House matter.

The army, thru a press officer: "We don't know. They've got a lot of funds over at the White House that we don't know anything about."

The state department said: Ask the White House.

J. A. SWANSON, 71, EX-STATE'S ATTORNEY, DIES

John A. Swanson

John A. Swanson, 71, state's attorney of Cook county from 1928 to 1932, died of a heart attack yesterday in his home at Gage's Lake, in Lake county. He had been in ill health for a year and had not been able to go to his office at 111 W. Washington st. since early July. He lay down for a brief rest after dinner, as was his custom, and died 15 minutes later.

A native of Chicago, he left school at the age of 14 when his father died. At 19 he entered the law office of John R. Geary and attended night classes at the Chicago College of Law. He was graduated and admitted to the bar at 21.

Swanson started his political career as a precinct captain. He was elected to the state legislature in 1910, and in 1914 was elected to the state senate. He served as a Municipal court judge from 1916 to 1921, when he was elected to the Circuit bench, where he remained until he became state's attorney. Since leaving office, he had been in private practice.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Cecile A. Swanson; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Klaas and Mrs. Charlotte Olson; a brother, Albert, and five grandchildren.

Dealers Strike to End Canada Meat Ration

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 24 (AP)—Butchers went on strike in cities and towns scattered across Canada today in protest against the meat rationing program the government launched two weeks ago.

In Montreal, Que., strong-arm gangs forced scores of shops to close by threatening to wreck them.

Some of Montreal's independent dealers joined the strike, closed their shops, and went with the groups that visited other stores. They hoped by their strike to force the dominion to abandon the coupon system for purchase of meat.

J. L. Ilsley, finance minister, under whose department the rationing machinery operates, appealed in parliament for support of the program that meat might be provided for Great Britain and liberated nations of Europe.

Appeals for Humanity

He said the program deserved support for humanitarian reasons alone, if for no other.

Ilsley said the meat ration of two pounds a person a week was aimed at reducing the present domestic consumption rate of 145 pounds a person a year to about 130 pounds. He noted that this was about 4 per cent above pre-war consumption.

[Consumption of meat in the United States at present is at the rate of 130 pounds a person a year. Last year it was 147 pounds.]

U. S. Sacrifice Cited

Ilsley said Canada had fought the war on a partnership arrangement with the United States and Britain in which each country had done what it was able to do.

"Our allies and partners have treated us with great fairness on the principle of sacrifice," he added.

DIDN'T ORDER PEARL HARBOR, EMPEROR SAYS

Wants a Monarchy Like Britain's

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

TOKYO, Sept. 25—Emperor Hirohito said he favored the ending of war as an instrument of policy, and pledged that any social changes in Japan will be made by constitutional means, in an exclusive interview today.

Emperor Hirohito

The man who is not only ruler but god to the Japanese people answered that he had no intention of having the war rescript employed as Prime Minister Tojo used it when Japan launched her sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. He had expected Gen. Tojo to declare war in the usual formal manner.

The emperor said food and housing are Japan's two paramount problems today. Once the Japanese people are fed and clothed, he insisted, it will be easy to carry out needed reforms which he opined will make for the peace of the world.

Living in Cottage

Dressed in a black morning coat, striped trousers and white shirt with a stiff wing collar and a black tie, Hirohito received me standing before an ordinary chair which served as a throne in a large magnificent room on the third floor of the ministry of the imperial household. The main palace was burned by incendiary bombs and the emperor is living in a cottage on the grounds.

The room was covered with a red figured carpet matching the red curtains against the white walls. Beside the single padded chair with carved arms, including figurines of lions stood two blue vases about two feet high on small standards.

A small table with flowers stood on the right and a small wall clock ticked over a second door to the emperor's left. There was a gold screen stretching across the room behind the mikado. A small lacquer table stood beside the chair which served as a throne.

Shakes Emperor's Hand

There was no formality. I did not bow, nor was I asked to do so. I walked straight across what was a bare chamber. The emperor extended his hand, which I shook.

I was the first American to see the emperor since the war began, and the first foreigner since the Japanese surrender.

My initial impression was that he was about the average height of the Japanese, that he looked solemn, and that he talked with emphasis. He looked straight into my face as he

BRITISH TO RELEASE TYLER KENT IN WEEK; HE'LL RETURN TO U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 24—Tyler Kent, former code clerk at the United States embassy in London, who was tried in secret under mysterious circumstances by British courts in 1940 and sentenced to seven years for violation of the official secrets act, will be released next week, it was learned tonight.

Kent, an American citizen, was alleged to have decoded messages from the United States and turned the texts over to Italians prior to American entry into the war. American congressmen have hinted he had evidence that the late President Roosevelt made a pledge to former Prime Minister Churchill that the United States would go to war.

It is reported the department of justice is still investigating the Kent case and he will immediately be deported to the United States following his release. The question whether he will be tried again in the United States is not yet decided.

NEW ATOM BOMB REPORTED; CAN 'KILL MILLIONS'

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—New atomic bombs "created" by American scientists make those already used look like "small firecrackers" and are capable of destroying millions of city dwellers in one operation, Rep. Arends [R., Ill.] told the house today.

Rep. Arends

Arends disclosed this development, which he said came from "most competent authority," in offering a bill to establish a 15 man commission of national defense to study defense needs in the light of the atom bomb.

The bill would require such a commission, to be named by the President, to include representatives of scientific and industrial research and other leading citizens conversant with defense problems. It would report to congress every three months on its findings.

Control Up to Congress

Earlier today, President Truman, in a statement issued thru the White House, said the question of control over the atom bomb will be up to congress.

Presidential Secretary Ross said the President will make recommendations to congress relating to the bomb's control and use. Ross explained the President's position to clarify remarks made by Mr. Truman yesterday, which were interpreted by some as indicating that the President planned to take full responsibility for the bomb, without consulting congress.

"The President is not setting himself up as the sole arbiter of the atomic bomb," Ross told reporters. "He will make his recommendations to congress, and congress will decide what is to be done."

Arends told the house that the newest atom bombs make our large cities vulnerable to destruction in one blow, and hence revolutionize all concepts of military attack and defense.

Tells of New Bombs

"I am advised on the most competent authority," he said, "that our scientists and technicians have now created atomic bombs of such prodigious and multiplied destructive power that the explosion that killed 150,000 humans and obliterated the city of Hiroshima was only a small firecracker by comparison.

"These are the early stages of development . . . at this very moment, it is possible to drop or to propel atomic charges into our large cities so as conveniently to kill millions of unsuspecting inhabitants in one operation."

Arends said his information on the bomb "leads to the inevitable conclusion that the most dangerous spots on the earth are Washington, D. C., New York City, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, and other large urban centers in this nation."

The only present answer to the bomb's threat, Arends said, is to decentralize large cities and production facilities and create underground shelters for entire populations and industries.

First Duty of Group

The congressman said the first duty of the defense commission he proposes would be to study the effects of atomic power on war strategy and to evolve protective measures for the American people.

Meanwhile, Sen. Downey [D., Cal.] in a senate speech advocated turning the secret of the atom bomb over to the new league of nations.

"It [the bomb] demands international control, or it will mete out international chaos," Downey said. "No other nation would agree to stop research as long as we—and we only—held the secret. If, on the other hand, we committed the secret to the world council, then there would be every reason to encourage it, with the hope that atomic energy could be exploited and controled for the good and not the evil of mankind."

30 Million Tons of Paper Salvaged by Americans

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Americans salvaged approximately 30 million tons of waste paper during the war, the war production board announced today.

ABJECT DEFEAT TERMED BASIS OF YANK RULE

New Order Clarifies Scope of Power

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—President Truman has directed Gen. MacArthur not to let the Japanese question the scope of his authority as supreme commander, the White House announced today.

The directive was sent to MacArthur Sept. 6. It was described as intended to clarify MacArthur's authority in his position as head of occupation forces in Japan and Korea.

Emperor Is Subordinate

Prepared by the departments of state, war, and navy, the message, which had President Truman's approval, made three points:

1. The authority of the emperor and the Japanese government is subordinate to MacArthur as supreme commander for the allied powers—"Our relations with Japan do not rest on a contractual basis, but on unconditional surrender. Since your authority is supreme, you will not entertain any question on the part of the Japanese as to its scope."

Forms U. S. Policy

2. Control of Japan shall be exercised thru the Japanese government as long as the arrangements produce satisfactory results without prejudice to MacArthur's right to act directly and to use force if necessary.

3. The Potsdam declaration regarding post-war treatment of Japan shall be given effect not because of any contractual requirement but because the declaration "forms a part of our policy stated in good faith with relation to Japan and with relation to peace and security in the far east."

HALSEY URGES FREE HAND

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 24 (AP)—Adm. Halsey today urged that Gen. MacArthur be given a free hand to carry out the occupation of Japan.

Halsey said MacArthur is carrying out a program that will prevent Japan from ever rising above a fifth or sixth rate power. He addressed a civic reception for 80 recovered military personnel, known as "Ramps."

The admiral, whose war time remarks about the Japanese crackled with invective, was under verbal wraps. He explained he had been told not to say anything disagreeable about his recent adversaries.

"Brutal and Bestial"

But his voice was tense with emotion as he described the death of released American prisoners as a "result of brutal, bestial treatment while in the hands of their Japanese captors."

Neither America nor the world owes the 'Ramps a living," he said, "but, by God, they owe them a chance to make a living."

Remarking that some newspapers had said the atomic bomb and Russia's entry into the war "broke the camel's back" and ended the war, Halsey said:

"I want to say that the camel's tummy was pretty close to the deck when the atom bomb hit him."

Hirohito May Call

TOKYO, Sept. 24 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito was reported by Japanese officials today to be arranging an unprecedented visit to Gen. MacArthur, the first Japanese ruler in history to go to another ruler for an audience.

A decision on a meeting at the American embassy at an unannounced date was arranged recently when Adm. Fujita, grand chamberlain, called on MacArthur. Household Minister Sotaro Ishiwata said, however, that he was unaware of plans for such a visit, which long had been expected.

There was no tangible evidence that Hirohito intended to abdicate, as a Chungking radio report said Sunday. Premier Higashi-kuni, prompted by queries from MacArthur's headquarters, issued an official denial of the abdication rumor.

A new series of drastic United States decrees showed that neither

Hirohito nor his government now has much control over Japan's fate.

MacArthur ordered the Japanese government to install stringent wage and price controls and ration all critically short commodities to head off hunger and suffering among Japan's 80,000,000 people.

MacArthur froze all Japan's trade abroad, except for approved exports or imports, limited to necessities.

He forbade forthwith the import or export of bullion, currency, and negotiable Japanese assets while his officers are delving into the complex financial structure that backed the nation's conquests.

Prohibits Atom Research

He prohibited any Japanese atomic bomb research or atom splitting of any nature and placed all research labboratories of the empire under allied control.

MacArthur tore down all Japanese government news barriers, stripped the Domei agency of its monopolistic privileges that made it the mouthpiece of the militarists, and threw the news field open to all comers—foreign as well as Japanese.

The Japanese said MacArthur also vetoed Vice Premier Konoye's appointment of Seihin Ikeda, former finance minister, to the presidency of the central liaison board which works with occupation forces.

Ikeda as a former manager of the rich and powerful house of Mitsui presumably is one of the big financiers and industrialists who has held Japanese workers in slavery and who, the United States insists, must be deposed in the rebuilding of a more democratic Japan.

Must Control Wages

MacArthur's economic directive held the government responsible "for initiating and maintaining firm control over wages and prices of essential commodities." He promised priorities for the materials needed to produce food, clothing, and housing, but cut off all manufactures that might rearm Japan.

He prohibited the making of all arms, ammunition, and aircraft of all types, civilian as well as military. Such plants converting to peace time goods must apply to MacArthur for permission.

MacArthur's order for the emancipation of the press was designed "to further encourage liberal tendencies in Japan." It told the government to remove itself completely from any control of newspapers and news agencies. The latter meant Domei, the only Japanese agency now in existence.

The directive ordered that any foreign or Japanese news service must be allowed equal use of government owned transmission facilities and banned special prices that might give one an advantage.

NO ROYAL GRIP FORTHCOMING, MAYORS GRIPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 24—The lord mayors of three cities tonight threatened to boycott the opening of a $24,000,000 dam at Ashopton, Derbyshire, by the king and queen tomorrow because they were not listed among persons to be presented to royalty.

Councilor F. Carney, lord mayor of Nottingham, who reportedly heads the boycott movement, disclaimed any intention of embarrassing the king and queen but said he wouldn't attend the ceremony since he regarded it as a "direct affront to the dignity of the lord mayor's office" that he had not been asked to shake the hand of the king. In support of his protest, he said "many minor officials," who helped construct the dam, were listed to meet the royal pair.

Ald. J. Minto, lord mayor of Leicester, and Councilor W. H. Phillips, lord mayor of Derby, put off their final decision on the boycott until they could consult one another tomorrow. Meanwhile Albert Atkey, chairman of the Derwent valley water board, responsible for the construction of the dam, said the "list of people to be presented was approved by the king."

Kinkaid in Chungking; Chiang to Be His Host

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 24 (AP)—Adm. Kincaid, commander of the United States 7th fleet, arrived in Chungking by air today and will be an overnight guest at the country home of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. He will return to Shanghai tomorrow.

Communism Greatest Fear of Man in Street in Japan

BY DONALD STARR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 25 [Tuesday]—Japanese from all walks of life interviewed today indicate that from laborer to diplomat they fear Russia and soviet domination.

Civilians were questioned in cities, villages, and rural areas near Tokyo. Japan's leading novelist, Eiji Yoshikawa, a popular historian, summed up his feeling as follows:

"The people want democracy, but they see a grave danger of the Marxists taking advantage of their ignorance of the principles of this form of government. Not knowing what constitutes a democracy they may go communistic. Very critical stages are ahead, because of the Japanese tendency to rush headlong in a single direction once they decide to move."

"Occupation Good Thing"

Less articulate Japanese offered the following views:

OFFICE WORKER: "I think all over the world the tendency is for nations to move away from monarchies and dictatorships. Perhaps in a few cases there will be opposition to retaining the emperor, but the danger of any such movement too early is that communistic elements will take advantage of it. What we want is democracy. That seems to be what the Americans here want us to have, and they are going about it in the right way. The occupation is a good thing for the Japanese people. They are learning about Americans even in the smallest villages. We must do everything in our power to fulfill the Potsdam terms and satisfy the Americans. Then they will leave us."

LABORER: "The emperor displayed genuine concern for his people when he was compelled to surrender. That was a risky thing for him to do. He has endeared himself to us. I am sure the trend will be in that direction of democracy. Labor will welcome it. The Americans are a good influence on our people. They have no class consciousness. They are friendly. We can see this from the way they take to our children. MacArthur has won the admiration of all Japanese for his just and fair stand. Every one says he is a great man. No one can say that an American officer is arrogant. That has been the big fault with our officers.

Officers Destroyed Morale

"During the war our leaders told us to be patriotic and not engage in the black market. Yet they were the first ones to go in for bribery and graft. They held geisha parties that cost thousands of yen. This attitude destroyed our morale. The conduct of officers after surrender has been scandalous. They have got drunk and had a merry time instead of committing hara-kiri. How can we respect them?"

"Americans Are Fair"

EX-SOLDIER: "I'd like to get out of this feeling of uncertainty. I'd like to know what the reparations will be, how great unemployment, how bad inflation. Conditions so far are better than any one hoped. The Americans have been just and fair. It is our good fortune that the Americans and not the Russians are here. Look what is happening in Manchuria and Korea. I don't think we have a feeling of revenge, but if such a feeling develops it will be against Russia rather than the United States.

"Another war is impossible in our time. If the Americans continue their just policy we should do everything in our power to fulfill the Potsdam declaration. America is far better as a friend than as an enemy. We were fooled by our government into war and fooled during the war. Freedom of speech will be the best thing for us."

"Emperor Saved Us"

A FARMER: "The Son of Heaven saved the empire from total destruction. If he were deposed there would be a revolution against the elements responsible for such action. If the emperor were to abdicate there would be extremely grave danger of the nation becoming communistic. Except for this danger, I am convinced we can work out our own salvation. We on the farms are doing well."

A HOUSEWIFE: "The fire bombings are ended and our children are safe. Food rationing has become worse since the war ended, and with the young men returning from the factories and the army, we have more mouths to feed; but I think the housewives of Japan are happy the war is over. I don't think we will be able to wear kimonos for a long time, for it would not appear proper when so many have lost everything in the great fires. As a matter of fact, most girls of 14 to 20 prefer western dress. Woman suffrage is a long way off. Our girls are more interested in getting married. Once a Japanese girl is married, her place is in the home. Those who cannot find husbands may demand woman suffrage."

Diplomats Are Optimistic

A RETIRED DIPLOMAT: "The diplomats are optimistic about the future. We were against the war from the beginning, for the outcome was a foregone conclusion. I am glad our army and navy will be liquidated. We are fortunate that the United States and not soviet Russia is stationing troops here. The Russians would be far more severe, for they would want our people to become desperate and turn, in their desperation, toward communism. It will not be a feeling for revenge but a desire for friendship with the United States that will develop among the Japanese. That will be the best for us."

"Had Enough of War"

BUSINESS MAN: "I didn't think Japan could win the war, but there was the satisfaction shared by all Japanese over the fact we let fly against a nation which had been bullying us. Most Japanese gave up hope of winning in 1943, but no one realized how badly off we were until the war was over and we were told the truth regarding the state of our army, navy, and air forces. It was almost unbelievable.

"Even so, I think we should have given the armed forces an opportunity of striking the last blow. It would have given the soldiers the feeling they had done everything possible. As for the future, we will suffer from unemployment, but after about two years I think we'll be able to pay our way and still make a reasonably comfortable living because there won't be an army and navy to support. We lost the war and we can't even think of another war for at least 40 years.

Boys Want Vengeance

A 12 YEAR OLD BOY: "What Japan must do now is to set its mind on becoming a rich nation. It may take years, but we should do that. We were told we could win the war thru spiritual strength, but we lost, so we must become rich and then avenge ourselves. That is our duty to those who died on the battle fields and to our ancestors."

A 13 YEAR OLD BOY: "We never had the spiritual strength. If we had there wouldn't have been a black market. As for revenge, why should we seek that? How do we know we weren't just as wrong as our enemies? But I think we ought to get even with the Russians. They stabbed us in the back. You can't trust them."

FRENCH OCCUPY SAIGON; ARREST ANNAM REBELS

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Swiss radio today quoted advices from Indo-China as saying that French troops had occupied strategic buildings in Saigon, Indo-China, after arresting several hundred Annamites and that they had the situation in the city well in hand.

The broadcast said the French troops were reënforced by liberated French war prisoners whom they had supplied with arms. Annamite groups recently have been reported demonstrating in favor of an independent Indo-China.

Dominion Status

PARIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—A high official in Gen. de Gaulle's cabinet said today that France is prepared to accord the equivalent of dominion status to Indo-China as soon as internal conditions in that country have returned to normal.

Belgian Cartoonist Must Die for Helping Nazis

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 24 (AP)—Paul Jamin, Belgian cartoonist whose caricatures of Winston Churchill were published in the German occupation press, was sentenced to death by a Belgian court martial today for his pro-German activities. Jamin, known as "Jam," fled to Germany when the Germans were driven out of Belgium.

HIROHITO SAYS HE DIDN'T ORDER HAWAII ATTACK

spoke, eying me thru his rimless spectacles. It was apparent that the war had been a strain upon him, and altho he looked well, he had several nervous mannerisms and his hand shook slightly.

The lack of ceremony in an improvised throne room was in sharp contrast to the pomp and ceremony outside, where household officials in formal morning garb bowed from the waist as I passed thru the wide portal of a stone building painted black for war camouflage and on down a 100 foot carpeted hall to the throne room.

Looks Heavier, Not Older

Outside the walled enclosure it took not only a written pass, but the presence of an M. P. headquarters officer to get me by the armed American guards and the blue uniformed imperial police with visored caps. They halted us again by a heavy wooden gate and were present along the stairways and halls of the imperial household ministry.

Talking thru an interpreter, the emperor, who stood with his hands rigidly at his sides about a foot before me, asked where I had come from, and expressed the hope that I would accurately interpret the Japanese scene. I assured him that I would.

He looked heavier, but not older than his pre-war pictures.

Twists in Nervousness

The interview had been authorized by Gen. MacArthur and the emperor. He indicated that he relied greatly upon the wisdom and statesmanship of the supreme allied commander.

It was peculiar that this short man, twisting his body somewhat before me with nervousness, had power of life and death over 80,000,000 people.

Our talk was brief, and as I left with three other household officials bowing toward the emperor from the waist, I nodded again and he nodded back.

I had submitted a list of written questions, and the mikado told me he had the answers prepared. These were handed to me on heavy paper after I had left the audience room.

Asked whether he thought the social and educational system of Japan should be changed and what his ideas were as to the future of Japan, Hirohito expressed himself in favor of a constitutional monarchy like the British.

Food and Housing Vital

He said it was his earnest desire that the necessary changes be carried out in line with the general will of the people expressed thru constitutional procedure. He said that in order to achieve social stability, adequate provision of food and housing was of primary and urgent importance. Once a satisfactory solution of that phase of the problem was found, it would be comparatively easy to set about the task of needed reforms which would make for the general peace of the world, he said.

The mikado confidently hoped that Japan in due course would regain what he termed her rightful place in the community of nations thru peaceful contributions toward the enhancement of culture and civilization.

Fooled on Rescript

Asked if he intended that the war rescript should be used as Gen. Tojo used it to launch what President Roosevelt termed the "treacherous attack" on Pearl Harbor which brought the United States into the war, his answer was brief. The emperor said he had no intention to have the war rescript used as Gen. Tojo used it.

The emperor was questioned as to whether he felt or hoped that the Japanese themselves could make whatever changes were deemed necessary to bring Japan back into the concert of nations again and eliminate the possibility of future wars. He had this to say:

The emperor had no doubt that his people would prove themselves capable of making the necessary changes in order to bring Japan into the concert of nations again and eliminate the possibility of future wars. He was gratified that no mishap of importance had marred the occupation by American forces over considerable areas of Japan's homeland.

"Does the emperor himself not feel that the latest weapons of war have made thoughts of future wars intolerable?" was the final question.

Arms Can't Bring Peace

To this the mikado replied that he did not believe an enduring peace could be established and maintained at the point of the bayonet or by the use of other weapons of war.

The solution is that the problem of peace will lie in the reconciliation of free peoples, both victor and vanquished, without recourse to armaments, he said.

I went to the board of information in the home office at 9:30 this morning, after spending a great part of the night arranging to get past American MPs who were protecting the emperor, keeping all Americans from entering, altho Japanese subjects are free to come and go. In the office of Toshikazu Kase, one of the information board officials, I was joined by Yasushiko Nara, official of the foreign office.

Crosses 300 Year Old Moat

We left immediately for the imperial palace, driving about a mile along high walls and entering thru Wadakuramon gate, where a wide moat, built more than 300 years ago, still guards the feudal looking establishment.

Once inside I could see some evidence of bomb damage, but not much because the large oblong building of about three stories was only 50 yards from the gate, hills rising behind it.

We drove in under a large portico where a major domo bowed three times to us from the waist and passed up three long flights of stone steps, passing rooms that looked somewhat bare and much like any other good office in Tokyo.

Makeshift Drawing Room

I was then greeted by a stately official of the imperial household, who took me into a small drawing room made by placing small wooden tables and stuffed chairs in what had been an office. There were two tapestries on the wall, one depicting a bird cage and flowers, the other a few flowers.

A stunted pine stood in a vase on a table near the windows.

We arrived here at precisely 9:45 a. m. and waited, smoking and chatting—ashtrays and matches having been provided—until it was precisely 10 o'clock by a large automatic clock over the door.

Preceded slightly by the major domo, I went down a heavily carpeted hall to the throne room. There the major domo dropped behind. I stood just outside the threshold and saw Hirohito standing before a chair with an extremely solemn aide in civilian regalia standing a few paces behind, on Hirohito's left.

Chat for 10 Minutes

I nodded, stepped forward, and walked up to the emperor, who nodded back, then shook hands American fashion.

We chatted for 10 minutes, the emperor asking mostly conversational questions, to which I gave brief replies.

I had been instructed to ask no questions, and maintained this agreement. When I left I backed out and walked back down the hall to the waiting room to pick up my overseas cap, again passing bowing servants and police down the long three flights of stairs. Nara, who had rejoined me, and I entered the car and we whisked without interference out of the gates.

During my conference I felt far less nervous than I have at any press conference held by Mr. Roosevelt or President Truman, perhaps because the emperor himself appeared nervous. I wore a tropical uniform, with a khaki shirt, tie, and campaign ribbons.

MOSLEMS OF INDIA STAND PAT ON CLAIM FOR SEPARATE STATE

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 24 [Reuters]—Nawahzada Liaqat Ali Khan, general secretary of the India Moslem league, in the first Moslem comment on Viceroy Wavell's broadcast on the British government's new India plans last week, said today at Aligarh, United Provinces, that the only solution of the Indian constitutional problem lay in Pakistan [the formation of separate Hindu and Moslem states].

Liaqat Ali said "the All India Congress party position is that there should be one central federation for the whole of India, and the British should hand over all power to a central government dominated by the vast Hindu majority."

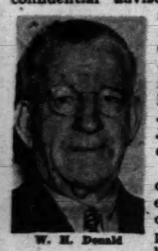
CHIANG ADVISER WARNS: DON'T CODDLE RUSSIA

Tells of Hiding 3 Years in Jap Prison Camp

BY THOMAS MORROW

W. H. Donald, Australian born confidential adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, visited in Chicago yesterday after spending three years hiding from the Japanese in a Japanese prison camp.



W. H. Donald

Apparently recovered from the experience which cost him 70 pounds while fellow prisoners starved to death, Donald tossed off rapid fire opinions about the world situation. He said he believed that:

1. China offers a friendly and fruitful field for post-war American activities.

2. To present a united, progressive, and happy front to the world, China must have land reform and pitch out about 50 per cent of the office holding Kuomintang, revolutionary nationalist ruling party.

Tells Faith in MacArthur

3. America can depend on Gen. MacArthur to forestall a soft peace for Japan which would cause future world trouble.

4. A determined stand against Russia would guide that country away from acquisitions in the Mediterranean and Pacific thru its take-what-you-can-get policy.

Termed the mystery man of China before the war, Donald gave up a position as reporter for the Sydney Daily Telegraph in 1902, became a subeditor of the China Mail in Hong Kong, and an intimate friend of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, father of republican China. Later he was summoned to the post of adviser by Madame Chiang Kai-shek and the generalissimo.

Reaches Manila During War

Donald started for Chungking from the Solomons, where he was vacationing, and arrived in Manila five days after war broke out. He was interned while Japanese sought him on the ground that he was partly responsible for gaining British and American friendship for China.

"I was known as W. H. Donald, so I registered as William H. Donald," he said. "Japanese searching the records were guided away by my recorded age of 68, believing that I was much younger. One man, against whom I had been warned, had enough of my documents in his possession to assure my getting shot had he told the Japanese, but he never gave me away."

His identity was an open secret among the internees, who guarded it from the Japanese.

Two Scoops of Mush a Day

"We got one scoop of mush [rice and corn] in the morning, another in the afternoon," Donald said. "I lost 70 pounds, but many starved to death.

"The first we knew of the rescue was at a quarter of 7 in the morning [Feb. 23] when planes came over low and parachutists jumped. With the aid of guerrillas, the parachutists killed 110 Japs and freed more than 2,000 prisoners."

Donald said Chiang has been put on the spot by the Chinese Communists.

"The Communists in China make up a guerrilla organization and never fought a battle," Donald said. "They were conserving their strength for after the war. If Chiang had not been there to lead the country, China would have folded in six months.

Firm Hand for Reds Urged

"If Chiang effects land reforms and cleans up the kuominotang, the people will unite behind him."

America is too soft in its dealing with Russia, Donald said, adding that the Russians should be told firmly what they can expect.

"It is a Russian characteristic to yell and yell to see how much they can get," he said. "If the foot is put down, Russia will expect nothing in the far east. If not, she will be in the Mediterranean and the far east."

Japs 'Savages in War'

Donald said Japan is retiring behind the veneer of politeness presented the world since 1868 until it was thrown off and the Japanese "became the savages they were in the war."

Donald plans to travel to Australia and probably will return to China. He said that Madame Chiang had urged him to return on the ground that there was much work to be done in China.

Keeps Diary in Jap Prison Camp

MAJ. TISDELLE TELLS MAYOR OF JAP PRISON DAYS

Shows Diary Carried All Thru War

Maj. Achilles C. Tisdelle, former Chicago advertising man who was liberated from a prison camp in Mukden, Manchuria, on Aug. 17, visited Mayor Kelly yesterday and told of his experiences as a prisoner of war.

Tisdelle, assigned to the army's 26th cavalry Philippine scouts, was taken prisoner when he went forward on Bataan with Maj. Gen. E. P. King to contact the Japs and surrender.

Living on one-half and then one-third rations, he survived the death march, and then in July, 1943, was taken with 500 others in the hold of a frater to Omuta, 50 miles across the bay from Nagasaki.

Shows Mayor War Diary

Tisdelle showed the mayor a dilapidated diary which he had kept since Dec. 8, 1941, thru Aug. 17, 1945. It survived numerous Japanese searches, Tisdelle said, thru the strategy of hiding it in the pocket of a shirt hung on the camp clothes line.

Filipinos helped the prisoners keep track of the war, Tisdelle said, as did Koreans, fellow workers in coal mines. Japanese newspapers, while unreadable, offered help with maps which apparently were accurate and told the Japanese the truth about the war.

Another Bataan Survivor

Another survivor of the death march was with his Chicago family yesterday. He is Marine Pvt. John S. Kliss Jr., 34, of 2417 W. 21st pl., who was liberated from a Honshu prison. He arrived and set upon steaks, pies, and other victuals prepared against his coming by seven sisters.

Chicago will have a look at Col. Gregory [Pappy] Boyington, who reappeared in a Japanese prison camp after he was reported missing in an air battle. Boyington will pass thru Chicago early next week en route to Washington to receive the congressional medal of honor.

POLICEMAN'S FATHER MISSING

Theodore A. Ruppert, 83, of 4817 N. Tripp av., father of Park Policeman Joseph Ruppert, has been missing since Sept. 14, his wife, Mary, said yesterday. Mrs. Ruppert said he failed to return from his customary afternoon walk.

3 MOVERS HURT AS PIANO SLIPS OFF BACK PORCH

Three men were taken to Jackson Park hospital yesterday after a piano they were helping to move slipped and fell three feet to the ground from a rear porch at 6929 Paxton av.

They are John Gleason, 56, of 5502 Halsted st., who suffered a possible skull fracture and internal injuries; William Geough, 51, of 5453 Harper av., chest and back injuries, and Thomas Smith, 46, of 3906 Lake Park av., possible skull fracture and internal injuries. All are employed by the Keystone Movers, 5507 Lake Park av.

The piano was being moved into the apartment of Miss Elizabeth Meek. The three injured men were at the lower end of the piano, and Fred Thomas, 53, of 7321 Kenwood av., was at the other end as it was being moved up the rear stairs. It slipped and plunged thru a railing on the porch to the ground, carrying Gleason, Geough, and Smith with it.

HOOVER CHARGES BRITAIN, FRANCE UPSET WAR CURB

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Former President Hoover declared tonight that delayed coöperation by Great Britain and France in 1931 ruined an American economic plan to prevent the Sino-Japanese war.

Speaking over a radio network in tribute to Henry Stimson, recently retired secretary of war and secretary of state in his cabinet, Hoover said that when he and Stimson foresaw the possibility of war in the far east they "evolved the doctrine of nonrecognition of any gains from aggression."

"Mr. Stimson took this proposal to the French and British governments," Hoover said. "But, faced by curtailed markets of the world depression and other difficulties, they delayed coöperation until it was a tragic failure."

Former Gov. Cox Declines Ohio Senatorship Offer

Columbus, O., Sept. 24 (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche announced today he had offered the United States senatorship appointment to former Gov. James M. Cox, but that the Dayton newspaper publisher had declined. The vacancy was created by the appointment last week of Sen. Burton [R., O.] to the Supreme court.

ACHESON O. K.'D; CHARGE 'SMEAR' OF MacARTHUR

BY PHILIP DODD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—The senate today confirmed Dean Acheson as undersecretary of state after a heated three hour debate on American occupation policy in Japan and reported differences of opinion between Acheson and Gen. MacArthur. The vote was 69 to 1.

Dean Acheson

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.], who registered the dissenting vote, lost his fight to have the nomination sent back to the foreign relations committee for examination of Acheson's views on American policy in Japan. The motion was defeated 66 to 12. Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] voted for the motion.

Sends Copies of Papers

Acheson, who is acting state secretary, made public an exchange of correspondence with Wherry in which Wherry had asked for clarification of occupation policies. Acheson replied by sending Wherry copies of the Potsdam declaration and other official papers.

The tempest was started at a press conference last week when Acheson told reporters the military forces in Japan were "the instrument, not the determinants, of policy." MacArthur previously had announced that occupation forces in Japan could be reduced to 200,000 by next July.

In today's debate Wherry charged that Acheson intends to have American soldiers used to bring about a social and economic revolution in Japan "no matter what the cost." He charged a concerted campaign is under way by the radical press and Communist groups in the United States to smear MacArthur and cause his removal as supreme allied commander.

Mail Supports Criticism

Wherry read to the senate from a stack of letters and telegrams he said he had received since he opened the attack on Acheson last week. All supported him in his defense of MacArthur. One soldier who had served with MacArthur asserted Acheson's remarks were part of "a deliberate attempt to blacken the general's name."

The Nebraskan recalled that attempts to start congressional investigations of America's appeasement of Japan thru shipments of oil and scrap iron had been defeated before the war. He charged that Acheson was instrumental in stopping them.

Acheson was defended by Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], foreign relations chairman, who sought to ridicule Wherry's charges and declared he would support any policy that would "eradicate Japan's lust for war." He said "lots of people talk too much," but that he was convinced Acheson had not intended to rebuke MacArthur.

WAUKEGAN WOMAN'S SON DODGES ENEMY IN JAPAN FOR 68 DAYS

A message from Tokyo that Oliver B. Rasmussen, 23, 1st class aviation radioman, was safe after an airplane crash on July 14 and 68 days of wandering among the enemy on central Hokkaido, Japan, was greeted with joy yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Anna Lucas.

Oliver B. Rasmussen

Mrs. Lucas lives at 38 N. Victory st., Waukegan. "I cannot work today—I'm so happy," said Mrs. Lucas, a civilian employe at the naval training center at Great Lakes.

Radioman Rasmussen, a former high school track star at Odanah, Wis., suffered minor injuries when his plane, from the carrier Shangri-La, crashed. The pilot was killed. Rasmussen raided root cellars and hen coops and milked cows for food as he dodged the Japanese. He did not learn until Sept. 19 that the war was over.

54 ROGERS PARK LIQUOR SELLERS TOLD: OBEY LAW

Capt. Michael Ahern of Rogers Park police station yesterday warned 54 tavern and package liquor store owners in his district that they must obey the laws or lose their licenses.

The owners, operating in Howard, Clark, and Paulina sts., met with the captain at the police station. Ahern's warning came as a sequel to the murder of Detectives Charles Brady and George Hellstern Sept. 2.

Ahern told the liquor dispensers that they must not sell to or employ minors, whom he defined as girls under 18 and boys under 21. They must be especially careful, he said, of service men, many of whom, in spite of campaign ribbons, still are under 21. Closing hours must be punctiliously obeyed, Ahern added.

52 Negro 'Mutineers' Are Restored to Duty

HONOLULU, Sept. 24 (AP)—Restoration to duty of 52 Negro soldiers convicted of mutiny last fall was announced today by the Mid-Pacific rehabilitation center. The soldiers were among 73 members of Co. 3, 1230th engineer general service regiment, convicted of refusing to report to a night work formation at an Oahu air field.

MAIL FROM U. S. REACHES TOKYO GIs IN 11.2 DAYS

BY DONALD STARR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 24—Complete postal facilities have been established in Japan for the use of American military forces, Col. D. H. Stephens, Pittsburgh, Pa., who is in charge of all army postoffices in this theater, said today.

Altho the army transport service is still working to establish flights over a new and shorter route from the west coast to Tokyo, air mail letters have been reaching Tokyo from eastern cities in the United States 10 days after the postmark date. This has been accomplished by close coöperation between postal authorities here and those in San Francisco.

Forwarding Service Eliminated

Advance notice is given west coast port officials of the dates on which various occupational units will move into Japan and Korea. Mail for these units is thus channeled direct to members of the forces, eliminating any need for forwarding service.

In the early days of the occupation mail was forwarded to Tokyo from Manila, but now there is a new direct air route by way of Pearl Harbor, Saipan, and Iwo Island. With favorable flying weather the elapsed time from the west coast should not exceed five days, and maybe only four. Some troops already have received mail nine days after it was postmarked. The average is officially set at 11.2 days.

Other Services Available

Service available to Tokyo in addition to air mail now includes first class mail, complete money order transactions, and parcel post. Restrictions on the size and weight of parcel post packages have not been changed.

Gifts sent to troops by relatives and friends in the United States will, in the case of silk, kimonos, and other dutiable articles, continue to be routed thru the customs offices at home.

$30 AND GUN MISSING

Benjamin Schwartz, 5207 Ingleside av., yesterday reported to police that $30, a .38 caliber revolver, and clothing were missing from his home.

MICHAEL REESE UNIT LEADER BACK AFTER THREE YEARS IN WAR

Lt. Col. Manuel E. Lichtenstein, chief surgeon of the Michael Reese hospital unit, came home yesterday after serving for nearly three years in the European theater. He was reunited with his wife, Isabelle, and three sons in their home at 1400 N. Kedzie av. The surgeon expects a discharge from the army this week under the point system.

Lt. Col. Manuel E. Lichtenstein

The unit arrived in North Africa Mayg 6, 1943, then was moved to Italy, landing on the Salerno beach, where it was attached to the 5th army. More than 18,000 casualties were cared for by the unit from Sept. 9, 1943, to the end of the war.

Col. Lichtenstein was graduated from Rush Medical college in 1924, and served his internship at Cook County hospital. He is assistant professor of surgery at Northwestern university and on the staff at Cook County, Norwegian-American, and Michael Reese hospitals.

Coal Short but Germans Refuse to Work in Mines

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP)—Western Germany faces a severe coal shortage, largely because German civilians are refusing to work in the mines, United States military government officials said today.

LONDON SHOWS CONCERN OVER RED RELATIONS

Molotov Forcing Issue, Labor Paper Says

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Growing press criticism of the foreign ministers' conference reflected today concern over developments in British-soviet relations since the Labor government took office.

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, headlined its account of the conference session: "Foreign ministers' council becoming battlefield—Molotov is forcing the issue—diplomatic war to back soviet bloc."

The Herald said that "from the very beginning, on every issue" the Russians appeared trying to obtain advantages for an "eastern bloc under Russian leadership" rather than seeking "reasonable solutions of difficult problems."

Suspicious of "Western Bloc"

Liberal papers have engaged in sharp controversies with Russian commentators who, in turn, have expressed concern over the purported establishment of a "western bloc" from which the soviet union would be excluded.

Russia tonight raised an entirely new issue—speeding the repatriation of soviet nationals—at the conference of foreign ministers, swinging discussion farther away from the main problems of European peace settlements.

This development apparently came as a surprise to American and British delegates.

Diplomatic quarters were unable to explain immediately how the repatriation question was injected into the discussions at this stage. Soviet representatives were understood to have asked that Russian nationals be sent home more rapidly from various European areas under British and American occupation.

Highly Complex Issue

A source close to the foreign ministers said the issue was highly complex. It is understood that one major problem is the fact that many persons claimed by the soviet union deny that they are Russian nationals and refuse to budge.

The question was said to be complicated further by the changed or uncertain border lines in post-war Europe, particularly those of Poland.

Until the repatriation issue came up, temporary control of Europe's rivers and canals had been the chief topic before the foreign ministers.

Divergence of views between Russia, on one side, and the United States and Great Britain on the other, again cropped up in the discussions, adding to the mounting heap of disagreements of the past two weeks.

Winter Food a Problem

The new conflicts broke out when the foreign ministers met to consider immediate action toward getting water traffic moving before winter intensifies food supply and other problems of inland cities.

The Americans, supported by the British, favored control of river traffic by international commissions, with British, French, American, and Russian representatives, as well as members representing countries along the rivers.

The Russians, however, proposed that river traffic be controled by occupation arimies. Soviet forces thus would have control of the Danube, Oder, and part of the Elbe.

The Moscow radio tonight asserted Premier Groza's Romanian government "deserves a place in the family of the united nations. The facts and figures," said the broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor, "prove that the overwhelming majority of the Romanian population have complete confidence in the Groza government and are giving it their full support."

Ethiopia Wants Two Lands

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 2 (AP)—The newspaper Al Misri said today that Emperor Haile Selassie had sent a note to the foreign ministers council demanding that Eritrea and Italian Somaliland be given to Ethiopia "because they belong to the Ethiopian empire and were stolen from us."

COMEDIAN KAYE MAY BE 1ST U. S. ACTOR IN JAPAN

Danny Kaye, comic film star, who will launch the Community and War Fund drive here Friday evening in Orchestra hall, may be the first well known American entertainer to appear before American troops in Japan, it was disclosed yesterday by Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman of the drive. The comedian is to leave for the Pacific immediately after his appearance in Chicago.

"If Gen. MacArthur grants permission when Kaye and his U. S. O. troupe arrive off the coast of Japan, Kaye will be the first American entertainer to appear before our occupation troops on the Japanese mainland," Paepcke said.

Kaye will be accompanied on the trip by Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Jack Snyder, Chicago accordionist. In addition to his appearance Friday in Orchestra hall, Kaye will entertain more than 2,000 persons at 11:30 a. m. Thursday at the machine shop of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, 3426 E. 89th st.

JEWS DEPLORE ANTI-SEMITIC PALESTINE LAWS

LONDON, Sept. 24 [Reuters]—Palestine, under British mandate, is the only country in the civilized world where discrimination against Jews still exists in law, since the disappearance of the nazi Nuernberg laws, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization and the Jewish agency, told members of the Zionist Federation of Great Britain and Ireland at an emergency meeting here tonight.

"A policy which would refuse the Jews the chance of rebuilding their full national life in their historic homeland was not one to which the Jewish people would ever submit," Weizmann said. Jews in Palestine could not settle save in the towns and in a very small part of the countryside, he added.

Recalls Labor Censure

He recalled that the British Labor party had introduced a vote of censure against this measure under the Chamberlain government in February, 1940.

Two months have elapsed since the present British government has come into office, yet the white paper of 1939—condemned by the Labor party as a breach of faith—is still in force, he said. Jewish immigration into Palestine is at a standstill and no reply has yet been received to the request to the government for an immediate grant of 100,000 immigration permits, to satisfy the most urgent requirements, submitted by the Jewish agency three months ago, Weizmann said.

Scorns British Offer

He disclosed that the British colonial office had offered 75,000 permits under the white paper, subject to the old proviso that only 1,500 Jews could enter Palestine in any one month. At this rate it would take nearly one year to evacuate the refugees who had assembled, and were now living under inhuman conditions, in Italy alone, and at least four years to deal with those in Germany, Weizmann pointed out.

Hard pressed as the Jews are, Weizmann declared, they could not possibly accept such a derisory offer. They have informed the government that they can have no dealings on the basis of the white paper, which they have always held to be immoral and illegal, he said.

Arabs Oppose Truman Plan

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 24 [Reuters]—Abdul Rahman Azzam Bey, secretary general of the Arab League, said at a meeting here tonight that the Arabs could not accept the plan, reported to have been supported by President Truman in a letter to the British government, for the immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

Azzam Bey declared that Palestine was an "Arab unit." "The Arab leaders are all agreed on the need for the evacuation of all foreign troops from the middle east," he added.

More Troops on Way

JERUSALEM, Sept. 24 (AP)—Additional British troops were reported en route to Palestine tonight in an effort to intensify safeguards against the illegal entry of Jews.

Meanwhile political tension increased in Palestine over the imminent end of immigration. Jewish hopes that American calls for continued large scale immigration would be answered were diminishing.

DENY WINDSOR'S CARS, TRUCKS CHARGED UP TO LEND-LEASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—Lend-lease officials in the foreign economic administration today denied that the costs of the fleet of motor cars and trucks assigned to carry Edward Windsor and Mrs. Windsor and their entourage from Le Havre to Paris are to be charged to lend-lease.

Lend-lease has ended, a spokesman for FEA said, noting that the former King Edward VIII, of England and his wife will have to make other arrangements for transfer of their luggage, which includes 16 monogrammed wardrobe trunks and scores of pieces of various types of luggage, hampers of perishable food, and large consignments of American canned goods.

It was reported American army officials informed the British embassy they would supply the transportation fleet for the Windsors. At the war department it was said there was no information on the matter here.

BAR JAVANESE NATIONALISM, JAP ARMY TOLD

SINGAPORE, Sept. 24 [Reuters]—Adm. Mountbatten, supreme allied commander of southeast Asia, has instructed Japanese forces in Java, premier Dutch colony in the East Indies, not to hand over authority to any Java faction, it was understood here today.

The Japanese, whose forces still control Java five weeks after the official Japanese surrender, are believed to have asked Southeast Asia command headquarters for guidance after a Javanese republican faction demanded to be put in authority. SEAC's reply was "no."

An Australian correspondent who has returned to Singapore from Java said he had seen Dr. I. R. Soekarno, leader of the Indonesian nationalist movement, who was quoted last July by the Japanese news agency as appealing to the Javanese to fight hand in hand with Japan.

Leader Forms Cabinet

Soekarno, according to this correspondent, wanted to proclaim his assumption of authority, but the Japanese warned him to desist. He has formed a cabinet of 17 ministers, and has established himself in a stately old white pillared building which once housed the finance ministry.

"Among the Dutch in Batavia there is no disposition to discuss the political situation," he continued. "They obviously are disturbed, and are taking no chances of clashes while there are so few allied armed forces in the country.

The delay in occupying the Netherlands East Indies is regarded in Singapore as unfortunate, but unavoidable.

Mountbatten with the world's most widespread command has never had the troops he required. With the suddenly expanded commitments caused by Japan's surrender, he has been unable to spread his forces around an enormous area quickly.

Dutch Troops Lack Transport.

The task of occupying these islands must be undertaken by SEAC forces. The Dutch, who have troops ready in Holland, have been unable to move them to the far east because of lack of transport.

Soekarno, meanwhile, claims, according to the Australian correspondent, that the nationalists represent 95 per cent of the 70,000,000 people in the East Indies.

A complete break from Holland was desired, Soekarno asserted in this interview.

. . . an OPEN* letter

For some months, now, we have been telling Mr. and Mrs. Public that sometimes our service has suffered because of the war.

We have been short of merchandise and help, but this situation is gradually improving. Occasionally, we were short on tact and courtesy and while it pained us to explain, we tried.

But the war is over and good pre-war Stineway service is again the objective. Courtesy and helpfulness are part of our jobs to bring customers to our stores, to satisfy them, to serve them.

That will keep the cash register ringing, for it is out of the cash register that the money comes to pay salaries and wages and maintain the security of our business and our jobs.

TELL HOW NAKED WOMEN WAITED NAZI GAS DEATH

Nightmarish Horror Scene Depicted in Court

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LUENEBURG, Germany, Sept. 24—A nightmarish picture of hundreds of naked women with shorn heads and with numbers tattooed on their forearms, waiting for 36 to 48 hours for the death they knew awaited them in the gas chambers just before Christmas, 1941, was conjured today by one woman who was yanked out of the reach of death after the killing fumes had started to spread thru the gas chamber.

She was followed on the stand by three other women who were present at countless selections of victims for the gas chambers carried out with the help of many of the 45 on trial at Lueneburg as bosses of the Nazi horror camps at Oswiecim [Auschwitz], Poland, and Belsen, Germany.

Tells Husband's Death

The first witness was Zofia Litwinska, 29, of Lublin, Poland, who was arrested in May, 1940, as a Jewess. Her husband, who was non-Jewish, also was arrested because he had been an officer in the Polish army. Both were held at Lublin prison for a year and then were taken to Oswiecim. Fighting for composure, the witness finally said, "He died as they all died at Oswiecim."

With a dramatic gesture she pointed to Franz Hoessler, an SS officer, as the man who directed the selection of victims on the day when she and 3,000 others were sentenced to die in the gas chamber. She cried, "That is the man who is responsible for the death of thousands of innocent people," and then broke into tears.

As she wept, the accused Irma Grese and her companions giggled joyfully, evidently relishing their former victim's emotions. Hoessler did not share their merriment and remained in deep thought during the whole session.

Upon their arrival at Oswiecim, the witness said, the whole transport was beaten, then numbers were tattooed on their forearms, their hair was cut off, and the women were taken from the room and forced to undress completely. Everything was taken from them, even bread. Much later they were given lousy shirts and skirts but no pants or stockings.

Gas Chamber Scene

She broke her leg when her feet, in heavy wooden clogs, got stuck in the mud while she was carrying camp food containers. She was in the hospital a few days before Christmas, 1941, when Hoessler and the camp doctors entered and ordered every one to stand at attention naked. The numbers of those who could not rise were written down and every one knew that meant death. "My number also was taken," she said. "For a whole day we were kept in our barracks. The next day at 5 or half past 5 we were packed on trucks. We were dumped like potatoes or coal and hustled into a room that looked like a shower bath with towels and even mirrors.

Last Second Reprieve

"We were all so terrified that I cannot remember how many we were, but I remember how the fumes started coming thru some small, windowlike openings quite high up. Some shrieked, some wept, women hit each other. I started to cough and choke. Tears streamed from my eyes. Then I heard my name called. I lifted my arm. A man dragged me out of the gas chamber. A blanket was thrown around me and Hoessler took me back to the hospital on a motorcycle."

Removed to Belsen

The only explanation for her reprieve that Zofia could find was that, as the wife of an officer, she was not scheduled to be killed, according to the lists of the bosses of Oswiecim.

When she was taken to Belsen she worked in the kitchen. She testified that shortly before Belsen was liberated the schutzstaffel shot into a dense crowd of internees who were trying to get a potato or turnip, killing many.

Then Zofia walked down the courtroom and identified 16 of the accused as the men or women who had beaten her and other prisoners at Belsen or Oswiecim.

Before an arrogant looking prisoner, Ilse Forster, the witness stopped and pointed her out as "the woman whom I saw beat to death a young girl of 17 or 18 in the Belsen kitchen and outside it. The accused caught the prisoner taking a potato or turnip and beat her to

While Mrs. Litwinska was full of self-confidence, 25 year old Annie Jonas of Breslau, Germany, squirmed when she had to describe the selection of prospective victims of the gas chamber as they stood naked.

Points Out Woman

She recognized Johanna Bormann, a meek looking woman of 60 who, she said, egged on the doctors selecting victims for death and pointed out those who were weak and sickly.

Dora Szafran from Warsaw also recognized Johanna Bormann as "the woman who sicked her dog on a prisoner who walked too slowly because her feet were swollen and she could not walk fast."

She also identified Joseph Kramer as the man she saw "beat the prisoners himself. I saw Irma Grese beat a girl in Oswiecim and then beat another one in Belsen about two weeks before our liberation. Grese had a pistol, but she usually used a riding crop to beat the internees."

REDS APPROVE BERLIN WEEKLY OVER YANKS' 'NO'

Problem Posed for Control Board

BERLIN, Sept. 24 (AP)—In the face of official American opposition, Russian-appointed German editors proceeded tonight with plans to expand the press interests of Berlin's city government to include an illustrated weekly, in addition to a newspaper now issued daily.

Dr. Rudolf Herrnstadt, a Communist, for 12 years a refugee in Moscow, heads the staff that expects to issue the revived Berliner Illustrierte Zeitung on behalf of the municipality. Herrnstadt also is chief editor of the administration's daily Berliner Zeitung.

How Dr. Arthur Werner, chief burgomaster named by the soviets, would obtain sanction for the weekly was not explained. A recent ruling of the kommandantur [allied control board], written and submitted by the Americans, requires the kommandantur's prior approval of all city government orders concerning "cultural affairs and information media."

Yanks Sponsor Second Organ

American news control officers now publish a thrice-weekly organ, Allgemeine Zeitung, and are sponsoring a second, Der Tagesspiegel, which will appear Thursday under German editorship.

The Russians, besides their direct supervision of the Berliner Zeitung, control the daily organs of four German non-nazi political parties. Moreover, the soviet command publishes a German-language daily, Taegliche Rundschau, for its entire occupation zone. The British have one Berlin newspaper. France has none.

An allied military government official furnished this possible clue to the present press maneuvers:

"This city is supposed to be run on a four power basis, with every decision requiring a unanimous vote. To start something, you first must get everybody to agree. But if you go ahead and start it anyhow, it takes a unanimous vote to stop you.

Trick Tried by All

"So each power is tempted sometimes to get a pet project under way before bringing it up at a kommandantur meeting. Americans have done that. Russians have done that. We are all in the same boat.

"But how the Russians are going to put this thing over about the weekly when there's a ruling already on the books, I don't know."

City government representatives sought last month to arrange the printing of the illustrated weekly at an American managed plant in Tempelhof, but the answer was a flat no.

On the kommandantur level the Americans then attempted to block any chance that the enterprise would start by other means with a statement that they feared the city government would get a "monopolistic grip" on Berlin's newspaper business.

More Women Teachers Urged for German Youth

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP)—Employment of more women teachers in German schools was urged on United States military government officials today as a step toward instructing youth along democratic lines. Maj. G. H. Geyer, chief of the civil affairs education section in the European theater, pointed out that this "might do much to humanize German education."

ARREST OF ITALY'S KING AND BADOGLIO ORDERED BY HITLER

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP)—After Benito Mussolini's overthrow in July, 1943, Adolf Hitler ordered arrest of the Italian royal family and Marshal Pietro Badoglio, records of the erswhile Fuehrer's staff talks disclosed today.

Caught off guard by the coup, Hitler directed the third panzer grenadier division to move into Rome and arrest King Victor Emmanuel and "especially Crown Prince Umberto," the reports disclosed.

The Hitler plan was to whisk the family of Badoglio, who negotiated Italy's surrender to the allies, and his entire government to Germany by plane. Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, later executed, also was on the arrest list. Failure of the plan was not explained in the records.

RUSSIANS HIDE MILITARY PLANS INSIDE BULGARIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 24—Russia is carrying on secret military activities. Confidential reports, confirmed by authoritative sources, cover activities of the Russians in Bulgaria and especially in Transcaucasus.

These reports state that after the firm attitude taken by the United States toward the situation in Bulgaria, and in anticipation of the arrival of allied correspondents, the Russians took certain steps to fool observers.

Militarily, the Russians conducted "large scale repatriation of their too many occupational forces in Bulgaria." A few troops, comprising demobilized men, were sent to Russia. Troops were evacuated, just before the arrival of allied correspondents, from nearly 30 villages around Sofia and garrisoned in German built barracks in two districts of the capital.

Concentrated in South

Troops evacuated from other places were concentrated in southwestern Bulgaria. From Nova Zagora [headquarters of the Russian command in charge of the Greek and Turkish frontier regions, 140 miles east of Sofia] came an order that the Russian troops must avoid any demonstrations along these borders. The soldiers were ordered withdrawn from the view of Greek and Turkish observation outposts.

It is estimated that 300,000 soviet troops, mostly cavalry, are concentrated in Transcaucasus. Heavy military railroad traffic is reported between Tiflis, Baku, and Nakhichevan—the latter being the chief town of the province of the same name, separated from Iran by the Araxes river. Strong reenforcements were recently sent to Iranian Azerbaijan.

The Russians are reported to be erecting strong fortifications in Iranian Azerbaijan, along the Turkish-Iranian border. Military experts say an attack on Russia from that area is impossible.

Try to Land Agents

Other reports disclose increasing attempts to introduce Russian agents into Turkey. Numerous motorboats, without lights or flag, were sighted off Turkey's Black sea shore, trying to land agents. The boats were armed with machine guns, and fire was exchanged in several cases.

The local population asked Turkish authorities to provide them with weapons to fight the Russian boats. Anxious to avoid any incidents, the authorities said the "boats belong to smugglers, and the matter concerns the customs ministry, which has been informed.

The Russians also are sending agents to the nomad Kurd tribes. They easily cross the Turkish-Iranian border. A Kurdish tribe recently sent 300 mounted men on a raid from Iranian territory to a Turkish village in the province of Bayazit, plundering and killing the peasants. They escaped to Russian controled Iranian territory, where Turkish troops could not pursue them.

COMPLAIN NAZIS STILL ARE ACTIVE IN BAVARIA RULE

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 24 (AP)—Complaints have been made that denazification is lagging in the eastern military district of Bavaria and that suspected Nazis still were strong in the local government.

Some of these charges came up at a week-end press conference with Gen. Patton, who declared the primary concern of his administration at present was to get German economy going to prevent starvation this winter and save the American taxpayer money, rather than rout out every one suspected of having a nazi taint.

Major target of criticism is the German administration of Bavaria, operating under the military government, which is headed by Fritz Schaeffer. Schaeffer has submitted a letter of resignation to Col. Roy L. Dalferes of Champaign, Ill., of the military government.

SUSPECTS JAP TRAITORS GAVE CODE TO BRITISH

Shafer Questions Real Motive in 'Secrecy'

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—Suspicion that the Japanese code was not broken but was obtained by British secret service agents from Japanese traitors was voiced on the floor of the house today by Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.].

The securing of the Japanese code has become a major national topic since it has been revealed that President Roosevelt knew from intercepted Japanese messages that the United States was going to be attacked by Japan 16 hours before Pearl Harbor.

Shafer said that if the code had been obtained thru efforts of spies and traitors it was necessary to protect those sources during the war. Such secrecy by the army and navy would be entirely proper, he held.

Codes Changed, He's Told

He ridiculed, however, the story that similar secrecy was necessary to withhold the mere breaking of the code, asserting he had been informed that no nation would keep one code, even with a wide variety of patterns, in force for a period of years. He said that not only repeated Jap reverses but also the passage of time would bring about creation of new Jap codes.

Shafer said that if the army had thrown secrecy around the cracking of the pre-Pearl Harbor code merely to keep Gov. Dewey from using information in the 1944 Presidential campaign that Roosevelt knew about the impending attack, then the army was guilty of playing politics.

Similarly, he charged, the navy shamefully had lent itself to the White House as an instrument of vengeance if it shrouded secrecy about code breaking merely to aid the administration in its futile effort to indict THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE under the espionage act in 1942 for a story which listed the names of Jap ships in the Battle of Midway.

Jap Losses Cited

Shafer differentiated between cracking a code and obtaining a series of codes from secret sources within the enemy country thruout his house speech.

"If we actually cracked the Japanese code, then the army, in the case of Dewey, was playing politics in silencing the governor and the navy was lending itself, in the case of THE TRIBUNE, to the White House as an instrument of vengeance," he said. "It is ridiculous to assume that the Japanese would adhere to a code or variants of one code from 1941 to 1945, particularly after the loss of a great sea battle in which the American fleet apparently was able to foresee and checkmate every offensive move.

"It is axiomatic that every nation is aware that other nations are trying to break its codes. Nations assume that such codes are broken. While I do not propose to go into detail, I am told that our state department codes are changed in almost every pouch. I am told by military men that we had positive knowledge that the Germans broke our codes at least three times in the few weeks before the invasion.

Story Called "a Phony."

"The disclosure that we had cracked one code would not make the cracking of the next code more difficult, I am told, nor would it bring more frequent changes in codes, because they are shifted with a high degree of frequency. Codes are being perfected in one department of the world's black chambers with as much intensity as another department is engaged in breaking those of other powers.

"This would make it evident that the code breaking story is a phony and that both the army and the navy hid behind the alleged code breaking to undertake reprehensible errands for the White House unless they were hiding super-secret activities in the enemy's military establishment. The only genuine defense the services can have is that the Jap codes were being secured from traitors in the Jap war offices.

"The British secret service is a most efficient organization. It is highly possible that the service was able to find a weak link in the Jap war machine, as Britain has been allied with Japan for 20 years.

Suspects Jap Source

"If Jap traitors were the source of code information, which I am beginning to suspect, then there is justification for the secrecy surrounding the source of vital enemy information. If not, then the code story as we have it today is made out of whole cloth to cloak reprehensible conduct of the commander in chief."

At the outset of his speech Shafer said the country had received startling confirmation last week of the long suspected fact that President Roosevelt knew in advance the Japs were going to attack the United States with the disclosure that such information was in the hands of Dewey during his campaign for the Presidency.

A letter from Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, stating that it was of the highest importance that this information be kept from the Japs, influenced Dewey not to use the information.

"Whether Dewey was motivated in his decision by love of country of so high a degree that he willingly sacrificed the Presidency on the altar of patriotism, as is maintained by Republican Chairman Brownell, or whether he was influenced by fear that he would blast his chances for the Presidency in leaving himself open to the charge of giving aid and comfort to the enemy, is immaterial," Shafer said.

Tribune Story Recalled

"The important fact is whether or not the chief of staff was playing politics at the behest of the commander in chief while he was ostensibly concerned with the saving of American lives."

Shafer recalled this was not the first time the breaking of the Japanese code had been employed to further White House aims. He cited the unsuccessful attempt to indict THE TRIBUNE and two members of its editorial staff on the navy's allegation that the Tribune story indirectly revealed to the Japs that their code had been broken.

"Actually the investigation was brought, as was widely recognized at the time, in an attempt to destroy the newspaper which the administration had failed to scare or cajole into surrender of its independence," Shafer said. "The amazing vote of the grand jury against the indictment was a memorable milestone in the battle for a free press."

BOY INJURED IN LEAP

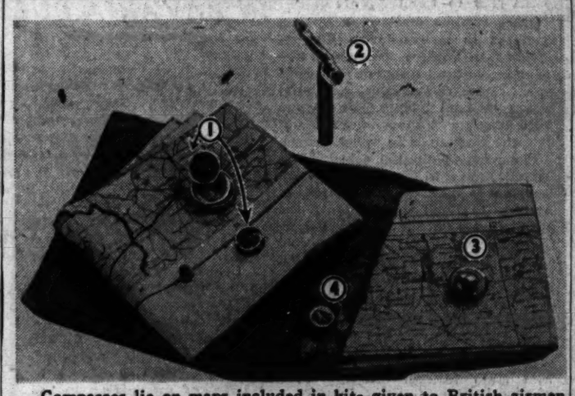
British Camouflage Compasses



Compasses lie on maps included in kits given to British airmen who flew over enemy territory. 1. A tunic button comes apart and reveals a tiny compass. 2. A pencil clip, when balanced, points north. 3. Two buttons, when removed from clothing, fit together to become a compass. 4. An ordinary compass is included as a decoy.

Two halves of ingenius button compass. One button, set on the point of the other, indicates north.

Aid to Escape

LONDON, Sept. 24 [Special]—Unique compasses made of buttons or contained in them were part of escape kits issued to all royal air force men flying over enemy territory, during the war, the British magazine Aeroplane says.

One of the compasses was concealed in a tunic button, which unscrewed clockwise. Another was in two parts, made into buttons, one indicating north when set on the other. A pencil clip was made to point north when balanced. In addition, regular compasses were included as decoys in case of capture.

Other items in the kit included maps, a file for escaping from barred cells, chocolate, bouillon, food tablets, headache and antisleep pills, water purifying tablets, antiseptic ointment, adhesive tape, matches, and chewing gum. The container itself was made to be used as a water canteen.

This is the way the two buttons fit together to make a compass.

SHOW CANCELED AFTER PROTESTS BY CIO AND REDS

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 24 [Special]—The scheduled showing of a musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was canceled here today upon protests by Negroes, the CIO, the Communist party, and a group of pastors, who said it degraded the Negro race.

The show, based on Harriett Beecher Stowe's novel of slave days in the south, had been advertised for a week before leaders in the city's Negro community raised protests. Their disapproval was taken up by the CIO Industrial Union Council of Bridgeport, the Communists, and the Bridgeport Pastors' association.

Mayor Gets Protests

Protests were carried to Socialist Mayor Jasper McLevy by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Hoskins, pastor of the United Congregational church and chairman of the Bridgeport committee on unity, amity, and friendship, and by Frank Ciarelli, secretary of the CIO council.

The CIO council adopted a resolution opposing the musical "because of the many sufferings of the Negro peoples in being beaten by slave masters and chased by bloodhounds. They have patiently and tirelessly emerged from those lowly realms and placed themselves on a par representing the best of American life."

The cancelation was announced by City Controler Perry Rodman who is managing director of the Klein Memorial Civic auditorium where matinee and evening performances had been scheduled for Friday.

Booker Releases City

Rodman told reporters that "when we received protests about this show we could not permit it to play in a municipal auditorium." He said the A. S. Lyons theatrical office of New York, which booked the show, had "amicably agreed to release us from the contract."

"I don't see anything objectionable about this show," said Hawley Cargill, who booked it for the New York agency. "No one ever found fault with it before."

The show played tonight in Manchester, N. H., and is booked for two appearances Saturday in New Haven, Conn.

NAVY DECLINES TO TELL LINDY'S SERVICE IN WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—The navy department said today that it has nothing to tell of the war work of Charles A. Lindbergh, who reportedly flew on combat missions and instructed pilots in high altitude flying during special naval service in the Pacific.

A navy spokesman said that Lindbergh was not employed by the navy but was a civilian employed by the United Aircraft corporation, which manufactures the navy's Corsair fighting plane. Any description of what he did or evaluation of his work should come from the employers rather than the navy, the spokesman said.

A year ago it was reported that Lindbergh was credited unofficially with downing a Japanese plane. He carried out stratospheric experiments that helped make the P-47 Thunderbolt the top plane in Europe.

WIFE FACES MURDER CHARGE

Mrs. Carrie Glasco, 49, Negro, of 1013 11th st., will appear in Felony court this morning to face a murder charge for the death of her husband, George, 49, on Sept. 22, from an infection of a stab wound in his neck. Glasco told police when he entered the hospital that he was stabbed by his wife during an argument Sept. 15.

PEARL HARBOR PROBERS MAY GO TO HONOLULU

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Congressional investigators may go to Pearl Harbor to look over the ground of the Japanese attack that put a major share of the American navy out of action.

This trip was disclosed to be under consideration today as committee members awaited a recommendation from Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] on the hiring of an attorney.

Members are known to have suggested the names of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924; former Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, and William D. Mitchell, former attorney general.

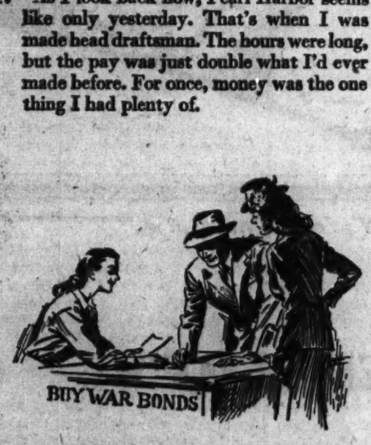
"Was I WRONG, back in 1945!"

1. "As I look back now, Pearl Harbor seems like only yesterday. That's when I was made head draftsman. The hours were long, but the pay was just double what I'd ever made before. For once, money was the one thing I had plenty of.



2. "I was tempted to spend my money, but I didn't. I figured prices would come down after the war—and I'd get what I needed then, when things were plentiful. So I got along with what I had, and saved all the extra cash I could.

3. "That was my golden opportunity to get ahead. Before I knew it, I had a raft of War Bonds, some more life insurance, and a nice little nest egg in savings. We had plans for sending the boy to college, and maybe taking life easier later on.

4. "Then goods started coming back—and I weakened! I should have held off and taken it slow and easy. But I felt safe, so I barged out and bought twice as much as I really needed. Before I realized, most of my savings had gone up in smoke.

5. "I might have been sitting pretty by now, if I'd only kept my head. Saving that money was the best thing I ever did—but I didn't use it wisely when I had it. Here I am—ten years later—right back where I started. Was I WRONG, back in 1945!"

Life Insurance Companies in America and their agents

. . . to cooperate with our government in preserving the financial health of the nation

BUT IT IS STILL 1945. If we use our savings wisely now, we can help to avoid inflationary price increases . . . and at the same time maintain backlogs for the kind of future we all desire. If we spend our money carelessly now, we may look back some day with regret.

During the war, millions of Americans saved to protect their families, to educate their children, to start a business of their own, to own their own home, to retire. Today they are still following the advice of our Government, buying only what they really need until civilian goods are plentiful, holding on to their War Bonds and life insurance, and maintaining their savings accounts. Are you one of them?

VOTE IN FRANCE SWINGS TO LEFT; BACKS DE GAULLE

Reds Gain but Socialists Set the Pace

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 24—Returns from 2,796 of 3,028 cantons in yesterday's elections thruout France had been counted tonight, disclosing a swing toward the left.

Both Socialists and Communists made sweeping gains in the voting, which corresponded to state legislature elections in the United States, at the expense of the moderate and right wing parties. The outstanding result, however, was what appears to be a thumping victory for the supporters of Gen. de Gaulle's policies. De Gaulle demands a one-house legislative system for the country.

The biggest gains were made by the Socialist party, which increased the number of its seats from 127, won in the last pre-war elections in 1937, to 313. The Socialists have replaced the Radical-Socialists as the great center party and it appears they will form the pivot of future French governments.

Works Closely with De Gaulle

The Socialist party, led by Leon Blum, is working hand in glove with De Gaulle and has repulsed all attempts of the Communists to woo it into a revival of the Front Populaire.

The returns show that the Communist party, which won 26 seats in the pre-war elections, almost quadrupled its strength. It captured 93 seats, mostly in the Paris region and other industrial centers. In dozens of cantons the Communists met decisive defeat.

In the thickly populated department of the Seine, consisting for the most part of the industrial suburbs of Paris, 25 of the 60 seats vacant in the general council went to the Communists. The Socialists won 12.

Seine Council 34 Pct. Red

In addition to the 60 newly elected councilors, the Seine general council includes 90 Paris municipal councilors, of whom 27 are Communists. Thus the communist representation on the Seine council will be 52 out of 150, or 34 per cent.

The once mighty Radical-Socialist party lost 139 seats thruout the country, while the Conservative Republicans ot the left and the Democratic Alliance lost 135 and the right wing Republican Patriotic union lost 119.

In 1,434 of the 3,028 cantons the leading candidates failed to poll majorities and run-off elections will be held next Sunday.

General elections will take place in October. Results in yesterday's balloting cannot be taken as a conclusive indication of next month's balloting results because the vote was on the old system and the October elections will be by proportional representation.

Nazi Rocket Plane in London

German ME 163 rocket propelled plane, on display in London's Hyde park, has top speed of 550 miles an hour and climbs 30,000 feet in 2.6 minutes. Conventional tail elevators are missing, and the landing wheels are dropped after the take-off. The tiny propeller-like windmill in the nose drives a generator to produce electricity for instruments.

NAVY SUB, READY FOR BATTLE, TO GO ON VIEW HERE

U.S.S. Mero Coming on Lakes Tour

The U. S. S. Mero, 1,500 ton submarine completely equipped for battle service, which was commissioned Aug. 18 at Manitowoc, Wis., will arrive here Saturday for eight days of public inspection, Sept. 30 thru Oct. 7. The ship's visit here is part of a tour of Great Lakes ports.

More than 6,000 persons will tour the submarine and additional thousands will view it from close range. It will tie up to a barge at The Tribune parking lot on the north side of the river, east of the Michigan av. bridge.

Appearance of the vessel is being sponsored by the Chicago council of the Navy league, headed by Barrett Wendell, to maintain public interest in the navy and to give navy men's families a chance to see at first hand a ship like those on which many Chicagoans are serving at sea.

Complete in Every Way

The submarine is complete in every detail, and all parts and equipment will be open to the public except radar and other items that the navy still cloaks with secrecy. When the war ended the sub was held in the Great Lakes and it now is being exhibited at Detroit.

Capable of a surface speed of 15 knots and an underwater speed of more than five knots, the sub is 311 feet long, has a 30 foot beam, and displaces 17 feet of water at surface level. It is equipped with 10 torpedo tubes, a five inch wet mount deck gun, 40 millimeter guns forward and aft, and four 50 caliber demountable machine guns.

Comdr. John H. Turner, navy hero who wears the navy cross, silver star, bronze star, Presidential unit citation, and the gold star in lieu of a second silver star, is in command of the sub. Comdr. Turner's wife and 2 year old son live in Manitowoc.

Three Illinoisans in Crew

The crew of 81 men includes three from Illinois: Fireman 1st Class Marshall V. Anderson of Forest Park, Seaman 1st Class Robert E. Hill of Lansing, and Seaman 1st Class Paul E. Bartels of Chester.

Not more than 800 visitors a day can be accommodated on the submarine. Inspection hours will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. on Sundays and from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., 1:30 to 5:30, and 7:30 to 9 p. m. on weekdays. Visitors must have tickets, which are available without cost at the Victory center in Marshall Field's loop store.

Hatches thru which visitors will descend into the interior of the submarine are only 25 inches in diameter, and the navy has suggested that women making the tour wear slacks to eliminate the chance of clothing being caught on the equipment.

ROUTS ESCORT, TRIES TO RAPE GIRL, 15, IN PARK

A 15 year old high school girl and her escort, a 20 year old European war veteran, were stopped by a gunman last night as they were riding thru Kelvyn park, Kostner and Schubert avs., on bicycles.

Addressing the ex-soldier by name, the gunman, a middle aged man, forced him to stand by as he pulled the girl into some shrubbery, where he attempted to rape her.

While the ex-soldier ran for help, the girl resisted the rapist. She incurred bruises and scratches in the struggle. Neither she nor her escort recognized the attacker.

ALLIES CONTROL GERMAN PLANTS, ASSETS IN SPAIN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—State department officials disclosed today that American and British agents are in direct control of all German government owned industries and other assets in Spain.

This information was coupled with a disclosure that the United States has rejected Generalissimo Franco's latest request to be allowed to reopen five large German schools in Madrid and Barcelona.

The United States and her allies, officials said, have "asserted title" to all former German government owned property in keeping with the Potsdam declarations. Officials added that the action was taken in agreement with the Spanish government.

Affects Other Nations

There is a proposal now before the allied control commission in Berlin to permit allied agents to seize private—or so-called private—German property abroad.

In addition to Spain, this plan would mainly affect German owned property in Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, and Argentina.

In Argentina, the United States has urged liquidation of German assets but has not stepped in itself and taken over. Similar action has been urged upon the other Latin American countries in an effort to blunt dangerous economic spearheads.

An informed official said the United States has denied Madrid's contention that the German schools are private property and therefore not subject to allied seizure. This government took the position that they were really government controled agencies of Nazism.

Describe Nazi Network

Meanwhile, state department economic experts described the vast and subtle nazi economic network which was allowed to grow in Spain during the war.

German purchases in Spain were centralized in Berlin under a nazi government agency called Hispano-Roak. The company operated along corporate lines but its stock was owned by the nazi regime.

Under Hispano-Roak, a subcontracting company known as Sofindus was established in Spain and grew to be the clearing house for almost all of Hitler's economic and war supply wants available on the Iberian peninsula.

State department officials said that at present Sofindus is headed by an American president, a British vice president, and an American secretary.

RUSSIA DEMANDS TRIAL OF FRANCO FOR 'WAR CRIMES'

Reds Aid Democracy, N. Y. Rally Told

New York, Sept. 24 [Special]—A soviet government demand that Generalissimo Franco of Spain be tried as a war criminal was announced today by Nikolai Novikov, acting head of the Russian embassy, in an address to a meeting of Spanish republican sympathizers in Madison Square Garden.

In another talk radioed to the crowd from London, Prof. Harold J. Laski, chairman of the British Labor party's executive committee, urged the democracies to withdraw their recognition of the Franco regime and give it to the Spanish republican government in exile.

Demanding Franco's trial, Novikov, who is soviet charge d'affaires in Washington, D. C., declared that the Spanish chief of state's aggressive actions against the soviet union had put him "on the same level with Hitler and Mussolini and in the same measure subject to prosecution as a war criminal."

Red Blames "Munichites"

He blamed the rise of Franco on the "Munichites who conducted an ambiguous policy of nonintervention."

"Now as before," he said, "the soviet union is the leading power in the task of protection of democracy in the whole world. Therefore, the soviet union is a logical supporter for the reëstablishment of democracy in Spain.

"The peoples of the soviet union hope that Franco, this hireling of Hitler and Mussolini, will receive what is coming to him and his regime of fascist distatorship will be abolished. The struggle of Spanish Republicans, and of those who are carrying it on in the underground in Spain, as well as of the ones beyond the borders of Spain, finds warm sympathy among the peoples of the soviet union."

Laski Tells 'Our Duty'

Prof. Laski, in his radio address, emphasized he was speaking "in a purely personal capacity as a private citizen." He asserted it is "our duty" to withdraw recognition from Franco and declared that "even tho it is in exile, the republic still is in being." The Spanish exile government is functioning in Mexico.

"Does any one honestly think that the Spain which Franco has made ever can be other than a prison in the fellowship of peoples?" Laski asked. "Is it not obvious that there will come a stage when its yoke will be found intolerable and it will provoke a new and more barbarous war."

Laski denounced the policy of nonintervention and held that allied nations had intervened where their interests required it. In support of this point he cited American and British policy in Ireland, Greenland, Persia, and the Azores.

Tonight's mass meeting was part of a campaign to raise $300,000 for the maintenance of 200,000 Spanish refugees in southern France.

BRITISH JURY FINDS MAN GUILTY BEFORE HE UTTERS ONE WORD

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—A hair triggered jury in old Bailey court today convicted a man of an offense against his daughter halfway thru his trial—and before he could utter a word in his own defense.

The defendant had pleaded innocent. After the prosecution rested, Justice Charles, indicating guilt had not been proved, asked the prosecutor: "Are you going to ask the jury to convict on this evidence in one of the most serious crimes in the calendar?"

He then inquired if the jurors had heard enough. After a snappy consultation, the jury returned the guilty verdict. "You can't do that!" the judge exclaimed. A new jury will be selected.

UNRRA BRANDED FAILURE; URGE U.S. TO PULL OUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—Declaring that UNRRA has failed as a dispenser of war relief, Rep. Mason [R., Ill.] today called for American withdrawal from that agency. He proposed that American funds for war relief be distributed by an American agency instead of an international one.

Mason told the house that UNRRA [which is the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration] is dominated by other nations, particularly Russia and Britain, altho this country has put up more than 70 per cent of its 1 billion 800 million dollar capital.

Mason said that Russia, by controling UNRRA policies in eastern Europe, has outlawed relief to anti-Communists and blocked the United States from sending to that area American personnel who are unsympathetic to soviet ideologies.

PADDEN PONDERS LEGAL PERIOD OF GESTATION

Judge Frank M. Padden in Superior court yesterday gave himself until Thursday to decide whether he will take judicial cognizance of the normal human period of gestation, together with the maximum period which Illinois courts might recognize.

The problem arose in connection with the divorce suit filed by Joseph Sowa, 31, a chief metalsmith in the navy, against Mrs. Josephine Sowa, 26, of La Porte, Ind., alleging she gave birth to a child 11 months and 18 days after he went overseas. He charged that a soldier identified only as Floyd Doe is the child's father.

Mrs. Sowa denied her husband's charges and asserted the child was born after an abnormally long gestation. Yesterday's hearing was on a motion by Sowa's attorney, Samuel A. Rinella, to strike Mrs. Sowa's answer on the ground that it did not constitute a valid defense.

Rinella asked Judge Padden to establish, so far as Illinois courts are concerned, the period of gestation beyond which a child may not be presumed to be legitimate.

SON OF EX-CHAMP WINS TITLE IN PLOW CONTEST

Clarence Shoger of Plainfield won the championship in the 50th annual plowing contest sponsored by the Big Rock Plowing association at Big Rock in Kane county Saturday, Conrad Lind, association secretary, announced yesterday. Shoger is the son of Carl Shoger, who won the championship several times. Shoger's score was 96½ points.

Other scores in the championship class were Otto Mueller, Sugar Grove, 93; Graeme Stewart, Plainfield, 91; Rollin Boughton, Plainfield, 89, and John Chrisse, Oswego, 88.

Robert Erickson of Plainfield won the farmers' open class with a score of 91. Other scores were: Harry Shoger, a brother of Clarence, 90; David Miller, Sugar Grove, 87; Bruce Fayley, Naperville, 83, and William Thomas, Big Rock, 78.

ARMY DRAWS UP POST-WAR PLAN OF ORGANIZATION

Boards in Combat Areas Submit Studies

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—With the demobilization program under way, the army has begun planning its post-war organization thru specially constituted boards in Washington as well as in Pacific and European theaters.

The project is directed by Lt. Gen. Patch, former commander of the American 7th army in Europe, who has been brought to the capital as head of the boards at home and abroad.

Patch will receive reports from subordinate groups established in Europe under Gen. Eisenhower and in the Pacific under Gen. MacArthur. It is expected he will make his recommendations to the war department on the basis of what their studies reveal and on results of his interviews with general staff officers.

Experience Provides Guide

Each of the overseas boards is understood to be viewing the problems of organization and personnel from the angles of successes and shortcomings in each theater as demonstrated by experience.

Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, is said to be concerned with the many problems of post-war organization and reportedly is delaying announcement of his retirement pending completion of the studies. One indication of the importance attached to the work of the planning boards is seen in the disclosure that Gen. Patch has been given desk space in Gen. Marshall's office.

The size of a peace time army sufficient to meet the nation's needs is only one of the questions confronting the groups. The men attempting to determine the shape of things to come for the army also are concerned with the probable effects upon traditional tactics of atomic weapons and robot missiles, such as rockets and V-bombs.

Marshall Indicates Change

It presumably was these departures in the field of military science that Gen. Marshall referred to recently when he noted that troop requirements and sizes of armies "change with the changes in weapons." The general has asserted that a large standing army "has no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state."

A post-war army consisting of a core of highly trained professionals with large citizen reserves available for an emergency is the more desirable, according to the chief of staff.

The Army and Navy Journal, unofficial service publication, has revealed that other studies are being made regarding the future of the national guard and the reserve corps. A board composed of two representatives each of the regular army, the national guard, and the reserves, which was convened here a few weeks ago, is reported to have completed its work and changes in policies toward the reserve components are expected to be announced soon.

The service journal also said the war department is considering abandonment of branches in the army so that all regular officers will be commissioned merely in the United States army, without reference to any special arm or branch, except possibly in such services as the medical and chaplain corps.

Shot in Jaw

[Acme Telephoto]

William B. Landwehr exhibits his fractured and swollen jaw after being shot in altercation with a deputy sheriff.

St. Louis, Sept. 24 (AP)—A warrant charging William Barnes Landwehr, 31, an insurance broker, with assaulting an officer was issued today after Landwehr had been shot in the face by Special Deputy Sheriff Richard Grages.

The shooting occurred yesterday in the St. Louis County courthouse while Landwehr was in the custody of Grages. Grages' report to Sheriff Arthur Mosley stated that Landwehr cursed him and tore his clothing. "I had raised my gun to strike Landwehr with it," Grages said, "when he hit my arm and the gun went off."

E. L. Franciscus, a companion of Landwehr's, said the shooting was "absolutely without provocation."

Grages said Landwehr spit out the bullet after he was shot, altho hospital physicians said it still was imbedded in his jaw.

At the time of the shooting, Landwehr was in custody on two warrants charging common assault which had been sworn out by two Clayton residents who claimed Landwehr kicked them in a cafe.

70th Division Leaves for Britain Today; U. S. Next

PARIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—The United States 70th division will start shuttling to England tomorrow on its first leg home. The 106th division, which was mauled in the battle of the Ardennes last December, is scheduled to sail from Le Havre tomorrow for the United States. The 63d division is at sea.

EUROPA ARRIVES IN N. Y. AFTER A TROUBLED TRIP

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—The U. S. S. Europa, once proud German record holder for the Atlantic run, arrived safely in New York harbor today under the command of Capt. B. F. Perry as the American navy's biggest prize of the war, bringing home 4,387 veterans from Europe.

The only unit on board was the 49th station hospital, including 60 nurses. The other passengers were high point men from various units of the 8th and 9th air forces.

The Europa—now officially commissioned as U. S. navy transport AP-177—made the crossing from Southampton, England, in six days and 15 hours.

Cut Meals to Two a Day

The army, which was in charge of food arrangements, started out serving three meals a day to all aboard. That system lasted two days when the old Europa's water supply began to go bad and the meals were cut to two per day: Breakfast at 6:30 a. m.; dinner at 4:30 p. m. Two and a half hours were required to feed the GIs at each sitting.

Failure of the water supply was one reason for the slowness of the Europa's voyage. One day 13 of the ship's 24 double boilers had to be retired because of water line failure cutting her speed down to 16 knots from the normal 22 to 23 which she had been making.

The Europa was seized formally by the United States government as a "prize of war" when she docked. Formal seizure took place in what was once the big ship's Ritz restaurant.

Aboard the Europa was her former German commander, Capt. Oscar Scharf.

To Help Convert Ship

With him were other German technicians brought by the navy to aid in converting the 49,746 ton luxury liner into an American troop transport to speed up the evacuation of troops from Europe.

The Europa was built in 1929 in Hamburg for the trans-Atlantic passenger trade and is still the third largest ship afloat, being outclassed only by Britain's Queens Mary and Elizabeth.

She was taken as a prize of war in Bremerhaven in May, 1945, where she had lain since the beginning of the war in September, 1939.

Nine troopships, bringing home more than 7,100 troops from Europe, are scheduled to dock at three east coast ports tomorrow.

Ships and army units arriving:

AT NEW YORK—[Aboard Gen. Greeley, originally due Wednesday] From Calcutta 3,735 troops including elements of the 5th and 14th air forces, the 61st railway operating battalion and five naval personnel. [Aboard James Wetmore] 25 troops, undesignated units. [Aboard Sea Serpent] 17 troops, undesignated units.

[Aboard Mount Evans] 39 troops, undesignated units. [Aboard Critobal] 3,334 troops including elements of the 99th infantry division.

The following arrived today:

AT NEW YORK—[Aboard Europa] 4,314 troops for reassignment and casuals including 49th station hospital; 8th and 9th air force personnel and 67 army nurses. [Aboard Glamorgan Seam] 13 troops, undesignated units. The J. E. Johnson, originally due today now is scheduled to arrive Wednesday.

AT NEWPORT NEWS—[Aboard T. Lyons] 29 troops, undesignated units. [Aboard Joseph Storey] 40 troops, undesignated units.

Aussies Brides Arrive

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 24 (AP)—Troop transports steaming thru the Golden Gate added over 16,000 to the swelling tide of returning Pacific theater servicemen today.

The world's greatest floating baby carriage, the Lurline, brought 545 Australian wives of American service men and their 220 small children in addition to 2,325 veterans.

Eighteen of the more fortunate wives found that their husbands were aboard the same ship, en route home for discharge or reassignment.

Other ships with service men arriving were: Winged Arrow, 1,600; Kota Inten, 1,524; Gen. Gordon, 4,690, and Gen. Weigel, 4,500.

Aboard the Gen. Weigel was Specialist 1st Class Johnny Mize, first baseman for the New York Giants and former St. Louis Cardinals star.

Army Doctors Returning

New York, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP)—Nineteen army doctors, part of 1,600 medical officers being returned to the United States from Europe to help relieve the shortage of civilian doctors, arrived here tonight aboard an ATC C-54 transport plane from Paris. Among those arriving were the following from Illinois:

Lt. Col. Harold H. Rosenbloom, 7128 East End av., Chicago.
Capt. Robert T. Cutts, 7658 Sangamon st., Chicago.
Capt. Charles D. Parker, 1243 N. Ashland av., River Forest.
Capt. Edward W. Thomas, 211 Plum st., Aurora.
Capt. Charles D. Brobst, 427 S. Lincoln av., Aurora.
Capt. Thomas F. Harmon, 1601 S. Douglas, Springfield.
Capt. Alex M. Berman, 1375 Greenleaf av., Chicago.

48 WARSHIPS TO SAIL FROM HAWAII TODAY WITH 10,000 TROOPS

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Sept. 24 (AP) — Forty-eight American warships, comprising the 1st carrier task force, will leave Pearl Harbor tomorrow for United States Atlantic coast ports where, after disembarking more than 10,000 returning war veterans, the units will participate in Navy day ceremonies Oct. 27.

Vice Adm. Frederick Sherman, task force commander, said the armada would consist of seven carriers, seven battleships, 30 destroyers, and other vessels.

The force will proceed to 15 coast cities.

WORLD SERIES TICKETS

For the convenience of Chicago Cub supporters, we are offering this opportunity to apply early for World Series Tickets, for use in the event that the Cubs win the National League Championship.

Tickets will be sold in sets of 3—one ticket for each of Games 4, 5 and 6 of the series. Due to the expected large demand for tickets, no more than two sets of tickets will be allotted to each customer. Should three games in Chicago not be necessary, the price of tickets for unplayed games will be refunded.

In fairness to all, we cannot guarantee location of seats, but your application will be filled as soon as possible after ticket sale opens. Check only one line on Application Form below, indicating whether you want one or two sets of tickets, and whether you want box seats or grandstand seats. Make certified check or money order payable to the Chicago Cubs for exact amount indicated on the line you check. Be sure to fill in name, address and postal zone number.

Please mail your Application to World Series Office, Chicago 11, Illinois—not to Wrigley Field. We are sorry but any application which fails to follow these instructions will have to be returned.

SURPRISE DRIVE FOR AIRPORT AT CLEARING BEGINS

City Aids Astound Lines

Favoring Douglas

A movement to locate Chicago's proposed new airport in the Clearing industrial district about a mile southwest of Chicago airport, 63d st. and Cicero av., instead of at the Douglas site, near Park Ridge, northwest of Chicago, which is favored by six lines engineers, popped into the open yesterday at the meeting of Mayor Kelly's airport site selection board.

Air lines representatives seemed surprised. Leading the Clearing movement were two committee members, Oscar E. Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, and Ald. Arthur Lindell [9th], both south siders. Whether they were acting at the direction of Mayor Kelly was not made clear.

Eliminated from further consideration were the Lake Calumet area and further expansion of Chicago airport. The lake front site was kept on the table for the time being by motion of Merrill C. Meigs, a civic leader in aviation affairs.

Debate Track Moving Cost

Hewitt objected to the Douglas site on the ground that to expand its 1,340 acres to 3,000 acres or more would require the moving of railroad tracks at a cost of $2,700,000. Ralph Burke, superintendent of the Chicago park district, remarked that this figure is hardly prohibitive when compared with a total cost of 30 million dollars.

"There's no railroad to be moved on the Clearing site," Hewitt replied.

H. Everett Kincaid, director of the Chicago Plan commission, suggested that the Douglas site railroad tracks could be lowered into a tunnel under the air field and that air passengers then could use the rail line to downtown Chicago. Ald. Lindell scoffed.

William A. Patterson, United Air Lines president and a committee member, said the air lines wanted to eliminate the Clearing site in order to preserve the usefulness of Chicago airport.

Airport Conflict Conceded

Meigs asked John Casey, Chicago airport superintendent, whether he would like to take the responsibility of operating Chicago airport with another field at Clearing. Casey said that he could do it with a single control tower, but added that a plane could not take off at one port while another plane was landing at the near-by port. Washington, D. C., has two airports on opposite sides of a river, he said.

"I assure you that it's hazardous, too," Meigs said. "In fact, it's a mess. Can't we eliminate Clearing right now?"

"No, no, I don't think so," Hewitt said.

Cite City Growth to North

Kincaid added that the Clearing site would not serve the majority of the population, because growth of the city is to the north and northwest.

Hewitt and the plan commission were asked to prepare sketches to show how tracks of two railroads near the Douglas site could be shifted. Air line engineers by committee request will submit answers to these questions: 1. If Chicago airport is abandoned entirely would the air lines still prefer Douglas field over Clearing, and why? [Hitherto it has been supposed that Chicago airport would be retained as a secondary field.] 2. Would railroad transportation such as Douglas might offer to downtown Chicago be a desirable feature of a new airport?

Assumption at the meeting was that the northwest super-highway leading to the Douglas site would be built in any event.

Corporation Owns Clearing Area

In the Clearing district, just north of the proposed airport site, is one of the greatest concentrations of railroad tracks in the world. There was no discussion of the probable cost of moving these tracks if necessary for future expansion.

The Clearing industrial district is a land owning corporation formed 35 years ago to build and sell or lease factory facilities. Estimated cost of an airport there on 2,700 acres is 31 million dollars. A plan commission report gave its only advantage as "available space." The airport site would be bounded by Austin and Harlem avenues, and 71st and 95th sts.

Enlistments Drop 50 Pct. for Maritime Service

Enlistments in the United States maritime service have dropped from 150 a week before the war ended to fewer than 70 a week, Comdr. R. T. Sexton, regional recruiting officer, said yesterday. The Chicago office of the maritime commission at 844 Rush st. has an unlimited quota of enlistments to fill and expects the demand for recruits to continue until July, 1946.

BOMBER PILOT DIES TO AVERT CRASH ON HOMES

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 24 [Special]—Maj. Doak Weston, 27, of Santa Cruz, Cal., an army pilot who had completed 35 combat missions over Europe, gave his life today to enable five crew mates to parachute to safety and to prevent his blazing B-25 bomber from crashing into a cluster of homes near here.

Fire started in the plane while it was 4,000 feet over East Boston. Weston ordered the five to bail out and stayed with the burning ship, which crashed on a golf course. A witness said it appeared that the plane was about to fall in a residential section but that the pilot guided it clear of the area.

Among crew members was Sgt. Chester L. Miller of Battle Creek, Mich.

Lt. Jackie Coogan Draws $25 Fine on Drunk Charge

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 24 [Special]—Lt. Jackie Coogan, former actor, today pleaded guilty to being drunk in an automobile last Saturday and paid a $25 fine. Coogan entered his plea before Judge Robert Clifton in West Los Angeles before a court full of spectators. The judge fined him $50, but suspended half of the fine. Due to obtain his discharge from the army air forces this week, Coogan was arrested while asleep in his car.

OFFICER KILLS WIFE'S LOVER; GIVES SELF UP

Madera, Cal., Sept. 24 [Special]—Army Lt. Claude Chipman, 26, who returned from overseas only a few days ago, was jailed here today after he shot and killed a man his wife said she loved.

The victim was Herman Blood, 26, a lumberjack. The shooting took place in a cottage owned by Mrs. Chipman in the Sierra foothills near North Fork, 50 miles east of here. It was the climax of several hours of discussion in which the lieutenant, his wife, and Blood had participated.

Wife Asks for Divorce

Chipman, who walked into North Fork and surrendered to Constable Tim Smith after the shooting, said he was at Camp Beale last week when he received a letter from his wife asking for a divorce. He obtained leave and went to the cottage to talk it over and decide what should be done with their son, Michael, 18 months old, he said.

"We talked about it until midnight, and I went out of the house to get some firewood," Chipman said in a statement to Deputy Sheriff Ray Andres. "When I returned I saw Blood kneeling beside the bed in which my wife had retired. I picked up a .30-30 carbine and fired two shots."

Held in County Jail

Chipman was brought to the county jail here and held pending the issuance of formal charges. District Atty. Everett Coffee said he questioned Mrs. Chipman and she told him she had known Blood before her husband went overseas and that she fell in love with him while the lieutenant was away. She was not held.

Chipman served in the China-Burma-India zone during the war and was in command of labor troops cutting the Stilwell road from Burma to China.

NAVY RESERVE OFFICERS GIVEN TENURE PLEDGE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 [Special]—Navy Secretary Forrestal announced today he has promised all reserve officers who transfer to the regular navy that they may resign later "at any time at the pleasure of the President," and that in no event can they be kept in service against their wishes later than Jan. 1, 1947.

President Truman authorized him to make an "unequivocal guarantee" of this nature, Forrestal said, to reassure reserve officers who are considering staying with the navy but hesitate against committing themselves for an indefinite period.

The guarantee applies to marine corps as well as naval officers.

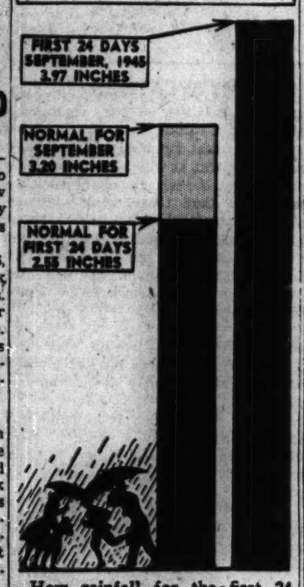
The navy is seeking to interest about 30,000 reserve officers in transferring to the regular navy and about 5,000 marine corps reserve officers in transferring to the regular marine corps.

Czechs Exchange Shoes, Textiles for German Coal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 24—Czechoslovakia, which today signed a new trade agreement with Russia, may be the first of the war torn countries to restore its industry and agriculture. The Russo-Czech pact provides for the export of Czech manufactured goods, such as textiles, shoes, and chinaware, in exchange for metal and agricultural products and 250,000 tons of German coal, the first consignment of which has already been sent to Czechoslovakia.

Too Much Rain



How rainfall for the first 24 days of September has exceeded the normal amount for the entire month.

The northern Illinois corn and soybean crops received another setback from week-end rains. A total of 2.05 inches of rain was recorded at Chicago airport during the 62 hour period between midnight Friday and 2 p. m. yesterday. Farm fields were saturated and corn plants were dislodged.

Northern Indiana and eastern Iowa also had heavy rains but there was little in the southern parts of Illinois and Indiana.

A. C. Johnson of Geneva, Kane county farm advisor, said yesterday that northern Illinois farmers are worrying that a continuation of the cool, wet weather will delay the maturity of corn and soybeans, leaving them in danger of frost damage. Cook and Kane county farmers say their corn needs at least 15 days of dry, warm weather before frost time, and soybeans need about 25 days of curing weather.

O. T. Lay, in charge of the Chicago weather bureau, said yesterday there is no immediate danger of frost in this area. He said there may be light showers again this afternoon or evening but fair weather is probable by tomorrow.

STRIKING GARY PUPILS VOTE TO RETURN TODAY

Several hundred striking white pupils from Gary's Froebel High school voted yesterday in Slovak hall, Gary, to return to school today to qualify for attendance at a meeting with the school board tonight in Horace Mann school. Another meeting of the pupils has been scheduled in Slovak hall tomorrow. Chief of Police Millard T. Matovina of Gary said he will provide ample police protection at the school to obviate possible clashes between white and Negro pupils. The striking pupils demand segregation of the Negroes.

JURY SELECTION BEGINS IN VAULT ROBBERY TRIAL

With indications that the tedious process may consume several days, the selection of a jury was started yesterday before Judge William J. Lindsay in criminal court for the trial of Patrick [Patsy] Flaherty on a charge of robbery in connection with the $2,000,000 looting of the E. H. Rumbold company vaults at 621 E. 119th st. Jan. 19. The state, mindful of the jury that acquitted Flaherty and another defendant, Willie Niemoth, in July, questioned each venireman closely. Flaherty, Niemoth, and Llewellyn Morgan have been granted separate trials under new indictments, which carry habitual criminal counts.

. . . A telephone without a directory is like a train without a time-table or a ship with unknown ports of call. That's why we take pains to make all our telephone books as accurate, complete and easy to use as possible.

There are more than a hundred different telephone directories — totaling 1,875,000 copies—serving the communities in which Illinois Bell operates. In these directories thousands of changes are made during each year. It keeps a large staff busy full time checking and rechecking the names, addresses and numbers, so that you can reach the telephone you want in your community without delay. Actually, these directories—containing a million and a half listings—are 99.95% accurate!

Every detail of the telephone directory is planned for efficiency. Special paper and special kinds of type work together for readability. Special non-carbon ink is used for most copies so that the old paper can be washed for re-use in new directories. Each year about 2,500 tons of paper are salvaged in this way from Illinois Bell directories . . . a particular advantage now during the wartime paper shortage.

In brief, we do our best to publish for you the most useful telephone directories that can be made. It's all part of the job of providing the world's finest telephone service.

MacARTHUR'S ORDERS

The texts of the instructions sent to Gen. MacArthur on Aug. 29 and Sept. 6 have now been published. A reading of the memorandum makes it harder than ever to justify Acting Secretary of State Acheson's outburst directed against the general last week.

Mr. Acheson was enraged because Gen. MacArthur had said publicly that he would need no more than 200,000 regulars to rule Japan. This was supposed to show how insubordinate the general was, but the instructions sent to him didn't undertake to tell him how many soldiers he must have, and the charge, therefore, falls to the ground.

The instructions, it should be added, were, in the main, admirable. Fault might be found with the suggestion that the allies be given a minor role in the occupation. They contributed next to nothing to the defeat of Japan and it may be doubted that their representation in the army of occupation, even with token forces, can contribute anything to the political or military success of the operation. Exception can be taken, also, to the underlying assumption that the social, economic, and religious habits of a populous nation can be forced overnight into new and unaccustomed patterns by the conqueror's fiat. And, in general, it must always be remembered that it is far easier to write such a directive as was sent to Gen. MacArthur than to apply it. It is easy, for example, to say that Japan may have only enough heavy industry to supply her peaceful needs, but it is far harder to say how many tons of steel-making capacity satisfy the formula.

Still, the instructions can be described as admirable, at least in contrast to the mess that is being made of the occupation in Europe. The striking fact, however, is that Gen. MacArthur, far from making any protest against the orders issued to him, appears to be carrying them out wholeheartedly and loyally. The Japanese leaders suspected of starting the war and of atrocities against us and our allies are being arrested and will soon go on trial. The Japanese are being disarmed. Their economic organization is being examined with a view to reforming it. Rapid progress—far more rapid than was expected—is being made all along the line laid down in the instructions from Washington.

What, then, was the basis for Mr. Acheson's tantrum? We don't know, but we can guess. The state department wanted a big army of occupation in Japan because it wanted a big army of occupation in Germany. The department knew that if the army in Japan were reduced to the size actually required to maintain order the country would demand to know why a huge army was being kept in Germany, where the population was also docile. In fact, that is exactly what happened. A couple of days after Gen. MacArthur made his estimate public the promise of a corresponding reduction of our forces in Germany could no longer be delayed.

And why did the state department want a huge army in Germany? For no other reason than to strengthen our diplomacy in relation to the Russians. On the one hand the state department pretends that our relations with Russia are as cordial as they can be, and will be kept so; on the other hand the department has so little faith in Russian intentions in Europe and Asia that it wants to keep half a million or more American conscripts from their homes in order to block Russian ambitions in Hungary, Romania, and the other states which Russia has taken over or intends to take over. As usual, of course, the state department's policy is running parallel with British policy, and, as usual, the state department is asking the American people to pay the greater part of the cost of defending Britain's interests.

As usual, the American public is not being told the goals of American foreign policy. Ambassador Grew has said that the Japanese people knew more about their foreign policy before Pearl Harbor than the American people were told about American policy. Apparently our state department is continuing to do business at the old stand.

SCREEN FOR SLAVERY

The conference of foreign ministers has been engaged in depriving Italy of its remaining colonial possessions. This stripping of a vanquished country is nothing new in international affairs. The only innovation is that the colonies are to be administered under the international trusteeship system arranged at San Francisco.

Russia, which did nothing to defeat Italy, is nevertheless pressing for a trusteeship in order to play power politics more effectively in the Mediterranean. The Russian puppet foreign ministers for White Russia, the Ukraine, and Poland, who have not much more interest in the Mediterranean than they have in Latin America or the East Indies, have been accorded a voice in the conference.

That this international trusteeship system should persist in the face of the complete exposure of its fraudulence is symptomatic of the present devotion of the world to words as a means of screening and concealing unpleasant facts.

The United States is even going to report to the San Francisco league on its treatment of the people of Alaska and Hawaii, who, for this misguided purpose of international amity are to be regarded as second grade citizens, needing international protection, instead of full-fledged citizens of territories eligible for statehood, which they actually are.

Trusteeship is a fraud because it is designed to offer something which there is no intention of giving. There was a great deal of high sounding talk about freedom and the rights of man while the fighting was going on. The colonial powers of Europe have no intention of living up to these pledges, and trusteeship is designed to offer the shadow without the substance.

The colonial systems are to be perpetuated. No longer, however, will the colonial exploiters have to bear the odium alone. That is one of the nasty achievements of the new scheme. The grafters can still plunder at will, but instead of bringing down the force of world opinion on their own nations they are henceforth to be shielded behind an international body. Every one shares the blame.

The only American thing to do with colonies is to free them. It is intolerable that a country that won its own freedom by revolution should take any part in maintaining other peoples in slavery just because they cannot make modern firearms. Slavery applied abroad is a step toward slavery at home, a fact that has not escaped the New Dealers. In common decency, the American people must refuse to have anything to do with these schemes.

SERVICE ACADEMIES

We have at hand a letter from an organization which calls itself the Citizens' Committee for Retention of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. By the strangest of coincidences, every member of the committee is a citizen of the free state.

Actually, there is no question of not retaining the Annapolis academy. What the committee is trying to spike is a proposal in congress to establish one or more additional naval academies. The west coast is actively promoting such a project.

Even if it should displease the provisioners of Annapolis and Baltimore, we still think that national defense would be greatly enhanced by increasing the number of naval and military academies and by spreading them west of the Appalachians. The most favorable site for a second naval academy is at Great Lakes, where the major portion of the facilities are already built far beyond any peace time need of the navy for training enlisted men.

Naval warfare of the future obviously is going to be 50 per cent aerial. We already have the splendid air training station at Glenview, and the two practice carriers operating on Lake Michigan to train carrier pilots. The greater proportion of the navy personnel and, in our perhaps partial view, all of the best of it, comes from the landlocked states of the middle west, and that furnishes an additional reason for training future officers in this area.

The Annapolis committee quotes anonymous naval officers in an assertion that establishment of more than one naval academy would "result in competition between such institutions, inject sectionalism, and would seriously interfere with the esprit de corps of our navy." In fact, the Annapolis men in this war have set themselves up as a tight little clique, reserving all the juicier assignments and most of the promotions for each other.

The nation has to worry more about competition between the two services, arising from Army-Navy football games and other schoolboy jealousies engendered at West Point and Annapolis, than it has from any possible competition engendered by additional academies. There is no reason why Annapolis should train navy men alone and West Point army men alone. Neither does much in the way of military or naval training. They inculcate discipline and give their students a semi-technical education, which today is inferior to that available at the best civilian engineering school.

Interservice jealousies would die a natural death within a decade or so if Annapolis, West Point, and any other service academies that are established trained officers for the service of the United States, and let their graduates pick their branch of service, as graduates of West Point, within limits, have always picked the particular branch of the army in which they wished to serve. The young officers would get their specialized training in the service schools of their branch, which is where they get most of it now, anyway.

WHAT BIG FIVE?

The news department of THE TRIBUNE has been instructed, in the interests of truth, to refrain from naming the five permanent members of the San Francisco security conference—the United States, Russia, Great Britain, China, and France—the Big Five. They aren't. There is a Big Two—the United States and Russia.

The crippled, mendicant British empire is no longer a world power of the first rank. Prof. Laski, the brains of the British Labor party, admitted as much recently in Stockholm, where he was quoted as speaking of "second class powers, like Britain and Sweden." The professor got into hot water at home over that statement and now says that he was misquoted, and that he merely said that the Swedes might consider Britain a second class power like themselves. Whatever he said, he was right the first time.

Still less do France and China deserve to be considered world powers. The French have been so busy trying to be one, rattling the saber and making pretentious claims to spheres of influence, that they haven't even been able to put their domestic economy in order and keep their people from going cold and hungry this winter, 18 months after their deliverance, principally by our armies, from the Nazis.

The Chinese are more an amorphous mass of people than a nation. They were unable to defend their own land against an enemy with hardly a fifth of their population. These obvious facts should not be considered as detractions from the courage and will to fight of the British, the French, or the Chinese people. A mere will to be strong does not make strength. If it had, Mussolini might have made something out of the Italians.

We have banned the term Big Five because its constant use is a deliberate attempt, by reiteration, to impose a lie upon the American people. The Russians know the score. We should recognize it, too. Talk of the Big Five is an attempt to persuade the people of this country that they should defer to and even support nations of inferior power.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. Which one of these Ohio cities is the largest? Dayton Cleveland Columbus Cincinnati
2. Which one of these crimes carries the death penalty? Arson Larceny Mayhem Treason
3. Casey Jones is a name popularly associated with which one of these? Boom-boom Whir-r-r Toot-toot Clang-clang
4. A man who employed a "jimmy" in his work would probably be on the job at which hour? 2 p. m. Noon 2 a. m. 10 a. m.
5. Blood normally clots in which range of minutes? 1-3 min. 3-5 min. 5-7 min. 8-11 min.
6. Try to match the sporting terms listed in the left hand column below with the sports to which they appropriately belong. You are entitled to one point for each correct matching.

[a] Walk	[v] Football
[b] Coffin corner	[w] Horse shoes
[c] Free throw	[x] Tennis
[d] Lob	[y] Basketball
[e] Ringer	[z] Baseball

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points].

STORMY WEATHER

The pestilential behavior of the weather at Dyche stadium last Saturday and Wrigley field last Sunday was a great victory for the folklore of the equinoctial storm, at which meteorologists sneer. We hope that the wizards of the weather bureaus will note that these game-blighting manifestations of Jupiter Pluvius came about 12 hours before and 12 hours after the pin point in astronomical time called the autumnal equinox. That is close shooting, men. The wayward god who rules the atmosphere seldom comes closer to the bull's-eye.

* * *

After escaping from the deluge at Dyche stadium, this column recuperated on hot toddies, a hotter bath, and the Encyclopedia Britannica, which says:

"At the time of the equinox it is commonly believed that strong gales may be expected. This popular idea has no foundation in fact, for continued observations have failed to show any unusual prevalence of gales at this season."

* * *

This anonymous expert confines his attention to big winds, but equinoctial meanness does not limit itself to the Beaufort scale of wind velocities. It also pitches rain, hail, thunder, and lightning, and it served them all over the last week-end with a remarkable change of pace. Moreover, what about the hurricane that harrowed the coast of Florida a week or 10 days ago? The period of equinoctial storms has a spread of 10 or 15 days on either side of the zero hour, and the recent misery of Miami certainly fits into the picture.

* * *

The weather bureau forecast of last Friday night said: "Occasional showers and thunderstorms." This did not sound ominous, but when we looked at the moon we shuddered. There was a ring around it, of enormous diameter, which said, "Better eat that football ticket, for it's going to rain like Sam Hill." Chalk up another victory for folklore.

A STADIUM ROAR

Sing ho for the crisp autumn season!
Sing ho for the joys of the fall!
Sing ho for the advent of football—
The grandest old ball game of all.

But hélas! We also have with us
The stadium's supersnide pest—
The ass that kindles flames homicidal
In any true football fan's breast.

I refer to the brass-bottomed bumpkin
(With the ball on the 2 yard line)
Who, in spite of the plain-printed tickets,

Uranium vs. Geranium

After reading the results of the atomic bomb test out in the desert, I went to my old tutor in physics, Doktor Nucleus Schmalzgesicht, for the low-down. He said:

"Der surrounding territory suffers exceedinkly because congurrent congussions are released simultaneously, due to bi-segtional chenerative processes, vich are inaugurated ven der binomial axials untergo der familiar obfuscation of der osmosis.

"Infinide caution must be eggsercized at dis point by der byshtanders, because der nachural capillarian addraction, affected as it iss by der regurrent crudescence off der fuchsia, plunches vertically thru der cellular residium off der flux. Here der inherend anti-soshool nature off der uranium commences to asserd itself, and der eleggtrons, irridated by der inflamed neutrons, eggsercize der terrific yearning to attain egwality mitt der surrounding and contemporaneous components off der nuclear plasma.

"Anudder point: Vun must nod konfuse uranium mitt geranium. You see, geranium leafs behint it an elusive odor, vile on der udder hant uranium leafs—vell, it leafs nodding."

"Maybe, in udder vorts," I said, "geranium leafs an aroma, but uranium schmells."

NOW IT BEGINS

Now it begins, with a rustle here, a sighing there,
A purple haze in the tranquil air;
Brown leaves are scurrying down street and walk,
And around each corner with whispered talk.
There's a cry from the marshes, a shadow of wings,
Where deep conclaves are held with slow mutterings;
A horn blows lightly over the hills
And a longing for flight the wild heart fills.
Now is the time when the "wee sleekit mouse"
Gnaws in the walls of your small, snug house.
Now it begins when a leaf on the vine
Gleams with the splendor of hoarded wine;
When the creek reflects the kingfisher's feather,
Blue as the autumn's halcyon weather.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. E. W. writes: "My son is a private 1st class stationed in the United States. His wife gets a family allowance, and I would like to know if part of my allowance comes out of his pay. How much is taken from his pay for his wife? How much for me if I get an allowance of $50 a month? Can you tell me what pay he gets monthly?"

The pay of a private 1st class serving in the United States is $54 a month. If he has a wife he must contribute $22 of his pay toward her $50 allowance. When a soldier has a class A dependent [wife] to whom he is contributing $22 and a dependent parent, he must contribute an additional $5 toward the parents' allowance.

S. L. asks: "Can you give me some simple advice about how to get a GI loan? I have a copy of the law, but it all is so complicated. I want to get a small farm."

Your first step is to find the farm you want to buy, then find a bank or other agency willing to lend the money to you. After you apply for the loan the lender will help you apply for a certificate of eligibility from the veterans' administration. After certification you may borrow up to $4,000. The government will guarantee repayment of half of what you borrow and will pay the interest on the guaranteed portion the first year. You may not pay more than 4 per cent for the borrowed money, and you will have to have the approval of an agricultural advisory committee, which must be satisfied you have sufficient experience to assure you of a reasonable chance for success and to pay off the loan.

DISORDERS OF THE RETINA

THE eyes can be compared to a camera but differ in one respect. Instead of film at the back, we have a thin membrane, the retina. This marvelous structure is not as simple as one might believe. It is composed of eight layers, each microscopic in size and having a definite function. In the furthermost portion are found the tiny rods and cones and, when light strikes these cells, a photochemical reaction is set up which is transmitted to the brain where it is registered as an image.

The retina contains many arteries, nerves, and veins which can be seen readily with a special instrument called the "ophthalmoscope." These channels and nerves are not unlike those in other parts of the body. Thus, if we suspect generalized arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, a peek at the retina may be extremely useful. If the vessels here show changes, we can assume that those elsewhere are affected likewise. In certain conditions such as Bright's disease, diabetes, or hypertension, the physician may obtain information relative to the amount of damage that these ailments have wrought on the vascular tree. He is also afforded a good opportunity to study the progress of the malady.

Occasionally the circulation to the retina is impaired either by narrowing or plugging of the blood pathways. Should the flow be dammed by a clot, complete blindness may result. The individuals may not even be able to see light. If only a tiny branch is attacked, interference will be limited to a smaller area. In treating such patients every attempt is made to open the vessel as wide as possible. When the main vein is involved, in contrast to the artery, glaucoma may result in addition to visual impairment.

In the presence of arteriosclerosis we can actually see that the arteries in the retina are narrowed and extremely tortuous. That they are hardened is obvious for, wherever they cross a vein, a noticeable nicking occurs. When marked, hemorrhages and swelling may also follow. The wear and tear on vision will depend upon the severity of the local disorder. Should kidney trouble or high blood pressure be exhibited, spasms may add insult to the already weakened arteries. Only by treating the causative factors can relief be expected. When the blood pressure is controled, eye symptoms improve.

Now and then the retina appears to degenerate and pigment is scattered thruout the region. One of the characteristic symptoms is night blindness but every individual with this defect is not afflicted with degeneration, as deficiency of vitamin A may be responsible. The field of vision is limited just as if blinders were placed on each side of the eyes, or we were looking thru a tube. Deterioration may begin in early life, but it usually takes years before there is a noticeable loss of sight.

Sometimes the retina becomes detached or separated from the rest of the organ. Among the first symptoms is a sensation as tho a dark cloud had descended before the eyes. Others suffer from flashes of light and, in severe cases, total blindness ensues. In the past this affliction was considered hopeless, but favorable results have been reported in certain cases which are operated upon early.

STRETCHED TUBES

M. A. H. writes: What is bronchiectasis? A friend has it and sometimes she feels quite ill.

REPLY

Inflammation of the tiny bronchial tubes, which leads to weakening and dilatation. Sputum collects in these widened spaces. As a result, large amounts of this material are coughed up. In many cases the disorder is chronic and resistant to treatment.

EAT

When Yang Meets Yin

[For Frère Jean.]

O, the Yang is male and positive,
And bright as the morning sun;
And all that's good he'll gladly give.
So there's my song begun.

But negative, dark, and bad is she,
The desperate damsel, Yin;
She is popularly supposed to be The Isotope of Sin.

Well, Positive He and Negative She,
When equal to each other,
Are canceled out, as you'll agree,
If you know your physics, brother.

And Evil's controled by Virtue;
And when the ledger is read a-right,
The balance sheet won't hurt you.

That's all I know of the Yang and Yin—
Nor would I be so unwary
As to state [for fact] what's not found in The Webster dictionary.*

Censor Caught Napping?

[Excerpts from a letter received in Oak Park from a lad on submarine duty in the south Pacific].

Dear Dad: From now on bear with me as I try to think of things not to write.

Have you given sufficient thought to the Aspidastria? It is phenomenal and should receive the same merciless knife and salt treatment originated by the Romans in their destruction of Carthage.

However, the situation is far more ominous than you realize. We have not only the terrifying Aspidastria to cope with, but now an immense Strickusdunkus threatens our very existence.

Unlike the more understandable Aspidastria, this new monster defies description. About all I can say to express my utter growth-stunting horror for this ridiculously inhuman yet magnificent obstruction is that it abhors pretty things and is so repulsive as to completely remove any inhibitions we might have had about using salt on our waffles, pouring syrup in our boots, pulling nails with our toes.

Now this Strickusdunkus comes along, cold, relentless as gravity and really just awful. But must we serve this ill-shapen mass of expanding stuff? I say, 'No' . . . We shall seek it out and destroy it, no matter how much we face, with so little . . . Still with me?

The Man-Made Element

Beware of Element Ninety-four,
For it's turbulent, unstable;
Designed to make the earth run red,
It's the Ultimate Uninhibited
Of the Periodic Table.

For, O, Plutonium's nucleus
Has never yet been quiet;
It will fume and fuss
Until—furious—
It wakes Atomic riot.

Ah, you only need a pound or so
Of Element Ninety-four;
It's the one the Old Gods never made,
Because their hearts were sore afraid.

Snappy Landing

While B. G. Davis, of Ziff-Davis Publishing Co., was in Brazil, a local transport plane, carrying two passengers from the interior, overshot the airfield and crash-landed several hundred yards away. The pilot's teeth were knocked out and he was unconscious when police arrived—but the passengers were gone. They were found later at a local bar and charged with leaving the scene of an accident. Accident, they said incredulously; what accident? Wasn't that the way airplanes always come down?

GET TO WORK!

Calumet City, Ill., Sept. 8—All this silly twaddle about unemployment makes me angry and disgusted. Go to a department store and try to find some one to take your money and wrap up the goods you need—no help; go to a grocery and stand in line—no help; go to the farms—the harvests are rotting on the ground—no help. Try to get a plumber; try to get a maid; go to the steel plant where I am employed—no help for the mill; everywhere business and farms are crying for help and it is a cry of distress.

I need a new gas range, I need a new refrigerator, I need a new electric iron. My friend has none. I need new plumbing fixtures, I need repair on my house, I need a new car, I want a new house, I need new clothing, I need better food and more of it—and you had all better quit griping and get busy and make the things we all need so badly and get busy in the stores and sell what we already have. I am tired of waiting in line for service. I am tired out going without the things I need—and you had better do it quick before you upset our economic equilibrium and throw us into another depression. G. L.

CAN'T SHELTER HIS SON

Chicago, Sept. 21—The war is over, and almost every one is back on a normal basis, except the property owner, or landlord. Ninety per cent of home owners bought their buildings with life savings and at much sacrifice, but still we are treated like little children, and governed by a Hitlerite system, the OPA.

My three sons are in service. One will be crippled for life. My second son's wife and two children have been making their home with me, under very crowded conditions, as we only have two bedrooms and my wife and I have to sleep in the basement. This son will be discharged in about four weeks from the air corps and he would like to have my upstairs apartment for his family, and also, as I am getting old, he would be a great help to me. I petitioned the OPA that my son and family might have decent living quarters on his return, but they replied that I cannot evict a tenant for my son.

DISGUSTED TAXPAYER

THAT'S A BIG CAN

Chicago, Sept. 18—I notice that Ald. Waller [43d] suggests that violators of the garbage can ordinance be fined.

I think he needs to be enlightened on the subject. I am a home owner and have a garbage can, too, but inasmuch as garbage is picked up once every three weeks, or once a month, I must of necessity dump the garbage out into the alley. If not, I'd have to have a can the size of a garage to hold it until a pickup was made. He ought to check this matter with Ald. Rostenkowski [32d] in whose ward I reside. Why punish the home owner for an alderman's neglect. JOHN LEWANDOWSKI

WHY THE TRAINS ARE CROWDED

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 18—On Aug. 5, I, along with thousands of others, was declared surplus in the air corps and shipped into the corps of engineers without any knowledge of the transfer until the orders were received. Reporting on rush orders to Geiger field, Wash., from Grand Island, Neb., I sat around doing nothing for one complete month.

The corps of engineers decided that they had no need for me so I was flown with a hundred other men from Geiger field to Kirtland field, N. M., and transferred back to the air corps. After sitting around with nothing to do at Kirtland field for two weeks, I was transferred [without my knowledge prior to the shipment] to the service forces and shipped to this station. Today I was told that I would leave here for a new assignment at an early date.

It seems there is no pattern for us except that we must remain in service. No one has explained why we must remain. Just how much is expected from a man if he has three or more years service to his credit but only a short tour of duty overseas? SERGEANT

THE NAVY HOLDS TIGHT

Chicago, Sept. 17—My husband had planned on being home from Guam in January as he will have sufficient points for discharge in December. However, he writes: "I don't expect to be going home even in January now. I found out that they put all the 44 point men back to work and active duty. There were several hundred waiting in the receiving station to get sent back, but it looks like they won't be going back for a long time now.

"It sure is disgusting that the people at home don't do something about it. They don't need us out here, but they won't send us home. Even those with 44 points and over are put to work so they will have an excuse for keeping them, even tho there is hardly any work that needs to be done."

ESCORTS FOR WAR BRIDES

Berwyn, Ill., Sept. 20—My brother, who has been in the army since April, 1941, overseas 41 months, 109 points, wrote Aug. 12 from Manila saying he was leaving for home any day. A buddy of his called today to deliver a message from my brother. He and eight other men of his company were detailed to go to Australia to pick up and escort war brides to this country. This probably means at least another month's delay in his returning to the states. Incidentally, he has a little lady just as anxious to see him as the Australian brides are to see this country. M. [Continued from first page] creased the hourly wage scale. Union spokesmen said its effect was to reduce the take home pay from $30.15 a week for 46 hours to $28.05 a week for 40 hours.

Two employer groups, the realty advisory board of Labor Relations, Inc., and the Midtown Realty Owners' association, took issue with the union assertion that the ruling would lower take home pay. They said the WLB award was one favoring the employes, and their counsel wired an appeal to WLB to punish the strikers by withdrawing union security and retroactive pay clauses contained in the award.

Strike to Continue

After a conference with the regional war labor board, union officials said the strike would continue until workers were assured there would be no cut in their take home pay. The employer groups refused to attend the conference, asserting there was no point in their attendance because the unions were striking against a WLB directive.

To make the conference possible, the union ran a special elevator to the RWLB offices on the 17th floor of a midtown building.

The first area hit by the strike was between 14th and 41st sts., but the walkout spread rapidly south to the Battery and north to 59th st.

Some firms tried to maintain a semblance of business routine by ordering key men to their desks in advance of the strike and telling them to bring lunch. Two foresighted television engineers checked into their 85th floor office in the Empire State building equipped with cots, an ice box, and a three day supply of food.

The financial district was hard hit, and delivery of much negotiable paper was held up. Wall street messengers served some offices by relay systems on the stairs, with each messenger taking two or three floors, then passing his burden to another.

David Tacket, a recent Oklahoma City high school graduate, here on a sightseeing tour, climbed to the 86th floor observation deck of the Empire State building. He said it took him two hours, and he was "pretty tired."

Sept. 24, 1945.

THE reconversion program is providing good news for persons interested in air travel, radar, and other technological advances, but it will bring bad news for rats.

An eastern manufacturer has developed a device which traps rats by means of electronics. The trap doors close when the rodent passes thru an "electric eye" and the animal is killed in an automatic electrocution chamber. The claim for the new trap is that it will kill up to 80 rats in one night in heavily infested areas, with no resetting or other attention.

Ramp Leads to Death

The trap is placed on the ground over a rat runway and plugged into any electric outlet. The device is open at each end, so approaching rats are not suspicious of it. When they attempt to pass thru, they break the "electric eye" beam, which causes the doors to drop at each end of the trap. The only exit is a ramp which leads to the electrocution chamber. As the rodent is killed in this chamber, the body drops into a receptacle and the tunnel doors raise automatically, opening the trap for the next rat.

The trap is not dangerous to birds, dogs, cats, or other domestic animals. Larger pets cannot enter the electrocution chamber and birds are not active at night when the traps would be in operation.

Destructive Farm Pest

The common brown rat undoubtedly is one of the most destructive of all farm pests. Any advance in rat trapping is important to farmers. It is estimated that 60 million rats on American farms cause damages of 63 million dollars annually.

The major cost is in grain consumed. Farm scientists estimate that a rat eats at least 50 pounds of grain a year. In addition, these rodents kill chicks, destroy eggs, fruits, and vegetables, gnaw holes in grain bags, floors, and partitions, and cause fires by gnawing electric wires. Even these depredations are relatively unimportant compared with the menace of rats as carriers of bacteria and parasites which cause human diseases.

★ The GARDEN ★

MATURE cabbages will withstand the first frosts and in autumns of normal weather can be harvested from the row until early November. If protected against splitting [as discussed yesterday in this space] it is possible to delay the harvest of cabbages until freezing weather approaches.

Cabbages do not keep well in basement storerooms because they require cooler storage temperatures than do carrots, beets, and other root crops. The farm gardener prefers storing cabbages in a trench alongside the row in which they grow.

This trench may be dug now in preparation for the winter storage period. It should be at least 16 inches deep and wide enough to hold two cabbages side by side. Two inches of clean straw should be placed in the bottom of the trench. When a heavy frost is forecast, the cabbages may be placed upside down on the straw, then covered with the loose soil from the trench, leaving only the roots exposed. As more severe weather approaches, an additional covering of straw or leaves provides additional protection.

PICKETS QUIT STRIKE; STOVE PLANT RESUMES

Cribben & Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento blvd. announced yesterday that a strike of 500 members of the independent United Stove Workers' union had been broken with the return of 77 of the strikers to work. The strike began Aug. 27.

Last night goons threw bricks into three west side apartments in their attack upon three employes who returned to work. Only one hit an employe's home; the other bricks crashed into apartments adjoining those of two other employes.

Company officials said when the plant opened 52 workers entered and then 25 others left the picket line and went to work. The company announced later that it had resumed limited scale production in all departments for the first time since the strike started.

Frank Powers, president of the local union, denied that the strike was broken.

A demand by District 8, International Association of Machinists [AFL], for a maintenance of membership clause in its contract with the A. Finkl and Sons company, which has its general offices at 2011 Southport av., caused the AFL union to call 630 of its members out on strike in three plants of the company.

LIFT PRICE CURB TO END OIL TIE-UP SENATOR URGES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—No settlement of the strike bound gasoline situation can be reached until price controls are lifted, Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] asserted today.

Moore wrote War Mobilization Director John W. Snyder that, under present conditions, management is not free to bargain on labor's demand for increased wages.

"The employes are asking a 30 per cent wage increase," he wrote. "The release of controls on wages and salaries and at the same time a continuation of controls on prices place management in an impossible situation."

Stamp Issue Depicting Discharge Button Urged

The Disabled American Veterans yesterday telegraphed Postmaster General Hannegan urging the issuance of a postage stamp bearing a reproduction of the honorable discharge button worn by veterans of World War II.

2 RIVAL BOARDS CLAIM TO SPEAK FOR CIO COUNCIL

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

Two executive boards, each purporting to represent the Chicago Industrial Union council, city central body of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, met in separate meetings last night. Each claimed to be the official board of the CIO council, which represents 160,000 CIO members in the Chicago area.

The situation developed as an outgrowth of an election meeting held by the CIO council last Thursday night. Albert Towers, anti-communist president of the CIO council who had been reelected to that office, adjourned the election until next Thursday night when uncontroled confusion developed.

The communist faction among the delegates present, backed by delegates from local unions of the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers union, refused to allow the election to be adjourned.

Orders Election Held

Louis Torre, second vice president of the CIO council and one of the leaders of the communist faction, asserted, as senior officer of the council in the absence of Towers, who had left the hall with the anti-communist faction, that the election would continue.

The balloting then went ahead and when it was completed Torre announced that the coalition slate of officers backed by the Communists and UAW had all been elected.

Neno Cellini, whom Torre declared to be the elected secretary of the council in place of Michael Mann, anti-Communist who had held the office for more than two years, called the UAW-communist backed executive board into session at the Midland hotel last night.

Plan to Visit Washington

Torre reported the new board made arrangements to send a motorcade of CIO leaders and unemployed members to Washington, D. C., on Oct. 8 to petition congress for passage of full employment and $25 weekly unemployment compensation legislation. The board also made plans for a city-wide wage conference on Oct. 14 to organize a drive for a 30 per cent increase.

The anti-communist board members met in the council offices at 205 W. Wacker dr. Towers, who presided, sent a telegram to the other meeting, declaring it illegal, and he and Mann declined to release books and records to the other faction, at least not until the election is completed. Torre said a ruling on possession of the books would be requested from the national CIO, adding that his faction would not accept them, however, until they were audited.

Will Watch Election

Torre said his faction would send watchers to the adjourned session of the election meeting, which he termed another instance of "manipulations to split the CIO in Chicago."

Towers said the meeting was necessary to poll delegates who had not voted before 1:50 a. m., Sept. 21, when he adjourned the session.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 25—The Bill of Rights

ON Sept. 25, 1789, the first congress of the United States adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution, designed to satisfy the many persons who had criticized the document on the ground that it did not contain an explicit statement of certain basic rights. The states rejected two of these 12 amendments and ratified the others. These latter, known collectively as the Bill of Rights, became law on Dec. 15, 1791.

The Bill of Rights guarantees freedom of religion, of speech, and of the press, and the right of peaceable assembly. It protects the people against unreasonable search and seizure; secret or indefinitely delayed trials; forfeiture of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; excessive bail or fines; cruel and unusual punishments; repeated trials for the same offense, and other governmental and judicial abuses.

Our forefathers were determined not to allow to grow up among them an all-powerful government which might challenge their hard won liberties. The 9th and 10th articles of the Bill of Rights provide these protections.

The 9th reads: "The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

And the 10th: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

The two rejected amendments had to do with the size of the house of representatives and with the amount of its members' compensation.

MICHIGAN STRIKE PROBE ORDERED BY GOV. KELLY

Told Few Workers Favor Kelsey-Hayes Tie-Up

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24 (AP)—The state of Michigan entered Detroit's troubled labor situation today as a variety of disputes and lay-offs continued to keep 90,000 persons idle.

Gov. Harry F. Kelly

Asserting he had reports that "not more than 25 per cent" of the strikers at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company plants in Detroit favor the month old strike there, Gov. Harry F. Kelly ordered an investigation into efforts made to end it and the attitude of the 4,500 idle workers.

Asserting that the strike had been repudiated by the CIO United Automobile workers, Gov. Kelly said: "I am interested in finding out if it really is the will and wish of the majority of the strikers."

Causes 50,000 Lay-Off

The Kelsey-Hayes strike precipitated the lay-off of 50,000 Ford Motor company automobile production workers. Kelsey-Hayes supplied wheels and brake drums for Ford.

The strikers demand rehiring of three minor union officials whose dismissals for ejection of a plant foreman were upheld by the war labor board.

There are many among labor and management in the car industry here who believe most of the current strikes and lay-offs would end quickly if a settlement were reached in the Kelsey-Hayes dispute.

George W. Kennedy, president of Kelsey-Hayes, wired R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, today demanding that he "instruct employes of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company that their representatives are conducting a strike that is unauthorized," and adding:

"After our employes have returned to work, I shall, at that time, be willing to meet with you for the purpose of negotiating a written contract."

Whether the UAW demand for an industry-wide 30 per cent wage increase would be climaxed with a strike in one of the larger automobile producing companies remained uncertain today. The union will open wage negotiations tomorrow with Chrysler corporation.

Plan to File Petition

Norman Mathews, representing the UAW in Chrysler corporation, said tomorrow's conference would not delay the filing of a petition for a strike vote among Chrysler workers, variously estimated at from 90,000 to 120,000. Mathews said polls taken in several states Sunday among Chrysler employes showed an "overwhelming" majority in favor of a strike vote.

The UAW's Ford department already has announced that a strike vote petition among the 109,000 Ford employes thruout the country will be filed "about Oct. 1."

A Chrysler spokesman said tomorrow's conference with the union was arranged "more than a week ago," while General Motors and Ford said only, "No statement."

Strike Vote Set Oct. 24

In Washington the national labor relations board today fixed Oct. 24 as the date for taking a strike vote among 325,000 General Motors employes after receiving a union request for the poll.

The board late today announced receipt of a telegram from Walter Reuther, UAW-CIO president in charge of the UAW negotiations at General Motors, declaring that a dispute existed and asking for the vote. The G. M. employes are located in 96 units scattered thruout the nation.

They will be asked this question, despite the end of the war:

"Do you wish to permit an interruption of war production in war time as a result of this dispute?"

Formal Demand Served

Each of the industry's "big three" has been served with a formal demand for 30 per cent wage increases. In presenting the demand to General Motors, Reuther proposed that the corporation take the lead in bringing about an industry-wide conference on the wage issue.

Reuther offered to "waive direct negotiations" with GM if such a conference were arranged. This brought no response from General Motors.

Reuther disclosed last week, however, that there had been an exchange between General Motors and the union on the wage issue. He made public a communication in which he asked a written counter-proposal from the corporation before agreeing to a formal meeting. Neither union nor management has indicated whether such a proposal has been made.

Meanwhile, Chrysler officials reported a large percentage of absenteeism at the Dodge truck factory, where 2,200 employes were told to report today after being sent home Thursday because of supplies shortages.

About 800 workers reported Friday, the spokesman said, but pickets kept them out of the plant. No picketing of the Dodge truck plant was reported today, however. There was no explanation for the absenteeism.

Gov. Kelly declined to indicate what he might do if he finds that a minority of the Kelsey-Hayes workers are responsible for the strike in that plant.

"I am, however, very definitely antagonistic toward minority rule in any walk of American life," he said.

Kelly said he had urged President Truman to hold a projected national management-labor policy conference "as quickly as possible."

ON U. S. LABOR FRONT

Other developments on the nation's stormy labor front follow:

EAST ALTON, ILL.—The Western Cartridge company plant was closed by a strike of members of the AFL International Association of Machinists union who asserted the company had violated seniority agreements. About 5,000 were made idle.

LANCASTER, PA.—Six persons were injured in trying to go to work at the strike bound Conestoga Transportation company, operators of bus and trolley lines, thru a line of 400 pickets. The president of the AFL local involved was arrested on charges of assault and battery.

The head of the central labor union said representatives of all Lancaster county AFL unions have approved a "holiday" if the company fails to accept a six point plan to end the 24 day old dispute. Employes struck when the company refused to grant a new contract it termed "self perpetuating."

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—For the second time within a week, nearly 15,000 CIO workers went on a sit-down strike at the New York Shipbuilding company, where eight navy ships are under construction. Both stoppages were over the discharge of a number of men accused of loafing.

PORTLAND, ORE.—An AFL lumber strike shut down nearly 500 sawmills, logging operations, and woodworking plants, and made 60,000 workers idle in the northwest. An estimated 85 per cent of the lumber industry in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana was tied up. The strikers seek to force negotiations of wage demands on an industry-wide scale, with a minimum wage of $1.10 an hour.

Hijacking Victim

A trailer truck loaded with 750 cases of liquor, valued at $37,500, hijacked Sunday night from an Interstate Freight system garage at 14th and Miller sts., was found abandoned yesterday at 57th st. and Archer av., where the truck broke down.

The liquor and truck were hijacked by three men. Two of them, one armed with a revolver and one with a shotgun, kidnaped the garage watchman, Leonard Howe, 37, of 3122 Oak Park av., Berwyn, tied his hands behind his back, held him prisoner for three hours, and then released him at La Vergne av. and Lexington st.

Howe walked to a lighted house at 4943 Polk st., the occupants of which untied him. He then notified police.

GAS CONFERENCE GATHERS WHILE SUPPLY EBBS

Gasoline was still available in Chicago yesterday, altho many other major cities in the nation were suffering from a motor fuel famine caused by the oil workers' strike. All Chicago filling stations were open, but rapidly dwindling supplies in bulk plants were reported adequate for general use only until the end of the week.

O. A. Knight

Officers of the Oil Workers' International union [CIO]—which has called a nation-wide strike to enforce its demand for 52 hours' pay for 40 hours work—arrived here for government sponsored talks with a dozen major oil firms.

Opposition from Ohio S. O.

Industry observers were doubtful of success for the mediation parley, because the Standard Oil company of Ohio protested to the United States conciliation service that it was not willing to participate in any industry-wide negotiations. A similar attitude was taken by other firms to be represented at the hearings.

W. T. Holliday, president of Standard of Ohio, told the government that the strikes by the CIO oil workers "are in violation of contracts signed by both international and local CIO unions, and were called before any opportunity was afforded for a peaceful negotiation of the wage questions involved."

Eugene Holman, president of Standard of New Jersey, pointed out that only a few hundred of the firm's employes are represented by the OWIU, and that all plants are operating normally. Most of the employes have accepted an offered 15 per cent increase, Holman said.

Eight Calumet Plants Close

A similar offer has been turned down by the OWIU, as well as the independent union which represents 4,500 employes of the giant Whiting refinery of Standard of Indiana. The independent union, however, is submitting to arbitration its case for a 30 per cent increase and is keeping the refinery open. Plants of eight other firms, employing more than 5,000 persons, are closed in the Calumet area.

OWIU officers arriving here included O. A. Knight, president; E. Carl Mattern, vice president; A. R. Kinstley, vice president; E. C. Conarty, secretary-treasurer, and Harvey O'Connor, public relations director.

Seven Districts Represented

Other representatives include one member of the union's executive council from each of its seven districts in the nation; the senior international representative from each of the districts, and a rank and file member from each district.

The executive committee was scheduled to meet last night.

The mediation talks will begin at 2 p. m. in the federal building here. Chairman of the proceedings is Justice William L. Knous of the Colorado Supreme court, who will be assisted by two conciliation service commissioners.

Acute oil shortage in Cleveland, O., was further involved in a demand by AFL truck drivers for a 30 per cent increase.

Similar demands by the AFL truck drivers here are pending with negotiations set for tomorrow.

Boston, Mass., was affected for the first time when employes struck at Shell Oil company plants. Knight estimated that 25,000 oil workers were idle thruout the nation. Sixteen plants in Texas were closed.

VOTE TO INDICT COMBAT VET IN FATAL BEATING

Pvt. Leopold Prorok, 26, of 2029 Iowa st., a European combat veteran, was reported named in a manslaughter indictment voted yesterday by the grand jury for the fatal beating of Herbert Levens, 34, of 1040 W. 51st st., married and the father of three children, who had had dates with the soldier's wife, Loretta, 22.

The two men exchanged blows Sept. 17 in front of the Perfection Tool and Metal Heat Treating company, 1756 Hubbard st., where Levens and Mrs. Prorok were employed. Levens was knocked down twice and later died of a brain hemorrhage.

At the inquest, Pvt. Prorok testified he had gone to the factory to talk to Levens about his affair with Mrs. Prorok. The soldier said Levens swung first.

OLD DAN KILLS WRONG MAN; HE 'SHORE HATES IT'

The Object of His Hate Is Alive and Free

Independence, Mo., Sept. 24 [Special]—Dan Miller, 59, a dour grave digger of the Salem church neighborhood northeast of here, nursed a smoldering hatred for two years for the husband of a sister of his sister-in-law.

Dan Miller

Old Dan blamed this man, Jess Green, for breaking up the Miller home, a log cabin on the bank of the Little Blue river where the five Miller brothers—Dan, George, Oliver, James, and Ed—had lived for years in crowded contentment.

Two years ago Jess made a deal with the brothers whereby he and his wife moved into the log house, living in the basement. Jess' wife was a sister of Oliver's wife.

Some Family Trouble

The families didn't get along. Jess' wife accused George of molesting her and he was arrested and committed to a state institution as a mental defective.

Old Dan moved out, taking his brother, Ed, a cripple, with him. He built a shack in a corner of the Salem church cemetery, about a mile from the log house. Here Ed and Dan lived, and Dan brooded. He cut the cemetery grass and dug new graves as they were needed at $12 a grave. His resentment against Green grew.

Dan came into town Saturday and sat on the courthouse steps, telling Reid Turner, a neighbor, about his troubles.

"I'm sure Jess is out to get me," he said, "but I'm going to get him first."

Dan Is "Dead Serious"

Turner tried to calm Dan, but the grave digger was "dead serious," Turner said today, adding, "I could see Dan was queer."

Old Dan went to sleep in his shack Saturday night and was awakened about 5 a. m. by a noise on the highway.

"It's Jess a-comin' to get me," he confided to Ed. He buttoned on a hunter's vest, stuffed some shotgun shells into its pockets, and picked up his gun.

An automobile was parked on the highway. It looked like Jess' automobile. A man was struggling with a tire. He was of Jess' build. There were several children in the back seat. Jess had five children.

Victim Pleads for Life

The man at the tire, wounded, recognized his assailant and said, "Don't do it, Dan," then turned and ran as Old Dan rammed two more shells into the gun.

Old Dan pursued him to the rear of the car and killed him there with two more blasts from the shotgun.

Old Dan was in jail here today charged with murder, but Jess Green was alive and well. The man the grave digger killed was Jim Bridges, 43, of near-by Atherton, married and father of five children. With his family, he had been on his way home when halted by a blowout.

"I shore hate that I shot the wrong man," Old Dan said ruefully. Police wrote out his confession of the slaying and asked him to sign it.

"I don't read or write," he said, and added with a touch of pride, "nor drink, nor smoke tobaccy."

He signed the confession with an X.

White House Doubts That Truman Will Visit City

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The White House today expressed doubt that President Truman will be able to attend the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago next month. Charles G. Ross, press secretary, told reporters the President had accepted tentatively an invitation to address the V. F. W. but added that he thought he had canceled the trip.

HUNT DEFENDANT AT REOPENING OF TRIAL IN SLAYING

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 24 [Special]—A wide search was under way tonight for Rubin Shetsky, alias Wayne Saunders, a former Chicagoan, who disappeared while on trial here for the murder of Al Schneider, an organizer for local 544 of the AFL General Drivers' union.

His attorney, Thomas McMeekin, informed District Judge Paul Carroll Shetsky was missing when the trial was ready to resume this morning. Shetsky's wife told police her husband left their apartment about 7 a. m. yesterday after receiving a telephone call and that she had not seen him since.

McMeekin said he "wouldn't be surprised if he is found in a ditch." Tho expressing doubt Shetsky had met foul play, Police Chief Ed Ryan said he had received a number of anonymous telephone calls warning that if Shetsky is acquitted "his life won't be worth a nickel." Schneider was shot to death July 27 in the Casablanca night club, of which Shetsky was manager.

'WIDOW OF HERO' CONFESSES HOAX IN RAPE STORY

Miss Dorothy Daily, 22, also known as Almon, who last week told a lurid story of being kidnaped by two gunmen, held prisoner 17 hours, and raped, admitted to Morgan Park police yesterday that her story was a hoax. She admitted also that she was not the widow of an army flyer killed in action as she had first described herself.

The young woman, employed as a maid at 3552 W. 111th st., said she had spent last Thursday night in a hotel with Edward Hosek, 32, of 2632 S. 58th av., Cicero. She invented the attack story, she said, to hide her real whereabouts that night, and because she was still under medical care for the effects of a still-birth last month.

Miss Daily was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct and will appear in Women's court today. Police said they would book Hosek on a similar charge. In another case during the day a soldier's wife charged that a taxicab driver tried to molest her in his cab at Wells and Scott sts. He is being sought.

The SUREST Way to Postwar Prosperity . . . is

Let's Get Out of This Fog!

We keep talking—and listening to others talk—about the postwar economy. Flood of consumer goods . . . sharp increase in strikes . . . governmental interference . . . continuance of controls . . . phrases, warnings, mutterings, head shakings.

The one point on which virtually everybody agrees is that now this nation will need MORE merchandise of all kinds than ever in its history. Well, is that bad?

But we can't stop there. We mustn't assume, as some of us unfortunately do assume, that because the country needs goods those goods will sell themselves. They've got to be SOLD.

So—whatever surface conditions obtain at any given moment—the basic American job remains what it always has been, to SELL.

Not simply to sell people what they NEED, but what they WANT TO OWN. America didn't achieve the world's highest living standard just by supplying its NEEDS. If that had been the case, we'd still be writing with quill pens, and driving buggies, and dressing our wives in Mother Hubbards.

Because we created new wants, new demands, through SALESMANSHIP, the American people acquired the highest per capita wealth. Because, to satisfy those demands, Americans worked harder, used more ingenuity, gave better service, we became the foremost industrial nation of the world.

The AMERICAN SALESMAN Was Directly Responsible

Therefore, whatever the nations' representatives decide at council tables . . . whatever trade treaties are drawn up . . . whatever territorial allotments are made . . . the KEY MAN of the whole world's economic structure is the AMERICAN SALESMAN. HE must sell the merchandise that will replace what the world has destroyed, worn out and discarded; HE must create the desire for the as-yet-unheard-of products of tomorrow; on HIS efforts and ability rests our hope of postwar prosperity.

We need an annual income of 140 BILLION dollars.

The publisher of a well-known magazine recently told the National Manufacturers' Association that to earn this income we shall need Ten Million Salesmen. That's a big percentage of the SIXTY MILLION JOBS set as our goal.

O.K. Let's do whatever worrying we have to do about government, about labor-management relations, about transportation, about all the other problems besetting us. But let's keep clearly in mind that there is no point in making goods unless we SELL them. Until we have made complete and adequate provisions to MOVE our products, any other annoyances are merely fleabites—because if we don't SELL what we have to offer we're out of business.

Our FIRST CONSIDERATION is the job of SALESMANSHIP! Out of the welter of doubt and speculation this one fact shines like a homing beacon. Get on that beam!

Sales Training Imperative

During the war we didn't have to sell. We went fat and flabby from a rich diet of order-taking.

Now SALESMANSHIP comes back into its own, in a highly competitive market where the real salesman will reap the reward.

Maybe yours is a business born of war. Maybe you have had a cinch disposing of your output. Maybe you think that with reconversion it will still be easy.

Oh, bro-o-ther!

If you think that, make up your mind NOW that your product won't be a best seller . . . it'll be a COLLECTOR'S ITEM!

You, Mr. Big Industrialist, with a horde of representatives. You, Mr. Little Business Man, with two, or four, or a dozen salesmen. You, Mr. Individual—since everybody, regardless of his calling, is a SALESMAN. Just how much time and study have YOU given to this most essential of American occupations?

Well, if you're a manufacturer you have probably taken your salesmen through the plant . . . shown them how the product is made . . . pointed out its best qualities . . . recited the talking points of the competition and answered those arguments . . . given your salesmen kits and then sat back to slit envelopes and pull out checks. Periodically you've called the force in and had the sales manager give 'em the old fight talk. Now and then you've fired a man who wasn't producing—without ever asking yourself whether his failure to produce could possibly have been YOUR fault.

What have YOU done to make sure your salesmen know HOW to sell? Do you think it's enough that they know your products thoroughly? Is it enough for a doctor to know what's in the medical books? Or for a lawyer to bone up in the law library?

Isn't it ludicrous that so vital a pursuit as SALESMANSHIP is so largely left to chance? That salesmen take to the road week after week without ever having had any sound indoctrination in the basic principles of their business?

The untrained salesman has no place in postwar America.

That's partly because some of our leading industrialists have been doing some very heavy, to-the-point thinking about SALES TRAINING. A few of them have gone beyond the stage of talking and DONE SOMETHING ABOUT IT.

Foremost among them was Mr. Robert M. Bowes, late president of Bowes "Seal Fast" Corporation, whose tragic and untimely death in June took from American business one of its most energetic and far-sighted leaders.

Mr. Bowes, long an ardent champion of comprehensive, thorough sales training, who in his own organization practiced what he preached, had been working with Indiana University School of Business faculty members and sales executives on plans for a comprehensive sales training course. That program became a reality, and in recognition of Mr. Bowes' efforts and leadership it was named after him.

The Bowes-Indiana University Specialized Sales Training Course

Of great assistance in bringing the course to realization was the Indianapolis Sales Executives Club, of which Mr. Robert M. Bowes was a member.

The curriculum for this SALESMANSHIP course, which was developed by members of I. U. School of Business faculty, includes such subjects as Principles of Marketing, Business Economics, Business English, Accounting, Psychology, Poise, Business Speaking, and Voice Control. Instructors are qualified educators; training is practical and down-to-earth. This course was set up after consultation with successful SALESMEN who know what sales guidance should consist of.

If you have salesmen in your organization to whom you think such instruction should be given . . . if you know an already discharged veteran or other person seeking to establish himself as a salesman . . . write to Prof. Brooks Smeeton, School of Business, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, for full particulars.

Idea Has Nation-Wide Application

The Bowes "Seal Fast" Corporation has no proprietary interest in the specialized sales training idea. Neither has Indiana University nor the National Federation of Sales Executives Clubs.

Nothing would please us more than to see such a course given in every institution of higher learning in the United States.

We staunchly believe that by turning out better salesmen we not only serve the youth and the business interests of the nation, but we also serve every American citizen.

Not just the "vested interests." Not just the employer.

From an improvement in American sales methods and techniques EVERY AMERICAN benefits. The laborer, the clerk, the dentist, the housewife—EVERYBODY is made more prosperous.

Moreover, it is as fine a measure as we can think of to preserve the AMERICAN WAY. We're not waving the flag when we soberly and reverently say that it's the way in which we believe.

Now then. Why don't YOU establish a similar course in your own community? Indiana University will gladly give you all the details.

There hasn't been one penny of endowment or subsidy. Indiana University, a progressive, modern institution, quickly recognized its opportunity to be of even greater service to the nation.

Here is a call to EVERY AMERICAN interested in BETTER SALESMANSHIP. We have developed a program that WORKS.

Are you willing, as we were willing, to translate TALK into ACTION? Then take the ball and RUN with it!

Postwar prosperity isn't the obligation of any small body of Americans, whether in politics or in business. It's up to ALL OF US. Today's SELLING demands today's SALES TRAINING.

Let's ALL PULL TOGETHER for postwar prosperity!

SONS OF HOOVER, COOLIDGE RISE IN BUSINESS WORLD

Elliott's Case Turns Eye of Public on Them

Attention attracted to the activities of President Roosevelt's sons—particularly Elliott, whose loans to finance his unsuccessful business ventures drew a congressional inquiry—has aroused interest in the lives being led by the sons of other Presidents of the United States.

Herbert Hoover Jr., 42, elder of President Hoover's two sons, is a successful engineer, the head of four

After being graduated from Stanford and Harvard universities, he became a mining engineer and later a communications engineer for two aviation companies. In his early 30s his career was interrupted by a fight against tuberculosis that necessitated a two years' rest.

Firm Awarded "E"

Last year the Consolidated Engineering Corporation of Pasadena, of which he is president, was awarded the army-navy "E" for achievement in producing precision instruments for military service. Hoover also is president of the United Geophysical company, United Geophysical Company of Texas, and United Geophysical Company of South America.

Recently he has been working on various projects that include development of a spectrometer which analyzes hydrocarbons of petroleum in little more than an hour as compared with a week or 10 days of human computation formerly required.

Last year it was disclosed that orderly exploitation of much of South America's vast oil resources soon may be made possible thru exploration laws prepared by one of Hoover's companies. In 1943 Herbert Jr. received the Order of Bolivar from the government of Venezuela.

A Real Estate Operator

Allan Henry Hoover, 37, younger son of the former President, is a successful real estate operator. For the last several years he has been active in real estate and agricultural pursuits in central California. During the early '30s he worked for a time in the American Radiator company plant at Bayonne, N. J., and later as a clerk in a Los Angeles bank.

Last March, Allan sold his Greenfield ranch, near Bakersfield, Cal., which he had bought in 1934, for $452,000. The sale, he explained at the time, represented an adjustment in his realty holdings. He said he was retaining his interest in the Poso Land & Products Co. ranch near Wasco.

In May, 1944, Allan sold 1,260 acres near Chowchilla to San Francisco business men for a reputed price of $193,000. He is reported to hold considerable additional property in that area, which is famous for grapes, figs, and other California agricultural products.

Long a Railroader

John B. Coolidge, 39, son of the late President Coolidge, is president and treasurer of the Connecticut Manifold Forms company of Hartford, Conn., manufacturers of stationery forms for business systems, but has been a railroader most of his working life.

Upon graduation from Amherst college in 1928, when his father was in the White House, young Coolidge became a small salaried clerk for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. He worked steadily in the railroad's general offices in New Haven, Conn., until 1941. He had climbed up to the job of passenger agent for the road's subsidiary, the New England Transportation company, when he resigned four years ago to enter business for himself.

His business started with 15 employes and continued with that number during the war period but he is now planning to expand it. In addition to heading his company, Coolidge is treasurer of the influential Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut and is a director of the Purchasing Agents' Association of Connecticut. His social affiliations are limited to membership in the Farmington Country club.

Citizenship Denied

JOHN MARITOTE

Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court yesterday denied the citizenship petition of John Maritote, 37, of 7244 Prairie av., a motion picture projector operator earning $3.19 an hour, on the ground that he is not of good moral character.

Atty. Dewey G. Hutchinson of the immigration and naturalization service said Maritote had sworn falsely that he was an American citizen. Maritote is a brother of Frank [Legs] Diamond, gangster, now in federal prison on an extortion conviction, and is married to a sister of Al and Ralph Capone.

Judge Barnes also denied citizenship on ground of poor moral character to Paul Adams, 49, formerly of 3521 Jackson blvd., after Hutchinson said he had been employed as a blackjack dealer in Cicero gambling houses for five years.

Citizenship oaths were administered to 26 former members of the German-American National alliance after Hutchinson said the naturalization service recommended that their petitions be granted. The alliance leaders urged all members to be loyal to the United States after the attack on Pearl Harbor, he said.

BOLT HITS BARN ON FARM AND 4 OF 12 COWS DIE

Four of 12 cows in the barn of Harry Reichert, a farmer living near Richton Park, were killed yesterday by lightning which apparently struck a pipe in contact with their stanchions. The other eight cows were knocked to the ground and Reichert was severely shocked by the bolt. The barn is protected by lightning rods. Public Service company employes were investigating the possibility that the lightning struck somewhere outside the barn and traveled along the power line which furnishes current for an automatic milking machine, of which the pipe in contact with the stanchions forms a part.

RAILROADER STABBED BY MEXICAN

Phillip Denisa, 22, of 4509 Justine st., a railroad laborer, was taken to County hospital yesterday suffering from stab wounds in the chest inflicted by an unidentified Mexican boy who, he said, attacked him in front of 4541 S. Ashland av.

DELAY RELEASE OF RECORD IN ELLIOTT'S LOAN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Publication of the official record of the inquiry into Elliott Roosevelt's financial affairs was delayed today by the mechanical difficulty of preparing duplicate copies of the voluminous testimony.

Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] said the record, prepared by the internal revenue bureau, must be duplicated before it is filed with the house. He indicated this might not be completed until tomorrow.

More than 1,000 pages of heretofore secret testimony and documents were referred to the full house membership by the chamber's ways and means committee.

The evidence deals with the $4,000 settlement of a $200,000 loan to young Roosevelt by John Hartford, grocery chain executive. Also included is a recommendation of the bureau of internal revenue that Hartford be allowed to regard his $196,000 loss as a "bad debt" for tax deduction purposes. The committee concurred in this recommendation.

STRIKES START MOVE TO SHELVE JOBLESS BILL

House Group Would Wait Until Workers Return

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—A movement developed in the house ways and means committee today to put the unemployment compensation bill on the shelf until men now idle because of strikes return to work.

The committee held a closed door session, and word circulated afterward that there was even strong sentiment for killing outright the measure calling for liberalized pay to the jobless. Such action would be the severest congressional rebuff to President Truman since he entered the White House. The committee set showdown votes for tomorrow.

Knutson Gives Views

When the committee adjourned its afternoon session, Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, senior committee Republican, told newspaper men:

"The committee probably will take the position tomorrow that with thousands of workers out on strike it is impossible to tell what the unemployment situation is.

"We must wait till the strikers get back to work and the hundreds of thousands of jobs crying for workers have been filled. Until that is done it would seem the committee's best judgment to put aside the legislation for expansion of unemployment compensation."

Some members doubted that the group will accept even a modified draft of legislation passed by the senate, which Sen. Wagner described as greatly "watered down" from the program urgently requested by the President.

$25 a Week Plan Rejected

The senate rejected Mr. Truman's proposal that congress provide benefits up to $25 weekly but did agree to extend payments to 26 weeks at state rates, by federal supplementation of the jobless insurance programs administered by the states.

In addition the senate bill, now in the hands of the house committee, would blanket under unemployment pay protection some 2,900,000 federal civilian workers and 400,000 maritime workers; provide travel pay up to $200 a family for return of war workers to their homes or to new job locations, and return the United States employment service to the states within 90 days.

It was regarded as a virtual certainty that the ways and means group will not accept provisions for extending the duration of payments at federal expense, or the travel pay section.

There was some sentiment for extending the jobless program to protect certain federal workers and maritime workers, and there appeared no committee opposition to the provision for return of the employment services to the states.

Leading members of the committee have described the legislation as "a bill to promote loafing." Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] introduced the administration bill in the house "by request."

MILLION DOLLAR PHELPS ESTATE LEFT TO WIDOW

The will of Mason Phelps, 360 N. Ahwahnee rd., Lake Forest, president of the Pheoli Manufacturing company, 5700 Roosevelt rd., who died Sept. 2 at the age of 60, was filed for probate yesterday in Waukegan, disposing of an estate estimated at a million dollars.

With the exception of a $1,000 bequest to an adopted son, Hubbard, of New York City, the entire estate is placed in trust for the widow, Mrs. Louise Lamb Phelps.

At her death, 5 per cent of the estate, or not to exceed $100,000, goes to a step-daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Schriber, and a similar sum is to be placed in trust for an adopted daughter, Mrs. Jane Brooks Baldwin. The remainder is to be placed in two separate trusts for his children, Miss Marian Phelps, now a student at Vassar, and Mason Phelps Jr., now a private in the marines.

Hearing on the petition for probate was set for Oct. 15.

TAFT WOULD PUT BUDGET CURB ON FULL JOB BILL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Sen. Taft, [R., O.] tonight proposed in a statement that the "full employment" bill be amended to commit the United States to a balanced budget within six years. He plans to press for the amendment when the bill comes up in the senate tomorrow.

The principal controversy over the full employment bill revolves about the language. Taft, Sen. Radcliffe [D., Md.], and others want to modify what they contend is too strong a commitment that the federal government will assure a job for everybody who wants to work.

The measure now proposes in general that the government make up an annual "job budget." It would calculate how many people want jobs and how many jobs private industry will furnish. If there was a shortage of jobs, the government would take steps to create them.

ADMITS THEFT OF WARES FOR HIS LOVE NEST

When police picked up John Esposito, 22, of 2155 Polk st., in the silverware department of a loop department store yesterday, they found on his person a dozen spoons and two salt shakers.

Later, in his three room apartment, they found a truckload of chairs, lamps, books, sports trophies, cutlery, and cooking equipment. Esposito explained to Sgts. John Noonan and Howard Harder that he was planning to be married Oct. 20 and was trying to furnish a home.

Police said he admitted taking a quantity of furniture from the Royal Furniture mart, 2300 Roosevelt rd., using a pushcart. They said he also admitted robbing the Irving school, 2140 Lexington st.

2 POLIO DEATHS, 8 MORE CASES LISTED IN CITY

Two polio fatalities were reported in Chicago over the week-end, a 12 year old boy on the southwest side and an 8 year old girl in the vicinity of 1200 Cornelia av. This brings to 12 the total deaths caused by infantile paralysis, said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. Eight new polio cases also were reported in the city involving one girl and seven boys, from 2 to 14 years of age. This brings the total of cases reported since Jan. 1 to 160. There were 112 cases and 6 deaths during the corresponding period last year.

USE PROPELLERS AND JET ENGINES, AIR LINES URGED

Jet turbine engines if used with propellers hold rich promise for commercial airplanes operating at speeds of from 300 to 600 miles an hour at 20,000 to 30,000 feet altitude, R. D. Kelly, superintendent of development for United Air Lines, said yesterday.

Unlike the newest fighter planes, such as the P-80 "Shooting Star," propellers would be used with the jet engines to produce high thrust for take-off and climb at low speeds and altitudes in the aircraft Kelly foresees. He does not know of the gas turbine being in actual use with a propeller at this time.

Gas turbine engines without propellers, now manufactured by the General Electric company, do not appear suitable for air liners because they are efficient only at extremely high speeds at high altitudes and have greater fuel consumption, Kelly said.

The first jet plane flight in the United States was made Oct. 1, 1942. General Electric engineers say that the omission of propellers opens greater speed realms to these ships and simplifies repairs.

STORE MANAGER AT HARVEY, HURT IN CRASH, DIES

Clyde Mayberry, 26, who lived at 15500 Loomis st., in Harvey, where he was manager of an R & S Shoe company store, died in Ingles Memorial hospital, Harvey, yesterday of injuries suffered in an automobile collision Sunday at 147th and Des Plaines sts., Harvey.

Joseph Kotecski, 25, of 15322 Broadway, Harvey, a discharged soldier, driver of the second car, was injured and taken to the Vaughan General hospital. Charles Wolf, 309 W. 141st st., Blue Island, a coast guardsman who was riding with Kotecski, also was injured and taken to the marine hospital.

Andrew Drzewiecki, 51, of 3219 N. Ridgeway av., a dishwasher, was injured fatally early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile on route 41 in Northfield township. He died in the Evanston hospital. The car was driven by Joseph Lenzini, 37, of 1800 Pleasant av., Highland Park, owner of the Skokie Valley Laundry and Dry Cleaners, Inc., who said Drzewiecki dodged another automobile and darted in front of his.

INQUEST FAILS TO FIND HORWITZ DEATH MOTIVE

A coroner's jury was unable to decide yesterday the cause of the death Saturday of Theodore Horwitz, 42, of 537 Roscoe st., well to do real estate operator and secretary of the Belsan Plastering company, 407 S. Dearborn st.

His mangled body was found in the alley at the rear of the Eastgate hotel, 162 E. Ontario st., from which, investigators said, he had either leaped or fallen.

The body was found within an hour after he had left his apartment to place his automobile in a neighboring public garage. When he failed to return by midnight, his wife, Lillian, entered his bedroom and discovered he had emptied his pockets of his identification cards and money and had removed his jewelry. She then notified police of his disappearance but it was not until eight hours later that his body was identified.

ADMITS BURNING HIS STEPSON, 2, TO 'SCARE' HIM

Mt. Carroll, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP)—Charged with burning his 2 year old stepson by holding him over a fire to "scare" him, Paul Olwine, 31, Milledgeville farmer, was held in the Carroll county jail today on $5,000 bond, pending action of the November grand jury.

The boy, Larry Joe, burned on the legs, was reported out of danger today in a Freeport hospital, where he was taken Saturday by his father, Donald Ordnier, divorced former husband of Mrs. Olwine.

Olwine was charged with endangering the life and limb of a minor by burning him with fire, in a warrant signed by his wife, Amanda.

Chemist's Death in Blast Held Accidental by Jury

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death at an inquest yesterday over Wilfred F. Horner, 29, a chemist, 2320 Rosemont av., who was burned fatally following an explosion Sunday in his laboratory at 1455½ Devon av. Investigators testified they were unable to determine the nature of the experiment he was conducting or what caused the explosion. His wife, Lois Jane, said her husband had said he was "conducting the experiment for the government."

LA ARGENTINITA, FAMOUS DANCER, IS DEAD IN N. Y.

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Encarnacion Lopez, known as La Argentinita, a famous dancer, died tonight in Harkness Pavilion in Columbia Medical Center. She had undergone two major operations. Miss Lopez was considered one of the greatest exponents of Spanish classical dancing.

She made her last appearance on the American stage in April as a guest star at the Metropolitan Opera house.

Born in Buenos Aires, she was taken to Spain in her infancy and had made her debut as a dancer in San Sebastian at the age of 6. At 15 she was considered among Spain's greatest dancers.

She studied dancing and music at Seville, Barcelona, and Madrid. After leaving Spain she toured the world.

You will live forever in our hearts.
MOTHER AND DAD.

STEINBERG—Irving J. Steinberg. In memory on your 38th birthday.
It was bitter grief, a shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
You left us in your hurried way.
But trust in God, we'll meet some day.
LOVING DAD AND SISTERS.

WAGNER—Susie C. Wagner, who passed away four years ago today.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tried to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never:
The memory of all those happy days
When we were both together.
LONESOME HUSBAND.

Betrothal Told of Mrs. Peet to Lt. Watson

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Coronado, Cal., where they have been living during the war, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, formerly of Lake Forest, send word of the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Peet, to Lt. Walter Johnston Watson of the naval reserve, son of Mrs. Walter B. Wolf of Chicago.

Mrs. Peet, the former Narcissa Thorne, and her little children, Victoria and Stevie, have been living in Coronado for three years. The wedding will take place there as soon as Lt. Watson returns from the South Pacific.

Lt. Watson is a graduate of St. Mark's school and of Harvard university, class of 1936. His mother is head of the woman's division, Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, and chairman of the annual St. Luke's benefit fashion show, this year planned for Oct. 17 in the Medinah temple. Having rented their Winnetka home for the winter, she and Mr. Wolf yesterday moved back into their Lake Shore dr. apartment.

Mrs. Peet is the youngest of the Thornes' five daughters. She was educated abroad and made her debut in 1936. Mr. Peet was killed in an automobile accident in Florida. Lt. Watson has one brother, Hathaway Watson Jr., who is in Washington, D. C., with the state department, and one sister, Mrs. Watson McLallen.

Today marks the 44th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne and the 20th of another daughter, Mrs. G. Corson Ellis, and Mr. Ellis.

Other Engagement News

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston A. Bowman of Evanston today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Aveline Louise, to Carroll Benton Huntress Jr., son of Mrs. Margery G. Huntress of Evanston, and of Mr. Huntress of New York. Mr. Huntress just has been discharged from the army after serving 41 months overseas with the "Fighting 5th" infantry division. He recently was awarded the bronze star medal for evacuating casualties from the front lines while under heavy fire on many occasions. Among other duties, he was assistant to a chaplain of the 5th when it went to Iceland in February, 1942. Miss Bowman is a graduate of the Roycemore school and of Northwestern university. Mr. Huntress attended St. Alban's school in Washington, D. C., and Hobart college. The wedding will take place next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jackson of Kenwood av. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Edith, to Robert Skeens, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Skeens of Chicago and Sycamore, Ill. The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays.

Miss Jackson attended the Faulkner school for girls and Smith college, and was graduated from the University of Chicago last year. She serves as vice president of the Illinois Opera Guild juniors. Mr. Skeens, who is being discharged from the army, spent three years in the South Pacific with the signal corps.

Here and There

Being welcomed back to Chicago is Mrs. F. Osborne Elliott, who is spending this week at the Ambassador East with her little towheaded daughter, Christy. As soon as Lt. Comdr. Elliott is released from the navy he and his family will return to their Astor st. apartment. Comdr. Elliott, son of the Frank Rumsey Elliotts, is in the South Pacific. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott have been spending the summer at the Glen View club as usual, but will return to the Drake Towers next month. The younger Mrs. Elliott's mother, Mrs. Charles Henry Rammelkamp of Jacksonville, Ill., will join her Thursday.

When Mrs. William O. Gallery arrives in Hubbard Woods from Florida today for a visit with her parents, the George Sunderlands, she will be accompanied by her three little daughters, the youngest of whom is a month old, Baby Maureen was born Aug. 25 at Elgin field, Fla., where her father, Capt. Gallery, was stationed as navy liaison officer. He will report to the west coast early in October for further orders, but will join his wife and daughters here later this week for a short leave.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barrow Martin [Gretchen Fischer] are being congratulated on the birth of

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Do you want a beautiful lipstick shade you can wear with anything in your wardrobe? Look at a new one, in a clear, pure red that is right with every costume color. There are cheek rouge and nail enamel to match.

One of the first of the new lipstick colors— and you can have it in nail enamel and creamy cheek rouge as well—isn't a trick color at all. It's just a clear, pure distinctive red that looks wonderfully right with anything you might choose to wear this fall and winter.

It's restful because it doesn't change as you wear it, and you don't find yourself simply struck dumb, as often happens, because the red of your lipstick is clashing horribly with some other touch in your costume. It's smart too; it has a well bred conservatism that gives the final makeup the right elegance.

This is a new shade this year and one that we imagine will be tremendously popular: it's lively but not harsh, soft but not too dark. Fortunately, the texture of the stick in which it comes is satiny and fine. It's one of the best sticks on the market, product of a laboratory that knows exactly what the lipstick-texture score ought to be.

The nail enamel is just as wearable, just as universally flattering, not at all extreme but clear and clean. It is of a consistency that makes it easy to apply. The cream rouge is exactly the same shade as the lip rouge and polish, and it, too, is just about perfect in texture.

These neweomers can be bought separately, but if you want all three do look at the delightful little "book" in which they are assembled. Fashioned like an antique book, it's a sweet decorative piece that can do duty afterwards as a dressing table ornament.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Romance in the Office

A secretary
Quite contrary
To many folks' belief
You'll seldom see
Upon the knee
Of boss, or office chief.

Nor is she bent
With strong intent
On marrying the guy;
This common jest
I do detest —
'Tis nothing but a lie.

Her overtime
Is not sublime
With love or "pitching woo";
It's strictly work
And bound to irk
When others say "not true."

But sometimes when
She's bored, why then
Her mind, in fancy, tarries
Amid romance
That comes, by chance,
To other secretaries!

Another Candle on the Cake

Anna Wadsworth, the 98 pound little lady mentioned in this column on the events of her 84th and 85th birthdays, is still a white collar girl and continues actively on the same job she has held for nearly 20 years. Sunday they put another candle on the cake—she now is 86.

She enjoys excellent health, never misses a day at the office [despite Chicago's changeable weather] and walks to and from her home every day. Her position is with an insurance trade paper, where she meets clients; furnishes information, types, handles all the cuts and keeps a file of each issue of the paper. And, she runs errands to the bank or the postoffice just for good measure!

In her kitchenette apartment seven blocks from her office she likes to do a bit of entertaining for those who enjoy "home cooking." Her children and grandchildren are scattered now, but this youthful white collar girl keeps in close touch with them thru her letters—even finds spare minutes to clip sport items from THE TRIBUNE for her young nephew in service overseas. One of her great-grandchildren recently was selected by a vocational magazine as an outstanding high school pupil. That careers run in the family is indicated by the fact that this honor student is working part time at a bank during her senior year. But the high school white collar girl has something to live up to—a great-grandmother whose mind and hands are useful—whose heart is young and gay.

Talk on Housing Outlook of Future Set for Women

The women's joint committee on adequate housing will hold an open meeting at 10:30 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 4, in the Woman's City club, 410 S. Michigan av., at which Herbert Emmerich, director of the Public Administration Clearing house, will talk on "The Housing Outlook of the Future." As administrator of the federal public housing authority, Mr. Emmerich had charge of the federal war housing program under which 829,442 new homes were provided for war workers in strategic areas.

Mrs. Douglas Tells Need for Further UNRRA Aid

Immediate congressional action on the United States' second contribution to the United Nations' Relief and Rehabilitation administration, amounting to $1,350,000,000, or 1 per cent of the national income for the year ending in 1943, was advocated yesterday by Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas, congressman at large from Illinois. Mrs. Douglas spoke before a conference of Jewish women club leaders meeting at the Jewish board of education, 220 S. State st.

Ballet Notes

Three Chicago singers, Anita Braude, Eunice Lamont, and Marisha Data, have been engaged to sing "Frankie and Johnny" when the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo dances the Ruth Page-Bentley Stone ballet of that name during the engagement starting at the Civic Opera house tomorrow night. It also is announced that principal roles in "Concerto Barocco" will be alternated between Marie-Jeanne and Patricia Wilde and Ruthanna Boris and Dorothy Etheridge, and that on Thursday night, Oct. 4 only, Leon Danielian will dance Frederic Franklin's role in "Mozartiana."

King's Daughters Plan Benefit Literary Party

The King's Daughters, the organization headed by Mrs. Earnway Edwards which supports a home for girls in Evanston, has set Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 2, for its annual benefit literary party. Benefit Party for Hospital in Geneva Is Set

When the Geneva Community hospital started to find out how many friends it had made in the 20 years it has been serving the Fox river valley, it was surprised to discover that 600 women from the 13 towns and villages the hospital serves had registered as charter members of its new woman's auxiliary. Their first undertaking will be a benefit Nov. 8 in the Little Traveler and Robin's bookshop, across the street from the hospital.

The committee guarantees that Christmas shopping done that day will be doubly blessed: The shopper will find the perfect gift for each member of the family, and a part of every dollar spent will go to the hospital. In addition, women from the surrounding villages will produce and assemble their own specialties in good cooking and fine needlework. Luncheon will be served in the nurses' home. Open house will be held in the newly remodeled and redecorated hospital in the afternoon.

Members of the benefit committee will gather for luncheon tomorrow in the Little Traveler to make further plans for the benefit. The women on the executive committee include Mrs. Dan Gladstone Rickey, Mrs. Ralph Waldo Carpenter, Mrs. William McKinley Dunn, and Mrs. Bruce Hinman, all of Geneva; Mrs. Charles Howells Coffin Jr. of Wayne, Mrs. Ralph Larson of Batavia, Mrs. Eric Johnson of Lily Lake, Mrs. Paul Wolgast of Glen Ellyn, Mrs. George Hanson of West Chicago, and Mrs. Raldin Dressler of Wheaton.

The hospital received an unexpected $75 for its children's emergency fund from a pony and pet show held recently in Wayne, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Coffin. The event turned out to be a success in every way, with a prize for every child exhibiting pets.

THE QUESTION

WHERE ASKED

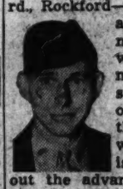
La Salle and Van Buren sts.

THE ANSWERS

Jean Borre, stenographer, 4720 Armitage av.—A college education is never a waste of time for a girl, even tho she plans to marry and keep house. However, if she doesn't use her training to earn a living it isn't essential. A man needs the education unless he can marry a girl willing to support him.

Eleanor Carlson, stenographer, 706 W. 66th pl.—If a man or woman wants to achieve success in business, college is definitely a shortcut. However, a person can certainly be successful without college. I believe it's more important that a boy attend college than a girl, unless she definitely plans to have a career.

Robert Smith, sales clerk, 810 Hyde Park blvd.—Most girls who have a college education manage to marry men who have had the same amount of learning. Altho a woman may never go out and earn an income to support a family, I think it's just as essential that her family have the benefit of her education.



Corp. Robert Ponsor, 324 Roscoe rd., Rockford—Education is a desirable thing but it isn't necessary that a housewife go thru four or more years of college so she can take care of a house. However, the man who is faced with earning a living is somewhat lost without the advantages afforded by a college education, I think.

Mike Natkovich, student, 1941 Grove av., Berwyn—Most of the girls who spend much time and money going to college never follow thru with their education. They don't depend upon it for a means of support. They probably would be just as well off if they got out into the business world a few years.

Mabel Sneen, student, 5707 Wentworth av.—I think it is. I'm going to school and I intend to study law. Even if I don't follow the profession I will have the training. If I were to marry and have a family I would be capable of taking care of them, should the necessity arise, more than if I just had a high school education.

Baby's Chief Delight Is Toy That Will Respond to Touch

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

You can never tell what is going to captivate a baby, one who is almost walking and talking. But one thing you can almost surely count on: Babies will like the thing which does something for them when they do something to it. Also contrary to the hide-bound ideas which are set forth for those who are selling toys, the babies of the age I am talking about like many objects that are small enough to fit into their hands, or of which they can get a good grasp, as well as some large objects.

Spools, a table bell, a small ball, a little can of their own baby-food, a walnut, a lemon—I could mention innumerable things from bedroom, living room, kitchen, or your desk, that they enjoy holding, feeling, rolling, or fitting into something else. For this age the toy department offers little; you must try to supply it from the "toy store" which is your home.

Often accident or observation will give you a lead. An instance with us was a two-quart aluminum milk can with a cover, which was given to us to send to our soldier in the Pacific.

One day when the baby was fretful we gathered up a dozen small things we thought he'd like, popped them into the milk can, put the cover on and gave it to him. For days he was absorbed, after having gotten the cover off, in plunging his sturdy little arm in up to the elbow and pulling out, he never knew quite what until he saw it!

And this morning, thinking I might make him a soft wool doll, I stopped writing, opened a drawer, and took out three or four balls of worsted—two bright blue, one orange and one henna-colored—and dropped them in my lap. His sharp eyes spied them and his hands were on them like a flash. I gave him the big henna ball, which he was soon bouncing, clutching, and rolling with delight.

No, you never can be sure what will catch a baby's fancy; but if you've been around them much, or if you're observant and interested, you almost always can supply them with something about the house that will give them satisfaction.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 24—If you saw Barbara Whiting in "Junior Miss," you can be certain she'll revel in Craig Rice's murder mystery with Peggy Ann Garner called "Home Sweet Homicide." The story's about a writer of mystery stories who brings up three children on her hair raising plots, and when there's a murder next door the kids all become detectives in their own fashion. Barbara as a snooping sleuth will be slightly like the late Alexander Woollcott, if he had ever worn curls. . . . Joe Fields, who wrote "Junior Miss," is now doing "Sunny Side of the Street"—the life of Jimmy McHugh. 't'll take in 20 years of modern music, including many popular singers and bandleaders Jimmy has worked with. . . . Clare Luce made news when she played "Candida" in Connecticut, I have a feeling Anne Revere and Freddie Bartholomew will do the same when they open at the Phoenix theater in Santa Monica. Anne, who's old enough to be Freddie's mother, plays Candida, and Freddie, who now uses a razor regularly, will be Marchbanks.

He's Top in Tops

Ann Sheridan is in town for a quick week. She has the top guy to fight her battle with Warners. He's former trust-buster Thurman Arnold, who ain't afraid of anything that ever walked thru a studio. . . . Merle Oberon and Lucien Ballard are off to New York Oct. 15 for a two-month visit. From there the Ballards go on to Washington, then join the Fred Astaires at Aiken, S. C. . . . Latest bet is that Lana Turner and Turhan Bey won't marry. She's now seeing Peter Lawford. The story of Lana donning a black wig, plus makeup, and going places with John Dall when he was here slays me. . . . When Raoul Walsh took the cast of "The Man I Love" on a fishing trip, he introduced Ida Lupino to that sport. Besides catching a sunburn, Ida caught a fish. She liked it so well, she has chartered a boat for her vacation. . . . Since Red Skelton has been in the army, his wife, Edna, opened an office and hired two secretaries to handle his fan mail. Can you beat it! . . . Marjorie Main, after listening to Arthur Blake's takeoff on her, said, "Land sakes! I'm funnier than the critics said I was."

A New Star! By Hecht

Ivan Kirov, newcomer signed to play a leading role in Ben Hecht's "Specter of the Rose," intrigued Ben no end by telling him he didn't want to act, but wanted to be let alone to continue his sculpturing and painting. He's quite a lad—six feet two, and was backstroke swimming champion at Southern California under the name of John Kaye. He's crazy about music and ballet, and djd a little acting in a road company of "Petrified Forest." Ivan studied geological engineering in college, and from the look of him, he'll give everything he's got to any job he tackles, so it may be that Hecht has a new star. . . . When Richard Greene completes the run of "Desert Rats" in London, he'll return to 20th Century, where he was under contract before he went to war. . . . Hedy Lamarr tells me John Loder takes off for Paris in January to do a picture. He'll also see whether his apartment there is still intact. . . . Douglas Montgomery enlisted in the Canadian army five years ago, then took time out to make "The Way of the Stars" in England. He's out of uniform now and will be heading home. . . . Edmund Lowe made a terrific hit in the Edmund Goulding play, "The Ryan Girl," which opened in Philadelphia.

Two Down, and Two Errors

I was struck by Fred Waring's chatter the other morning when he said some years ago he auditioned a comedian. His sponsor didn't think the comedian was funny, so he auditioned another with like result. The sponsor bought Fred's music but not the comedians. "However," said Fred, "those two boys have done pretty well on their own. They were Bob Hope and Jack Benny." . . . I don't know how Charles Bickford gets such deals. He's already being paid for 'Desirable Woman" while waiting for Joan Bennett to finish "Scarlet Street," and she'll be weeks and weeks.

Pungent Playgoing Salts Season as "Anna Lucasta" Takes Possession of Civic

"ANNA LUCASTA"

THE CAST

Katie.....Sadie J. Browne
Stella.....Rosetta LeNoire
Theresa.....Georgia Burke
Stanley.....John Proctor
Frank.....Frederick O'Neal
Joe.....George Randel
Eddie.....Ralf Coleman
Noah.....Alvin Childress
Blanche.....Alice Childress
Officer.....John Bonlo
Anna.....Hilda Simms
Danny.....John Tate
Lester.....Duke Williams
Rudolf.....Early Hyman

What more could a reviewer ask than to be out of town when "The Overtons" opened and closed, and to get back just in time to catch "Anna Lucasta," that pungent adventure in playgoing that salts the new season with what to my fond eye and ear is an unmistakable hit at the Civic? Such luck can't last, but "Anna Lucasta" can. In fact, I don't see how it can help lasting. It's a soundly entertaining play with a punch, sharply written, tautly directed with plenty of elasticity at the seams, and for the most part it is acted so well I don't quite see how John Wildberg placated New York with substitutes when he brought us all that remains—and that is the solid core—of the cast that scored such a Broadway success a full year was not enough to satisfy the demand for tickets.

One, and only one, of the remarkable things about "Anna Lucasta" is that it is a play about Negroes that might just as easily be a play about white people. As you know, it was written about Pennsylvania Poles, and rewritten a little before it slipped into Harlem and then into fame. It is a play of character, not caricature, tho I am not sure Rosetta Le Noire always remembers that when she stabs shrill venom into the lines of Stella. A man back of me laughed with the rest at one of her outbursts, then admitted ruefully, "I didn't understand a word she said." That was so much an exception it stood out like a sore thumb on a strong hand touched with tenderness and cupidity and rapacity and violence, a human hand rich in wry humor, blighted with a hint of incest—the black hand that holds the smouldering turmoil that is "Anna Lucasta."

Philip Yordan, who wrote it, seems simply to have eavesdropped on life and set down what he found. In less honest hands, his play might have been the cheapest melodrama, and in less skilful ones, it might have turned into a treatise on what constitutes decency. But he just tells you the story of his girl of the streets, driven from home by an unnatural father and brought back by conniving relatives who want to use her as bait to catch the boy from the country who has $1,000 in his pocket. He gives you a love story of unexpected delicacy, with a tender love scene the like of which Negroes have not acted on the stage before, and not too many white people, either, because that kind of theater is a scarce commodity. And in the end he gives you a hope that love may win out, after all. It isn't a phony ending, just a gleam in what without it would be too deep dusk.

As Anna Lucasta, Hilda Simms gives a glowing performance, racy, humorous, tender, and shining. A beautiful girl in the full sense of the term, she has the easy way of those born for the stage. Frederick O'Neal as the hulking brother-in-law is her rival for honors, a brutish bully who understands comedy and has a touch of rue about him that can bring the house down when he loses a roll of conversational dice. Early Hyman does a deft job as the country boy who went to school, and Alice and Alvin Childress give sharp authenticity to the Brooklyn dive, the one as a floozey who hangs on by none too sharp wits, the other as a bartender Saroyan himself might envy. Not all the others are in that class, but they add up to a remarkable evening of theater worth remembering.

Dressmakers Reconvert to Frilly Things

BY REA SEEGER

There's a definite wave of reconversion from tailored slacks and house coats to frilly, very feminine hostess and tea gowns. And lots of people are cheering for the turnback.

Fall showings of these luscious trifles are well worth the trip to town. The fall and winter brides-to-be are reveling in delicate, pastel tinted, tiny flowered brocade house coats in the feminine manner. One with a heart shaped hip pocket is sentimental enough to please all brides and their respective bridegrooms. Delicate pale blue brocade sprinkled with tiny pink flowers, or that in reverse, tie with the lustrous satin padded and quilted robes for popularity.

Lace trimmed heavy satins in delicate tints [there are some vivid colors, too] are most appealing in silhouette because of the ruched lace all around the lower hem, on the cuffs of the sleeves, and around the collar or necklines. All-white creations are so bride-like many shoppers will hesitate to buy one, but the all-whites are decorative charmers hard to resist, trousseau or no. And many more women than formerly wear white instead of pastels or more brilliant colors.

But there is plenty of color for the shoppers who demand not only bright but unusual shades. For instance, a stunning hostess gown of pebbled crepe. It ties with a sash belt at the side, has three quarter length sleeves [narrow and fitted] and around the hemline of the skirt is a deep, 10 inch silk fringe the same color as the gown. Cerise and chartreuse are two flattering colors of especial eye appeal, with other dark tones also available in the same flattering gown. Fall showings are at the peak. Shop now while you can have a complete color range.

DOPED

Mr. Izenga was like a fierce little terrier after a rat. "Don't give up, Huntley, my boy. That hard-boiled fortune hunter is taking advantage of your decency. He thinks you are handicapped by being a gentleman. Show him you're a man, first. Get Erica aside . . ."

"Yes, try and do it."

"Make an opportunity. Keep your eyes open. Anything worth having is worth fighting for," Mr. Izenga surged on, forgetting his own record in the loved-and-lost department.

"I wish I could," Huntley said.

Mr. Izenga went on whispering to him for some time.

Erica came across the grass to the bench. She wore a short white dress.

"Lunch is ready," she said. "It won't help anything not to eat. Won't you two stay?"

"Thank you, I'd like to," Mr. Izenga said. "French seems to want me to be available."

"I . . . I guess I must be running along," Huntley stammered. "Thanks but I . . ."

"Huntley!" Mr. Izenga said.

Erica put out her hand. "Huntley dear, let's be good friends as we've always been. Grandmother would have liked that."

He took her hand tightly. "Erica, you know what she'd really have liked. Can't you . . ."

Erica pulled her hand away. "Please!"

The three went across the lawn to the dining room door in awkward silence. Mr. Izenga was relieved to see the Dukes were not lunching there.

Ridge Dawson was waiting for them with, surprisingly, Toby Newcomb. They seemed to be getting on well together, Mr. Izenga noted sourly.

Bennet Pomeroy entered, leaning on Pliny's arm.

"Why can't any one tell me when lunch is ready?"

"We thought you weren't well enough to come down, Uncle Bennet," Erica said.

Bennet Pomeroy was not in a state to inspire sympathy. His half closed, bleary eyes, his sulky mouth, and general air of truculence were too reminiscent of his former sprees.

"I'm not sick. I was doped. Poisoned." Bennet's words blurred and ran together.

Erica quietly took her grandmother's place at the head of the table. Even Mr. Izenga was jolted a little by that. It seemed a bit too quick.

Erica filled the place well. Her whole aspect was of resolution. There was good stuff in the Pomeroys.

But Bennet stared venomously at Erica's new position.

"Didn't lose any time, did you?" Erica made no response except to turn a little pink. But Toby Newcomb's lips grew still tighter, and the look he gave Bennet was not pleasant.

But Bennet did not even see it. He was too busy looking for trouble. He tried to drink from his water glass and half of it spilled down his front. Mr. Izenga wondered if it weren't a little overdone.

"Why was it left to a p'leece off'cer to tell me about mother's death?" Bennet demanded.

Ridge Dawson gave him a contemptuous look that took in the soaked shirt. "You were told, half dozen times. You were too groggy to take it in."

"I was doped," Bennet snarled. "I'm not sick. Why was she taken? What's going on around here, anyway?"

"Why don't you go back to bed? You're not fit to be up," Ridge said curtly. He helped himself to the delicate brown filet of sole Pliny was passing. "Ask the police if you want to know anything."

"Poisoned. I was poisoned. That's what happened to me. Somebody doped my liquor. And I know who it was, too. Thought I wouldn't guess. But I know, all right."

Mr. Izenga asked, "Does any one know if the police analyst's report on the liquor has come back?"

"I don't," Ridge shrugged. He was making an excellent lunch in a quiet way, Mr. Izenga observed, disdainfully. But then Ridge had always been charming, affably selfish.

He and Mr. Izenga and Erica kept up a feeble attempt at conversation above Bennet's mumblings, Huntley's silence, and Toby Newcomb's monosyllabic contributions.

Mr. Izenga was puzzled about Newcomb. He had been haled away by a couple of troopers as if to durance vile, yet here he was, apparently at large again.

Mr. Izenga wondered, had Newcomb been able to explain that ring business satisfactorily, in private, to French? Or was French more gullible than he looked?

They were finishing the frozen pudding when Bennet reared in his seat and shoved away his plate.

"Tastes funny," Bennet was shouting. "Somebody's trying to poison me. Pliny, did you put anything in that pudding?"

"Co'se not, Mr. Bennet." The old man was outraged. "It out de same dish as ev'ybody's."

Mr. Izenga calmly took a spoonful of Bennet's serving, tasted and swallowed it. Bennet watched him with bleary, half shut eyes Mr. Izenga said,

"There is nothing wrong with this pudding."

Bennet blinked. He believed him.

"Well, she put something in my drink, anyway. Police doctor said so. Coral . . . coral . . . what's the stuff? Knockout drops."

"Chloral hydrate," Mr. Izenga supplied.

"That's it." Bennet gazed at the little man whose authority he had always accepted.

"Whom do you mean by she?" Mr. Izenga asked casually.

"Who would I mean. That Lucianna."

A tingling glance ran around the table.

"Did Lucianna put something in your liquor? Did you see her do it?" Mr. Izenga asked.

"I didn't see her do it. But who else would it be? I was always findin' her in my room, poking around my things. Even after I got a new lock on the door, she got a key somehow.

"You'd better keep your mouth shut to the police," Ridge said curtly. "Leave your girl friend out of this. We've got enough grief."

"Leave her out? Leave Lucianna out? Why she did it, you fool. Why're you tryin' to protect her? She was always saying how much happier everybody'd be with mother dead and her money divided up. She told me a million times she'd kill her, herself, for 2 cents, if she could think of a good slick way. And this was it."

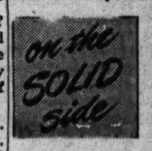
Well Written Letter Usually Wins a Reply

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]



So you're going to sit right down and write yourself a letter, and make believe it came from that young character you haven't heard from in three weeks, or from the sweet young thing who's kept you tossing on your pillow these last weeks. Perhaps the very reason you haven't received prompt replies to those missives you've sent out is that your letters haven't been the neat and sweet things that rate an answer. So check yourself up on these few points and then try again. You'll probably hear by return mail!

If you're the kind of person who dashes off a quick note on a sheet torn from the back of your biology notebook, slips it into an envelope that's been housing old snapshots all summer, and sends it off without another thought, that's the wrong beginning. You actually deserve it if the recipient is sure you sent it by carrier pigeon because he saw the pigeon's tracks in the upper left hand corner. How was he to know that was just your return address, hastily scrawled?

So altho there's no need for pale stationery, slightly scented, [altho it does help for those special letters] it's a fine idea to say what you have to say prettily. Pick a plain stationery in white or pale colors if you're a girl, or a mannish white parchment or rugged gray if you're a fellow. A gal often is allowed a fancier paper with a whimsical floral design, but sometimes it's hard to tell where the design ends and the letter begins.

Keep the writing neat [it's in ink, of course] and see to it that it goes straight across the page, instead of staggering drunkenly from one side to the other. And when you've finished, fold the letter so that it fits the envelope exactly instead of leaving the unfilled portions of the envelope flapping loosely.

And once it's set to mail, skip the rather obvious amours like S. W. A. K. and upside down stamps. If all your affections are displayed on the outside of the envelope, the character on the receiving end may not even bother to find out what's inside. And what a waste of talent that would be!

Not long ago I printed some green tomato recipes in response to requests from gardeners who feared they might be caught with bushels of the unripened fruit due to summer weather unfavorable for tomato development. Several readers have sent me recipes they like to use with green tomatoes.

A Wisconsin reader sends a recipe for "governors sauce" which has been used by her family for almost 65 years.

Governors Sauce

Slice a peck of green tomatoes, sprinkle a cupful of salt over them, and let them stand overnight. In the morning pour off the liquor and put them in a kettle with enough vinegar to cover them. Add six green or red peppers, chopped, and four large onions, chopped fine, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup horseradish, a tablespoon of ground cloves, one of allspice, a teaspoon of cayenne, and one of white pepper. Let simmer until soft, fill sterilized jars, and seal.

From another city in the same state comes this recipe for green tomato toast.

Green Tomato Toast

Remove some of the seeds and stew the green tomatoes. Season with salt, pepper, and a little sugar and butter. Pour over toast.

Genuine maple sirup isn't always available, and is expensive when you do find it. But there are many combinations of maple and cane sirups in which the maple flavor predominates, and these are quite satisfactory for the breakfast waffles and pancakes, and also for maple flavored desserts. When I can't get the real thing, I use a part-maple sirup and make this good cake.

Maple Cake

[Two 8 inch layers or one dozen cupcakes]

½ cup vegetable shortening or margarine
½ cup sugar
½ cup maple sirup
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 well beaten eggs
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup milk
½ cup chopped nuts

Maple frosting

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly and add sirup a little at a time, mixing well. Add vanilla and eggs and beat until light. Sift flour and baking powder together several times and add alternately with milk. Add nuts last. Pour batter into two greased layer pans or into cupcake pans and bake 25 to 30 minutes at 375 degrees. Cool and frost with maple sirup icing.

Maple Sirup Icing

1 cup maple sirup
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Cook sirup to medium firm ball stage when tested in cold water. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff; then pour sirup in fine stream over whites, beating constantly until icing holds peaks. Add vanilla and frost cake. This is a generous amount of frosting to fill and frost this cake. Halves of nut meats may be used for decoration.

Cook those sweet potatoes in their skins if you'd retain the maximum of their vitamin content. When cooked tender, it is easy to peel off the skins and glaze the potatoes with sirup, brown them in a little butter or ham fat, or mash them. Baked sweet potatoes may be served in the skin just like the white kind, only in this case you don't eat the skin.

Stress Nurse's Role in Post-War Health Program at Parley

Dr. Joseph Tobin, director of nursing education at De Paul university, stressed the role of the nurse in the post-war health program at the opening session of the tri-state conference of nurses and hospital workers in the John B. Murphy Memorial building of the American College of Surgeons yesterday.

Nurses from Indiana, Wisconsin, and Illinois are attending the week's institute to study the latest developments in psychiatry, public health, and nursing education. Demonstrations on the care of rheumatic, heart disease, orthopedic, tubercular, and paralysis cases will be given.

Speakers at the opening session included Jane Taylor and Mary J. Dun of the United States public health service, Sister M. Berenice Beck, an authority on nursing staffs, and Irene Stolp, teaching supervisor in St. Luke's hospital.

Keep War Nurseries Open to July 1, '46, Civic Group Asks

Representatives of industry, labor, education, health, and civic groups meeting yesterday in the auditorium of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, 122 S. Michigan av., passed a resolution urging that Lanham act funds, which have been used in the operation of war time child care centers for children of working mothers, be continued at least until July 1, 1946.

Those present asserted that the nurseries still are needed as many women will have to continue to support their children, not only now, but even after service men husbands return home.

Miss Mary E. Murphy, chairman of the committee on child care of the Chicago war service corps, formerly OCD, conducted the meeting.

GIs and WACs Put On a Style Parade in Paris

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 24—Fetching coats and suits, date dresses for big evenings, casuals for the co-ed's campus life, swanky bathrobes, and even elegant hand draped baby clothes, styled with wit and imagination, were paraded by GI and WAC designers today in the first American collection of couture presented in Paris. The new fashion features included relaxed shoulders, fitted waist length jackets, and deep, spade shaped neck lines.

Among the Chicagoans were Sgt. James E. Gilson, fur designer, 916 E. 82d st., and Dolores M. Knapick, 2934 N. Washtenaw av., who previously studied designing.

"The course at the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture Parisienne is very different from anything we have at home," explained Sgt. Gilson, "because nothing is cut and dried. The teachers put several yards of material on a manequin and tell us to go ahead and design. They help us to feel creation rather than give us lessons on it."

Chicago trained nurses taking time off to study couture include Lt. Genevieve Benson, graduate of the Norwegian American hospital, who intends to create Paris fashions for her family; Lt. Patricia Greenan, of the Little Company of Mary hospital, and Lt. Pauline Cromer, 1710 Rainbow dr., Cedar Falls, Ia.

Lt. Greenan designed a free swinging yet hip slim afternoon frock in porcelain blue silk, with a finely gathered and intricately draped bodice, and matching elbow length sleeves.

The American supervisor of the school, Lt. Charles E. Winckney, said many GI students have more than 85 points and could have left for home with their outfits but they were so intrigued with the course that they remained to finish it.

Mission Institute Held by Women of Church Federation

The women's division of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago will open its ninth annual interdenominational missionary institute today. It is a two day study meeting for church leaders of adult, young people's, and children's groups. Seventeen denominations active in home and foreign missionary work will be represented at the institute, which will be held in the Second Presbyterian church, 1936 S. Michigan av.

Following thru on the national Geneva Summer School of Missions held last summer in Wisconsin, the women will study mission needs and problems of "Africa" and "The Church Among Uprooted Americans."

Dr. L. K. Anderson, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church in this country, who recently visited mission stations in Africa, will be a member of the teaching staff. Another of the faculty will be Dr. H. Paul Douglas of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, editor of Christendom and author of "The City Church in the War Emergency."

Chaplain for the institute will be Mrs. Julia Lake Kellersberger, former missionary to Africa and now promotional secretary for the American Mission to Lepers.

ENGINEER WINS DIVORCE ON HIS ADULTERY PLEA

Carl Behne, 38, of 4327 Washington blvd., an engineer for the Commonwealth Edison company, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit court from Mrs. Naomi Behne, 29, of 3302 Congress st., whom he accused of adultery. Behne also was awarded custody of two children, Bertha, 5, and Carl, 2.

Behne charged that Curtis Davis, 38, of 411 S. Homan av., a paroled convict, fled from his wife's apartment the night of July 7 when Behne appeared there with two private detectives. Davis denied misconduct with Mrs. Behne, but admitted he ate dinner frequently at her apartment.

2 FINED IN SALE OF LIQUOR TO 2 THEFT SUSPECTS

Louis Ladin, 52, of 4705 N. Central Park av., owner of a tavern at 4811 N. Damen av., and Thomas Sweeney, 22, a bartender at 6971 N. Western av., charged with selling liquor to two minors who later were arrested as burglary suspects, were fined $100 and costs each by Judge Matthew Hartigan in Felony court yesterday. He ordered the mipors, Richard Arnoux, 17, of 2206 Foster av., and John J. Flock, 17, of 2112 Leland av., held to the grand jury in bonds of $15,000 each. Police said the two were intoxicated when they were arrested Friday while allegedly burglarizing a gasoline station at 6917 N. Western av.

"I STOPPED DOSING MY CONSTIPATION A YEAR AGO!"

Says Happy KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN User

If you are still dosing your constipation, don't fail to read this unsolicited letter!

"I'd been troubled with common constipation for years. Tried many kinds of medicines for it. Then, just about a year ago, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I ate it regularly, without missing a day. It helped so much, I have not taken one dose of medicine for constipation since, nor have I confined myself to any diet!" Mr. S. P. Loebe, Charleston, Missouri.

You, too, may be able to free yourself from pills and purgatives for the rest of your life — if your constipation is due to lack of bulk in the diet! Just eat a daily dish of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN and drink plenty of water! If not satisfied, send empty carton to Kellogg's of Battle Creek. You'll receive double the money you paid for it! KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. It's a highly nutritious food made from the vital outer layers of wheat. It's one of nature's most effective sources of gentle-acting, natural bulk.

Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. It's made by Kellogg's of Battle Creek and Omaha.

Gets Home Order

MRS. EUGENIE BEUERLEIN

On order of Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg in Circuit court yesterday, Mrs. Eugenie Beuerlein, 30, who is suing Dr. Karl Beuerlein for divorce, will move back into the family residence at 444 Roslyn pl., and Dr. Beuerlein will move out.

Judge Schnackenberg granted Mrs. Beuerlein's motion for this arrangement, presented by her attorney, Norman Becker. The Beuerleins were married May 8, 1942, and separated Sept. 6 this year. They have a son, Karl Jr., 2.

Decision on Mrs. Beuerlein's motion for temporary alimony was delayed pending a determination of whether Dr. Beuerlein's income is $100 a day, as Mrs. Beuerlein says, or $100 a week, as the doctor says.

COURT THREAT MADE TO MAYOR OF WAUKEGAN

Unless Mayor Frank G. Wallin of Waukegan appoints a new corporation counsel to succeed Jack E. Bairstow within 15 days, mandamus preceedings will be instituted to compel him to do so, he was informed last night by seven members of the city council.

The notification was in the form of a communication to the mayor signed by aldermen headed by Frank Hough, chairman of the council judiciary committee.

Bairstow, whose nomination to succeed himself was rejected by the council July 9, has been payless since Sept. 9, when the council voted to cut off his salary. Mayor Wallin held that Bairstow continues in office until a successor is appointed and has qualified.

Rat Baiting in the Bronx Held Cruelty to Animals

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Charles Colenso, 61, who, a bystander said, trapped five rats, then turned them loose in a vacant lot and permitted his fox terrier to chase them, was fined $5 today on a charge of cruelty to animals. "Even a rat," said Bronx Magistrate William Klapp, "is entitled to certain courtesies."

Assists Woll

MRS. HOPE R. HOOE

United States Atty. J. Albert Woll yesterday announced the appointment of Mrs. Hope Robbins Hooe, 30, of 7222 Quick av., River Forest, as an assistant district attorney in the civil branch of his office.

Mrs. Hooe is the widow of Dr. Carroll W. Hooe, who enlisted in the army air forces in January, 1942, and was killed Feb. 6, 1943, near Clinton, De Witt county, in the crash of a B-29 Super Fortress on which he was navigator.

Mrs. Hooe has a son, Carroll II., 2. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Petersen, 4940 Ellis av., received her law degree from the University of Chicago in 1940, and last year was assistant to the legal counsel to the American embassy in San Jose, Costa Rica.

HEROES' MEDALS AWARDED TO 2 DECATUR YANKS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Seventeen soldiers who played heroic roles behind enemy lines in Germany, Italy, and the Balkans received medals today for bravery. Two are from Decatur, Ill. The medals were presented by Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan of the office of strategic services.

Capt. Harold W. Biggs, 535 W. Macon st., Decatur, was awarded the bronze star for meritorious achievement as supply officer for his unit from Jan. 7, 1945, to May 20, 1945.

HITS SELECTIVE SERVICE ON VET SENIORITY RULE

James W. Cannon, general counsel for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, declared in an interview:

"Selective service now has gone far beyond what congress ever intended. It has mixed things up until neither business nor the labor unions know where it stands." The draft agency in a memorandum to local board's yesterday said veterans of this war had an absolute right to their former jobs.

"You can see where this can lead," Cannon said. "Take an industry with a great turnover, which since has been cut down by reconversion. It's entirely possible that the entire plant would be staffed only with veterans of World War II.

This interpretation, he said, will force congress to take action.

"Things are so muddled congress can't afford any more delay," he declared. "It will have to revise the law so that it's fair to all—and so that every one knows what it means."

APPOINTS CARR TO MICHIGAN'S SUPREME COURT

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 24 [Special]—Appointed to the state Supreme court today by Gov. Harry F. Kelly, Judge Leland W. Carr of the Ingham county Circuit court was preparing to turn over to another jurist the task of completing the one man grand jury investigation of corruption in state affairs which he has conducted for more than two years.

Judge Carr's elevation to the state's highest court will fill a vacancy caused by the death last week of Howard Wiest, 81.

He's Fat and Sway-Backed but Wife Wants GI Back

Newark, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP)—The army office of dependency benefits, which has solved many a problem with an allotment check, is finding a new twist to an old refrain. It's: "Keep the check, but send back my husband." One woman wrote: "He's fat, sway-backed, has several teeth missing, but I love him. So why don't you send him home? Think of the money you could save."

CUBS FIGHT TODAY TO STAVE OFF CARDINALS

TIGERS LAUNCH DRIVE TODAY TO TAKE PENNANT

Need Two Victories to Reach Goal

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24—The Tigers, holding first place by a one lap margin over the Senators who have finished their season and are standing by for developments, will make the first of four final bids tomorrow for the clinching of the American league pennant. Two victories out of the remaining four will definitely settle everything to the satisfaction of the local populace, and while the Tigers seem to be staggering around blindly the outlook isn't bad.

Al Benton

Hal Newhouser is the young man who is figured on to carry the burden in what little work remains to be done. The left handed 23 game winner, fortunately for Manager Steve O'Neill, is in a position to make two more starts if necessary. The first of these possible two will be Wednesday in the final half of the series that opens here tomorrow with the Indians, thus giving him time to rest up for an assignment, if needed, in the season's ending battles in St. Louis next Saturday and Sunday.

Benton Opposes Reynolds

Tomorrow in the opener against the Indians, Al Benton will make another attempt to prove that it isn't his pitching but rather the fielding and hitting frailties of his mates that have caused him to fade out of his last 11 starting assignments. If his associates give him a break by doing some scoring against Allie Reynolds and he thus can win, it will give Newhouser the honor of working Wednesday in what, if he is successful, will be the pennant clincher.

Because of a desire to be fair in the matter, Lou Boudreau, the Indians' boss, will not start Bob Feller here altho the Iowan might do a relief job. Feller beat the Tigers last week and his turn came up again yesterday, much to the discomfiture of the White Sox. In the rotation Reynolds, who also trimmed the Tigers last week, comes up next. Incidentally Benton was Reynolds' opponent last Thursday, the Tigers leading by 1 to 0, until a sorry looking eighth inning poured six Cleveland runs across the plate.

If the Tigers do win the pennant they are going to be more or less of an unhappy lot in the world series unless the illustrious Paul Trout can recover some of his former skill. He hasn't been worth a whoop since he contributed nine innings to the double triumph over Washington Sept. 15. Since then he started and made two attempts at rescue, each appearance indicating that rest is the only remedy for his case. In one of his last two starts he was gone in less than an inning. Yesterday he lasted only two innings.

Tiger Bats Impotent

If you consider some of the recent stick work of the Tigers the pitchers shouldn't expect much help from now on in. Hank Greenberg is practically helpless at bat. Rudy York is in the same class, and even the reliable 40 year young Roger Cramer has become the victim of bad habits at the plate. He has produced only one hit in his last 26 times at bat. Luckily Roy Cullenbine hasn't fallen into the same predicament.

The Tigers' paid attendance thus far is 1,289,422, so if they can draw a few over 51,000 in their two remaining games at Briggs stadium this season's mark will break the league attendance record now held by the Yankees.

SENATORS LOSE PROTEST

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Washington's Senators came home today to receive a death blow to their American league pennant chances.

Will Harridge, American league president, turned down Owner Clark Griffith's protest of yesterday's 4 to 3 12-inning defeat by Philadelphia in the first game of a double header.

Griffith contended that Umpire Eddie Rommel "misapplied" a rule in the eighth inning when Buddy Lewis fielded Mayo Smith's fly to

ROBINSON AND LAMOTTA WIND UP WORKOUTS

Tomorrow's Battle Fifth of Series

BY WILFRID SMITH

Jack Lamotta, veteran New York middleweight whose ultimate goal is a fight with Chicago's Tony Zale, champion of the weight division, boxed three friendly rounds yesterday afternoon in the C. Y. O. gymnasium with his brother, Joe, in final preparation for his 12 round battle tomorrow night in Comiskey park with Ray Robinson.

Robinson, also from New York and one of the outstanding graduates of Manhattan's Golden Gloves tournaments, is the outstanding challenger for the welterweight title. Thus, obviously, there is no direct professional rivalry between these fighters but in the last three years they have become the best money match of the war period.

It's Their Fifth Meeting

Tomorrow night Robinson and Lamotta meet for the fifth time. The previous bouts were at 10 rounds and all went to a decision. Lamotta won the second of the bouts and trails 3 to 1 in the series. That these men, admittedly in the front rank despite lack of titles, have fought 40 rounds is in itself adequate publicity for the show Jack Kearns offers. Moreover, tomorrow's bout is at 12 rounds which is satisfactory to Lamotta fans who believe Jack is the more rugged of the two.

Chicago is the natural site for the fifth battle of this series because [1] New York and Detroit have divided the previous matches, and [2] both of these men, in successive engagements in the Chicago Stadium, knocked out George [Sugar] Costner. Here are reasons, so Kearns believes, why Chicagoans will contribute net receipts of more than $100,000.

Both Flatten George

Robinson knocked out Costner in the first round. Lamotta finished off the brash youngster in the sixth round after knocking Costner down for a nine count in the same period. Both results are in keeping with previous records for Robinson is the sharpshooter, whose rapier blows are tipped with dynamite while Lamotta is best at give and take. Robinson has knocked out 39 of his 57 professional opponents. Jimmy Mandell was No. 39 and he passed out in the fifth round of the bout in Buffalo a week ago tonight.

Incidentally, the contract for tomorrow's fight, withdrawn when the match was postponed, again has been filed with the Illinois Athletic commission and Lamotta will receive 27½ per cent. Robinson, who collected $25,100 for his one round knockout of Costner, has been guaranteed $25,000 tomorrow with the privilege of 32½ per cent of the net receipts.

Robinson reported at the C. Y. O. gymnasium for exercise at 3:30 p. m. and in a surprise move boxed two rounds with Charley Parkam of Milwaukee.

Jacobs In on It?

Since Ray is reported to have signed a promotional contract long ago with Mike Jacobs, New York's boxing impresario, it must be assumed that tomorrow's fight has his benign approval altho apparently he once wished to block the Chicago match and caused the postponement here. Under these circumstances, it is likely Jacobs may have some share in the promotional profit. Robinson, a free spender, also may be personally indebted to Uncle Mike, who frequently serves as banker for his ring men.

Lamotta has agreed not to weigh more than 160 pounds and Murray predicts Jack will scale between 158 and 159 when the fighters weigh in tomorrow afternoon. Robinson probably will be outweighed at least nine pounds.

FEKETE NOT TO SEEK RELEASE BY ALL-AMERICA

Columbus, O., Sept. 24 (AP)—Gene Fekete, full back on the Ohio State university Western conference championship football team in 1942, said today he had withdrawn his request for release from the Cleveland Browns of the All-America conference.

Fekete signed with the Browns while he still was in military service. He since has been discharged and recently announced his intention of withdrawing from the Browns so he could play college football. His statement today removed the possibility he would play with the Buckeyes this season.

Jockeys' Guild Balks Strike at Hawthorne Track Today

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

There will be no walkout of jockeys at Hawthorne or Fairmount Park near Collinsville today, according to information received from the Jockey's Community Fund and Guild in New York.

The proposed strike, in protest of the Illinois racing board's handling of the application and refusal of the application of Wendell Eads for a riding license, was ordered last Wednesday, then postponed until today for a review by the Guild's board of directors in New York.

The board met, discussed the transcript of the Illinois Racing board's action for four hours and then announced a statement would be issued within a few days. Those present, according to information received in Chicago late yesterday afternoon, were President Sterling Young, Eddie Arcaro, Ted Atkinson, Joe Renick, Porter Roberts, Johnny Gilbert, General Manager John P. Kelly, and Atty. William Seligson.

Racing Board Stands Pat

The Illinois racing board, headed by Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, announced last week that its refusal of a license to Eads, against whom a score of rulings, fines, and suspensions are on file, would stand in Illinois. Last week the Fairmount Park jockeys, numbering 21, voted to disregard the strike order unless it was national in scope.

One Hawthorne jockey, who asked that his name be withheld, said the riders had disagreed with the guild's original action.

Yesterday's program of eight races was run on the heaviest of muddy tracks, but after a full morning of rain 8,500 customers turned out. The handle for the day totaled $856,311.

$35.20 Daily Double

A favorite, Creahan and O'Leary's Ebony Edge, took the opener, paying $2.80, and an outsider, Thomas Piatt's Sunawana, accounted for the second at $17.00 to provide a $35.20 daily double.

The feature sixth race, the $2,500 Greenacre purse for 3 year olds and upward, went to Herbert M. Woolf's Historian, ridden by Billy Nichols. The 4 year old son of Lawrin beat Mrs. J. C. Alexander's Alar a length. J. B. Rigney's major Jimmy was third, five lengths back.

Encouraged N. U. Drills for Indiana; Hoosiers Lose Meyer

Northwestern's inexperienced football team, encouraged by its 18 to 6 victory over Iowa State in last Saturday's opening game, went thru a long offensive drill yesterday in preparation for its Big Nine inaugural battle against Indiana's Hoosiers in Dyche stadium Saturday. Coach Lynn Waldorf was content with the manner in which his young charges conducted themselves against the Cyclones.

Twenty-two of the 34 players employed by the Wildcats against Iowa State were seeing action in their first collegiate game. Waldorf was pleased with the performance of these newcomers, particularly Quarter Backs Don Laser and Bob Voytecek.

The Wildcats expect to be strengthened Saturday by the return of four players, two of whom are potential starters. Jim Farrar, freshman quarter back and star passer, who has been nursing a knee injury, is expected to rejoin the squad this week. Ray Miller, first string center, who did not play against Iowa State because of a head injury will be ready to play, as will Francis Depauw, freshman guard, and Ted Wilinski, freshman right half back.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 24 [Special]—Bob Meyer, sophomore center from Indianapolis, was declared out for the season by Coach Bo McMillin today as Indiana began preparation for Saturday's Northwestern game with a light workout. Meyer was taken from the Michigan game last Saturday with a broken leg, after starting for the Hoosiers at center.

McMillin began grooming Al Horn, sophomore, and Francis Oleksak, freshman, to take over the pivot position for the remainder of the season.

The Hoosiers worked on running and passing today, as McMillin gave the regulars a rest to heal their bruises. The condition of John Cannady, regular junior full back who missed the Michigan game because of a knee injury, is much improved, McMillin said. Cannady should be ready for action against the Wildcats.

CLASHMORE II. BECOMES NEW IRISH MASCOT!

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 24 [Special]—James McGarrachy of Chicago, one of Notre Dame's most rabid synthetic alumni, today presented the university with a thoroughbred Irish terrier, 5 month old Clashmore Mike II., successor to the original Mike, who died last week at the age of 11.

The new Notre Dame football mascot was born Shannon Invader.

CUBS TO ACCEPT MAIL ORDERS FOR WORLD SERIES

The Cubs yesterday announced the method by which tickets for the Chicago games of the world series, if the teams wins the pennant, will be conducted. Here are the facts, in the language of the announcement:

"Because of an expected heavy demand, only two sets of tickets will be sold to each applicant. Tickets will be sold in strips of three, good for the fourth, fifth, and sixth games of the series. Should the series end before six games are played, money paid for tickets for the unplayed games will be refunded.

Accept Only Mail Orders

"Only mail orders will be accepted. Orders must be addressed to World Series Office, Chicago [11], Ill., and each order must be accompanied by money orders or certified check in exact amount required to pay for the tickets requested.

"One grandstand ticket will cost $18.35, two will cost $36.35. One box seat ticket costs $21.95, and two cost $43.55. All prices include federal government tax and mailing charges. Each ticket, of course, is good for three games.

Sell Standing Room, Too

"No ticket orders will be accepted at Wrigley field. No telephone orders or reservations will be accepted. Tickets will be sold only thru the mails, in accordance with instructions published in paid advertisments in the newspapers.

"On the day of each game standing room tickets at $3.60, and bleacher seats at $1.20, will be placed on sale at Wrigley field."

That's the dope. Now all the team has to do is win the pennant.

REDS STILL MUM —OFFICIALLY—ON LITTLE OLYMPICS

BERLIN, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Russians' eleventh hour walkout on the allied Little Olympics was as much an official mystery as ever today but there were any number of unofficial explanations.

The Russians themselves remained silent as the other allies puzzled almost as much over the manner in which they withdrew as over their abrupt action.

The news came to the Americans in an envelope handed to an M P in front of the 82d air borne division headquarters Saturday. It said simply that the Russians would not participate and was signed by Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Russian commander in Germany.

Brig. Gen. F. A. March of the 82d air borne, former West Point football player, was chairman of the meet, which American athletes won easily from their British and French opponents.

Among the unofficial explanations were that Zhukov had never given permission for the Russians to participate, that the Russians had scouted the other allies in practice and decided the Red army didn't have a chance, and that they had been turned down when they sought to bring in competitors from garrisons other than Berlin.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs, who have spent 79 consecutive days in first place in the National league, and the St. Louis Cardinals, who haven't been at the top of the heap for one teeny day this season, will meet today in the first of two highly significant games.

The Cardinals, with all their consistent 1945 absence from the top spot, which they held every day of last season, are said to have figured out that there's only one essential day to be in first place and that's the last day of the season. That's what entitles you to play in the world series and slice a major portion of the swag therefrom.

Having figured out this philosophy, the Cards came to town last night with the knowledge that they can depart tomorrow in first place. Or they could leave with second place virtually clinched for themselves.

Some Might-Have-Beens

The rainout of yesterday's Cub double header with the Pirates, a double header assembled from rainouts Saturday and Sunday, changed the immediate mathematics of the pennant race, tho yesterday's two postponements will be played off in Pittsburgh on Saturday afternoon.

If the Cubs had played and won the games scheduled for yesterday they would have been fortified with a 2½ lead over the Cards, or enough to assure a half game lead or more, after concluding their 1945 face-to-face business with the Cards today and tomorrow.

On the other hand, the Pirates might have won both games. This would have brought the Cardinals into Wrigley field with the encouragement of being only a half game behind the Cubs and a chance to leave town a game and a half ahead. And the Cards haven't needed any such inspiration in whipping our boys 15 times in 20 tries this season.

Borowy to Hurl Today

Hank Borowy, who already has proven himself a dirt cheap bargain at $100,000 in the July market, will pitch for the Cubs this afternoon. With Hank on the mound the Cubs somehow haven't seemed so frightened in the presence of the Cards as they have been in most of their other clashes with the Cards. The ex-Yankee has started three times against the Cardinals.

If it weren't for Hank holding the Cards to one run in each of two games he pitched against them this month, the Cards right now would be in first place. But Hank stayed right in there and won both games in the tenth, each time by scores of 4 to 1. Obviously, if he had yielded two runs or more those whooping Cub tenth innings would not have been played.

This afternoon Hank probably will face Harry Brecheen, four time conqueror of the Cubs this year, including a 1 to 0 decision over Borowy on an unearned run Aug. 24.

Brecheen's an Old Menace

Brecheen started harassing the Cubs early in the campaign. He beat them and Ray Prim the second day of the season, 8 to 2. On June 23 the Cubs knocked out the great lefty from Broken Bow, Okla., with three runs in the third inning, but George Dockins, his successor, went on to win, 6 to 4.

In that Aug. 24 game Borowy yielded only three hits to Brecheen's four. With three out in the sixth inning, Whitey Kurowski was safe on an overthrow and Ray Sanders drove him home with a double, third and last hit off Borowy, who

NOTRE DAME IS NEXT TEST FOR ILLINOIS ELEVEN

Squad Comes Thru Pitt Game in Good Shape

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 24 [Special]—The University of Illinois football team was in good physical shape today as it opened practice for Saturaday's game at Notre Dame. The Illini suffered no serious injuries in their 23 to 6 victory over Pitt last week.

Offensive blocking was emphasized today. "There were some things to be pleased with in the Pittsburgh game and some which were not so good," said Coach Ray Eliot. "Offensive blocking was one of the things which wasn't so hot. The defensive line play was all right and I congratulate the Illinois linemen for their stand in front of the goal when they held for two straight downs on the 1 foot line. That is the true test of a line."

Burt Ingwersen helped Tony Blazine coach the line today. It was Ingwersen's first Illinois practice since he was released from the navy last week.

IRISH STRESS KICKING

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 24 [Special]—The Notre Dame football squad today began the final week of drills for the Illinois game Saturday by concentrating on kicking in a driving rain.

Frank Dancewicz and George Ratterman, No. 1 and No. 2 quarter backs, were named by Coach Hugh Devore to handle most of Notre Dame's kicking this season.

THOMPSON LEADS BADGERS

Madison, Wis., Sept. 24 [Special]—Jerry Thompson, left half back, was selected today by Coach Harry Stuhldreher to be acting captain of the Wisconsin football team when the Badgers open the home season on Saturday against Marquette university in the 21st game of the intrastate rivalry. Thompson led the Badgers in the Great Lakes game last week and while his passing was handicapped by the rain he ran up good yardage in the sloppy going.

Stuhldreher said Hadley [Mark] Hoskins, who was a star half back for the Badgers in 1942, will assist Frank Jordan in coaching the reserve squad. Hoskins, a lieutenant in the air forces, was released from the service last week.

MARQUETTE TEAM INTACT

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 24 [Special]—A checkup today indicated that the Marquette university football squad came thru its opening game with Purdue without serious physical mishap and Coach Tom Stidham had the varsity intact as he started pointing for next Saturday's meeting with Wisconsin in Madison.

Stidham commended the Hilltoppers for their second half showing against the Boilermakers, but set out to eliminate weaknesses which showed up in the opener. The squad heard the scouts' report on Wisconsin and then went thru a light offensive drill.

MICHIGAN POLISHES DEFENSE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 24 [Special]—Pass defense will receive considerable attention in the Michigan football camp this week as the Wolverines attempt to forget Saturday's 13 to 7 loss to Indiana and prepare for resumption of their traditional rivalry with Michigan State college. The Spartans will come here Saturday for the first Michigan State game since 1942. The Spartans abandoned football during the war.

Coach H. P. [Fritz] Crisler admitted over the week-end that it was he who authorized the fake place kick play with which Michigan ended Saturday's game against Indiana. The play, coming on fourth down with the Wolverines trailing by six points and needing nine yards to score, has caused considerable controversy. Crisler said he called it because he "thought it might work" at the time. He since has admitted the play was a tactical error.

PRIDAY REJOINS BUCKEYES

Columbus, O., Sept. 24 [Special]—Ohio State's football squad buckled down to serious business today in preparation for the season opener here Saturday with Missouri.

Robin Priday, substitute quarter back on the 1942 championship eleven, returned to school today and donned a uniform. Priday has just been discharged from the service. He will see plenty of service at his old position, according to Coach Carroll Widdoes.

STUDY MEANS OF ELIMINATING 'DOUBLE' TAXES

Retained Earnings Levy Discussed

BY THOMAS FURLONG

How corporation earnings can be freed of "double" taxation without inviting reenactment in some form of an undistributed profits tax is getting the attention of technicians.

It is recalled that Secretary of the Treasury Vinson was the chief congressional sponsor of the undistributed profits tax act of 1936 which was repealed after a short trial over the protests of the Roosevelt administration.

Reported Approved by Vinson

Vinson is reported inclined to favor enactment of a new tax on undistributed profits when and if partial exemption from normal income taxes is extended to corporations. Altho its recommendation was not specific the Committee for Economic Development, a business group, has indorsed the principle of a tax that would penalize corporations for retaining earnings not needed in the business.

A new approach was made by the committee on post-war tax policy of which Roswell Magill is chairman. The Magill group proposed that the corporation tax rate should eventually be the same as the initial individual income tax rate. The individual stockholder would get a credit in his return for the tax paid by the corporation on income distributed in dividends.

Committee Rejects Alternative

The alternative to this plan is the exemption of all business income, as such, from taxation, said the committee. In rejecting this alternative it explained:

"Corporation income has always been taxed, and as a practical matter there appears little likelihood that this policy will be reversed. Exemption offers small prospect of relieving management of its tax problems. There would be even more need under that arrangement for measures designed to compel distribution of earnings which would further complicate the problem of management."

The Magill committee, however, omitted any reference to the treatment of preferred dividends.

Barnes Offers Solution

A solution of this problem was offered by George Barnes, partner of Wayne Hummer & Co., Chicago investment firm. Barnes would simply deny any tax credit to individuals holding preferred stock for taxes paid by the corporation. Otherwise, he explained, the preferred stockholders in many cases would get the tax credit that is rightly due to the common stockholder.

Barnes' plan provides that income paid out by corporations in dividends on preferred stock would be exempt from the corporate surtax but subject to the usual normal tax on corporate income. The holder of the preferred stock would get no credit in his individual return. The common stock holder, however, would be entitled to credit for the tax paid on dividends.

There is a precedent for this plan in the treatment now afforded preferred stocks of utility corporations. Preferred dividends paid by a utility corporation are deductible by the corporation in computing its surtax liability.

BARD URGES TAX CHANGE

Amendment of the income tax law to aid individual proprietorships in competition with corporations was urged yesterday by F. N. Bard, Chicago manufacturer and vice president of the Employers' Association of Chicago, in a letter to Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee.

He proposed that the individual operator of a business should be permitted to divide his income into two classes, to be taxed at different rates. Under Bard's plan the income derived from his "venture" capital or capital employed in the direct operation of his business would be taxed at corporation tax rates. His other income, including that from investment capital in the form of stocks, bonds, and other investments, would be subject to the regular individual income tax rates.

Price Boosts Termed Need if Pay Is High

In many industries wages are too high in relation to the prices of finished goods to permit the industries to employ their usual total of workers, Sumner H. Slichter, Harvard university economist, asserted yesterday. Therefore, wage increases must be accompanied by upward revision in prices, he said.

Particularly important will be the possibility of adjusting prices to wages," he said in the autumn Harvard Business Review. "If the OPA is too rigid in refusing to permit increases in prices, wage advances can be quite deflationary despite the fact that stiff rates of corporate taxation make the demand for labor less sensitive to wage-price relationships than usual.

Warns of Speculative Spiral

"If the OPA is too liberal in allowing wage advances to be passed on, however, these increases could touch off speculative buying and a spiral of wage and price increases. Apparently there is a happy medium which, on the one hand, will avoid substantial deflationary effects from insufficient margins between costs and prices and which, on the other hand, will avoid touching off a disorderly and speculative spiral."

Slichter disagreed with the belief of many that the OPA in fixing prices should tend if anything to err a little on the low side, in view of accumulated needs and the large reserves of purchasing power.

"The OPA should shoot for the happy medium, but, if errors are inescapable, it would be better to set prices too high than too low," he contended.

Reasoning Behind Belief

"There are two basic reasons for this belief. One is that the margin on sales in many industries is quite low — for corporate industry as a whole about 4 cents on the dollar after taxes. Consequently, a price which is slightly too low has a great effect on the quantity of goods which advantageously can be produced. The second basic reason is that the many adjustments which need to be made in price relationships can be accomplished less painfully and with smaller unemployment if prices are slowly rising."

Slichter asserted that wages are not now too low in relation to prices.

Figures on profits are not a reliable guide to cost-price relationships because they are based on an over-all war time volume of business about 10 per cent above that expected in the post-war period, they are affected by sales to the government which absorbed about one-third of the physical product of industry, and are affected by the large size of war time orders and the temporary drop in selling expenses, he said.

READING FILES WITH ICC FOR 11 ROADS' MERGER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The interstate commerce commission was asked today by Reading company to approve the merger of 11 railroads into Reading.

Located in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware, the carriers are: The Allentown, the Colebrookdale, the Gettysburg and Harrisburg, the North East Pennsylvania, Peoples, Perkiomen, Philadelphia, and Chester Valley; the Philadelphia, Newtown and New York; the Pickering Valley, the Reading and Columbia, and the Stony Creek.

Reading company owns all the capital stock of the Peoples and Perkiomen companies, and more than 66⅔ per cent of the capital stock of each of the other carriers.

SEIZURE OF NEUTRALS' PROPERTY LEGAL, U. S. DISTRICT COURT RULES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The United States District court for the District of Columbia has held in a test case that the alien property custodian can seize the property of enemy nationals and neutrals alike, the justice department said today. It ruled that a Swiss corporation cannot recover property in this country seized by the custodian.

The department said the case "is generally regarded as testing the scope of the powers of the custodian." The decision was made in the case of Uebersee Finanz Korporation A. G., vs. James E. Markham, alien property custodian.

Judge Henry Schweinhaut ruled that under the trading with the enemy act as amended by the first war powers act the custodian was empowered to seize the property of neutrals as well as enemy nationals. The justice department contended in the case that congress had recognized that the axis powers have used nationals of neutral countries to conceal their foreign holdings.

ACCEPT LABOR BILL, OR WRITE ONE—RICHBERG

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24 (AP)—Donald R. Richberg, former NRA administrator, today said critics of the proposed federal industrial relations act either should accept it or write a better legal formula for labor peace. He described the bill he helped draft for congress as at least a step toward avoiding constant industrial warfare.

The proposed legislation has been introduced in congress by Senators Hatch [D., N. M.], Ball, [R., Minn.], and Burton [R., O.].

Labor organizations have opposed particularly a proviso for compusory arbitration in disputes involving public utilities or similarly vital service institutions. Richberg told the Detroit Economic club the pending bill's authors meant it only as an approach to a serious problem. But it should be considered and shaped up in congress into a working industrial relations formula, he said.

HOME FREEZER FIELD ENTERED BY FRIGIDAIRE

Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation will enter the home freezer market with three models, and in addition will have frozen storage space in two models of household refrigerators, Corley Kirby, district sales manager, announced yesterday at the company's first post-war dealer meeting in the Morrison hotel.

Models of Frigidaire products already in manufacture and those about to go into production were displayed at the meeting. Frigidaire has resumed manufacturing refrigerators, electric ranges, and commercial refrigeration units. Refrigerators still are being consigned to government stockpiles, but ranges are available to the public.

A series of meetings is being held this week with various dealer groups, with W. I. Buchanan, Chicago branch manager, in charge. Others are scheduled thruout the United States and Canada.

Ickes, British Reach Pact on Oil Marketing

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Petroleum administrators of Britain and the United States today announced the signing of a British-American pact designed to promote "orderly development" of international petroleum trade.

The agreement, result of a week of conferences, requires no further action by the British government, but must be ratified as a treaty by the United States senate.

American Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Emmanuel Shinwell, British fuel administrator, announced the pact, which is preliminary to the calling of an international conference to consider a multilateral petroleum agreement.

Old Pact Opposed

The pact does not affect domestic oil production in the United States. It is a revision of a British-American pact signed in Washington last year, but later withdrawn without senate approval after opposition by American oil interests.

The pact would create a petroleum commission of six members, three from each government, to advise on all matters relating to international petroleum trade. It would depend on "moral suasion" to enforce its suggestions.

Supplies of petroleum "should be accessible in international trade to the nationals of all countries on a competitive and nondiscriminatory basis," the pact asserts. "All valid concession contracts and lawfully acquired rights shall be respected and there shall be no interference, directly or indirectly, with such contracts or rights."

Oil Men Satisfied

Ickes said six men qualified to speak for American oil interests, who accompanied him to London, were satisfied with the new agreement.

Except for domestic holdings in the United States, the pact will affect the petroleum industry in most of the world's important producing areas, since American and British nationals own a substantial part of the world's oil reserves.

TRUMAN GIVEN T. P. & W. PLANS FOR WAGE HIKES

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 24 (AP)—George P. McNear Jr., president of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, today said he had sent President Truman a copy of the railroad's plan, previously distributed to employes, to grant voluntary pay increases when the property is turned back to private ownership, scheduled Oct. 1.

"Compensation to various classes of employes will be higher than that now paid by the federal manager," the plan said.

Friday, representatives of several labor organizations urged President Truman to withhold his order restoring the T. P. & W. to private control Oct. 1 until the owners agreed "to negotiate with employes' representatives and enter into agreements with them respecting rates of pay, rules, and working conditions."

The property has been operated by the office of defense transportation for 3½ years.

PLAN EXPANSION IN NATIONAL TEA OPERATION SOON

The National Tea company's management hopes to expand its operations soon, Harley McNamara, executive vice president and general manager, told several hundred sales executives and advertising men at a luncheon of the Grocery Manufacturers Sales Executives of Chicago yesterday in the Sherman hotel.

McNamara said he could not divulge details for "competitive reasons," but that meat markets would be added to all stores not having them and the company's line of nationally advertised brands would be enlarged. He indicated the company would continue its policy of closing smaller stores and seek increased sales volume thru expanding operations of the larger units.

READY TO SELL 100 MILLIONS IN SURPLUS TOOLS

Await Official Word for Dodge Plant

Negotiates Lease

Western Electric company, Bell system manufacturing unit, yesterday disclosed it was negotiating a lease for the government owned Studebaker plant in Chicago to augment its Hawthorne works' telephone equipment manufacturing facilities. Operations would begin this year. Covering about 800,000 square feet of floor space, the plant is less than four miles from the Hawthorne works.

More than 100 million dollars' worth of tools standing in idle Chicago area war plants, including 80 millions in the Dodge-Chicago plant, may be offered for sale within a few days, the Reconstruction Finance corporation disclosed yesterday.

The machinery includes 18 millions in the Buick plant in Melrose Park and 11½ millions in two Studebaker corporation plants—7 millions in South Bend and 4½ millions in Fort Wayne, Ind.

W. H. Rueter, RFC assistant manager in Chicago, said he had asked the war department in Washington to declare the tools surplus promptly because of the heavy demand of companies seeking them for reconversion. Such an order was expected "in a day or two."

Plants Already Available

The plants already have been declared surplus and are available for sale or lease. Rueter said definite interest had been shown by large companies in these RFC owned properties, but that no sales had been negotiated except for a few minor plants.

The Dodge-Chicago plant was declared surplus in Washington last week, but Chicago RFC officials said they had not received official confirmation.

Meanwhile, avid seekers of the approximately 6 million dollars' worth of machinery in the Studebaker Chicago plant exhausted the supply long before RFC's announced sale from Oct. 1 to 12.

Expects Ample Supply Soon

"Many buyers of industrial equipment may be disappointed that this Studebaker equipment was sold before the advertised sale," Rueter said. "But with the tremendous stocks of government owned machinery becoming surplus property thru cancellation of war orders, we believe the supply soon will meet most of the requirements of industry."

In addition to the 80 million dollars of RFC owned standard equipment idle in the Dodge-Chicago plant are 28 million dollars of special tooling attachments owned by the army air forces. Recently classified as scrap, it will be left on the machines for buyers to use if possible or remove. The government estimated it would save more than 1 million dollars by classifying the special tools as "scrap" rather than trying to remove them.

MODERN AUTOS SHOW INCREASED VALUE TO OWNER

Present day automobiles are giving owners five times as much value per dollar invested as those made 15 to 20 years ago, the Automobile Manufacturers association reported yesterday. A study of increased mileage yielded by late model cars and the reduced prices at which they were sold showed cars scrapped in 1943 had a depreciation cost of only 0.9 cent for each mile they had been driven, against 4.4 cents in 1925. Cars retired in recent years had traveled an average of 81,000 miles against 21,750 in 1925.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Laban E. Harmon yesterday was elected secretary of Standard Oil company [Indiana] to succeed Felix T. Graham, who is retiring on account of his health. Harmon, who has been assistant secretary since 1931, became associated with Standard in 1922 as an accountant. During the war he was active on the staff of the petroleum industry committee for district 2.

L. A. Lindberg, president of Lindberg Steel Treating company, Chicago, has been elected a trustee and member of the executive committee of the Metal Treating institute.

The Controllers' Institute of America announced the election of Edwin E. McConnell, controler of the Norton company, Worcester, Mass., as president. He succeeds Edwin W. Burbott, controler and assistant secretary of the A. B. Dick company, Chicago. Christian E. Jarchow, vice president and controler of International Harvester company, was one of the three new vice presidents elected.

The fall meeting of the governing and advisory boards of the Associated General Contractors of America will be held in the Drake hotel Oct. 30 and 31.

The appointments of Jacob Sabitt as manager of the newly created Chicago sales division of Schenley Distillers corporation and of Stanley L. Brown, Wisconsin district manager, to succeed Sabitt as Great Lakes regional manager, were announced by H. T. Thomas, general sales manager.

The Northern Trust company announced that Comdr. Robert A. Brown is returning as assistant secretary in the trust department after five years in the navy.

John S. Hutchins has been elected president of Ramapo Ajax division of the American Brake Shoe company. Ramapo Ajax, which operates nine plants and makes specialty track work, such as frogs and switches, will transfer its headquarters from New York to 332 S. Michigan av., Chicago, said William B. Given Jr., president of American Brake Shoe company.

Norman H. Saunders has been appointed engineering manager of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, to succeed R. M. Kalb, chief engineer, who resigned recently, said James G. Kellogg, president.

BILL FOR 2 DECADES OF FREE TRADE WITH PHILIPPINES OFFERED

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—Chairman Bell [D., Mo.] of the house insular committee introduced legislation today to provide free trade with the Philippines for 20 years. Another bill would release 31 million dollars of Philippine funds impounded in the treasury.

"The bill permitting 20 years' free trade will be the tool by which life can be restored to the Philippine economy," Bell said. "Without a long period of free trade as the cornerstone for the rehabilitation of the islands America might have to spend huge sums of money in war damages to get the Philippine economy restored to the level it enjoyed before Japanese occupation."

National Biscuit Elects Coppers New President

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—George H. Coppers, National Biscuit company general counsel, was elected president today, to succeed Roy E. Tomlinson who was elected board chairman.

FEWER OPENINGS FOR JOBS LISTED IN CHICAGO AREA

A total of 57,464 job openings was listed with United States employment service offices in Cook and Du Page counties last week, Lester Brown, USES area director, said yesterday. The total was 1,200 below that of the preceding week, but well above the July 30 listing of 50,387.

Manufacturing industries accounted for 30,826 of the jobs listed. Wholesale and retail trades listed 8,620, service industries 6,559, and transport, communication, and public utility companies, 4,102. Other nonmanufacturing businesses accounted for the remainder.

Fabricated Structural Steel Bookings Doubled

Bookings of fabricated structural steel for bridge and building construction last month were approximately twice as large as in August, 1944, the American Institute of Steel Construction announced yesterday. The total was 89,359 tons, compared with 73,738 in July and 44,740 tons in August, 1944. Tonnage available for future fabrication Sept. 1 had increased to 201,100 tons.

BIG DEBENTURE ISSUE OF A.T.&T. SELLS IN 1 HOUR

Morgan Stanley Bid Tops Halsey's

A 160 million dollar issue of American Telephone and Telegraph company 2¾ per cent debentures was completely sold yesterday slightly more than an hour after a nationwide underwriting group headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. had won the award on its bid of 99.8199. Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago, and Mellon Securities corporation submitted a bid of 99.6811.

Strong investment demand was indicated by the speed of the sale, commented financial observers. The debentures, due in 1975, were offered to the public at 100¼ and interest with a commission to dealers of ⅛ and a reallowance of another ⅛.

Bid Termed Satisfactory

A. T. & T. on July 23 awarded a 175 million dollar issue of 2¾ per cent debentures due in 1980 to the Morgan Stanley group, which sold the issue in about two hours. Its bid of 99.559 topped a Halsey-Mellon syndicate offer of 98.919.

Donald R. Belcher, A. T. & T. treasurer, termed the high bid "quite satisfactory." After award of the 175 million dollar issue, the largest ever sold thru competitive bidding, Belcher had said the company "disliked letting the issue go under par."

Textron Registers Stock

Textron, Inc., registered with the securities and exchange commission 200,000 shares of $25 par 5 per cent convertible preferred stock to be offered publicly by a Blair & Co. and Maxwell, Marshall & Co. group. Proceeds will redeem prior preference stock, purchase new high speed flat knitting machinery, and expand operations.

Stockholders of Gar Wood Industries, maker of parts for trucks, road machinery, and motor boats, on or about Oct. 24 will consider authorizing 70,000 shares of $50 par cumulative convertible preferred stock and an additional 500,000 shares of $1 par common.

Sales of Jewel Tea Rises 8 Per Cent in a Year

Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales of $4,558,589 in the four weeks ended Sept. 8, an increase of 8.7 per cent above a year ago. Sales in the first 36 weeks this year totaled $40,909,543, an increase of 7.8 per cent.

In reviewing your Will consider whether...

1. Marriages, births or deaths in your family circle may require changes in the provisions of your Will.

2. The financial needs of your beneficiaries may have changed.

3. The value or nature of your assets may have shifted.

4. The executor or trustee named may no longer be in a position to act.

Because of these or other factors, a regular review of your Will may be advisable. If you wish, one of our Trust officers will be glad to discuss your situation with you and your attorney.

Such a meeting should prove of real value to you, for our experience of more than half a century in the probating of Wills and administration of estates is at your disposal. Write for The Northern Trust Company's interesting booklet, "Practical Suggestions for Making Your Will."

DEFER HEARING ON PRICE FOR SURFACE LINES

Objections to Agreement Set for Oct. 1

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

After hearing that the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority and six groups of Surface Lines investors were nearing agreement on a price for the lines, and that the groups' committees had arranged for distribution of the money, Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court yesterday set Oct. 1 as the date for arguments on the traction problem.

A report of the securities and exchange commission, holding that Surface Lines security holders should have about 87 million dollars for their holdings, provided the basis for yesterday's court session.

Objections were to be heard, but were delayed when Atty. William J. Friedman reported the investors would meet authority management later this week and try to get the authority to agree on a solution.

Called Logical Procedure

Judge Igoe said this was a logical way to proceed and that when a definite plan was before the court full time for objections could be granted. When a proposal to have a separate reorganization of the Surface Lines was suggested [the authority plans provide for the purchase and merger of surface and elevated lines under public ownership] the judge replied that this would be "only a last resort."

The authority offer for the street car properties is 75 millions and the additional 12 millions would come from the funds now in its treasury. The offer to the elevated is more than 12 millions.

The participating Surface security owners are holders of the first mortgage bonds of Chicago Railways, Chicago City Railways, and Calumet & South Chicago railways; series A and purchase money bonds of Chicago Railways, and Chicago City and Connecting bonds.

Attorney Protests Delay

Atty. William R. Morgan, representing the B bonds of Chicago Railways, protested the delay, arguing valuation of the properties was a function of the court, which would have to certify any price offer as fair and feasible.

There was no use negotiating, he said, problems that could be solved only by court decision. He added there was no evidence to show the transit authority could raise the purchase price. The B bonds are not to share in the sales price, under the law, unless the valuation is more than 87 millions.

The Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated] filed notice yesterday that it would on Oct. 5 ask Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg of the Circuit court to issue an order permitting the "L" a 12 cent fare [13 if an intercompany transfer is involved] in place of the present 10 cents.

Atty. Gen. Barrett and the city of Chicago have pledged an unrelenting court fight to hold the fares at the present rate.

SPA SETS GOAL OF COMPETITION FOR ALUMINUM

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Director Symington said today the surplus property administration will "go a long way" in an effort to foster competition in the aluminum industry. A report on government owned aluminum plants will be ready next week, and will present a long time view of the industry. There will be no details regarding specific plants.

Testifying before the Mead committee inquiring into the disposal of war surpluses, Symington told Sen. Mitchell [D., Wash.] "our first interest is competition within the industry." He said only about 14 companies out of hundreds of inquiries had shown any interest in acquiring government plants and that actually "only one or two" were able to operate them.

HINT REDUCTION IN NEXT YEAR'S FOOD CROP GOALS

Anderson Says Needs Will Decrease

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson indicated today the government's 1946 farm program will provide for some reduction in over-all production to keep supplies in line with a prospective smaller peace time demand. He said commodity production goals should reflect consumer demand rather than agriculture's maximum ability to produce.

Anderson gave his views at a conference with representatives of the American Farm Bureau federation headed by President Edward A. O'Neal.

Anderson, when he took office in July, promised to take steps to obtain "all out" production of food in 1946. Since then, with the ending of the war, military requirements have been scaled down steeply and prospective domestic and foreign needs are smaller.

Surplus of Eggs Expected

The department already is struggling with a surplus of potatoes and soon may have an egg surplus.

The Farm Bureau conference with Anderson followed a visit of the farm organization group in the White House, where farm problems, particularly price support promises of the government, were discussed with President Truman.

Both Mr. Truman and Anderson assured the bureau that the administration intends to carry out price support commitments enacted by congress early in the war. The department is required to support prices of most products at not less than 90 per cent of parity for two years after the official end of the war.

May Set Peanut Quotas

Anderson raised the possibility of invoking marketing quotas on peanuts, one of the oil feed crops much expanded in the war to offset losses of vegetable oil imports from the Pacific, and of reducing the support price for soybeans, another source of vegetable oils, to levels which would discourage production at present volume.

The bureau asked for the continuance of marketing quotas on tobacco. It urged, however, that no quotas be established on corn, explaining that another good crop is needed to restore reserves. It said it is impossible to say whether quotas on cotton will be necessary next year.

The bureau also recommended the establishment of a new formula to determine parity prices on live stock and live stock products. It said the present formula does not provide adequate prices for those commodities.

MURRAY'S MVA BILL CRITICIZED BY AID OF ICKES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Michael Straus, assistant secretary of the interior, altho indorsing the "general objectives" of a bill by Sen. Murray [D., Mont.] for a Missouri valley authority, told a senate irrigation subcommittee today he did not agree with several principal points.

He suggested a proposal last spring by Secretary of the Interior Ickes be substituted for the Murray measure. Ickes proposed a framework under which not only an MVA but similar authorities could be created, all under the jurisdiction of the department of interior.

Murray's bill would create an independent agency, headed by a three man board of directors—similar to the Tennessee valley authority—with headquarters in the Missouri valley.

GIVES DISPOSAL OF WAR SURPLUS TO STATE DEPT.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The state department will take over disposal of American war surpluses overseas with the dual assignment of aiding stricken countries and gaining trade concessions for the United States.

President Truman has decided to transfer disposal control to the state department "as soon as practicable," Reconversion Director Snyder told the senate war investigating committee today.

Asserting "we can't expect dollars" from dollar starved nations, Snyder said this country would be willing to swap surpluses for "commercial and military rights."

Mead Praises Step

The Presidential move won quick applause from committee members. Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] called it a "great step in the direction of unity in all our dealings with foreign nations."

Snyder testified the unification of overseas disposal means transferring to the state department "the functions of the army-navy liquidation commissioner [ANLC], and the lend-lease functions of the foreign economic administration."

The ANLC, headed by Thomas B. McCabe of Philadelphia, was created early this year to serve as disposal agent for the army and navy.

McCabe, who also appeared before the senate committee, estimated that the "movable potential surplus abroad" may be worth about 9.6 billion dollars. This would exclude airports and other fixed installations.

Inventory in 30 Days

Snyder said the surplus materials in Europe alone may run to 6 billions and that an inventory will be ready in 30 days.

Possibly half of the European surplus consists of "items that have no possible peace time utility," Snyder estimated.

Snyder testified that the treasury now is studying the extent to which "local currencies" should be taken in place of dollars. In some cases other things must be accepted, he said, such as commercial good will, traveling fellowships for scientific and cultural research, or added facilities for United States diplomatic representatives.

35 Millions' Worth for Sale

PARIS, Sept. 24 (AP)—More than $35,000,000 worth of the United State's army's surplus war materials is up for sale in Europe, most of it from signal corps stocks.

James S. Knowlson, central field commissioner for the army-navy liquidation commission, said tonight $15,810,655 worth of stock has been declared surplus in France, $10,460,000 in the United Kingdom, $7,828,000 in Belgium, $1,408,000 in Luxemburg, $102,000 in Holland, and $82,000 in Sweden.

126 NAVY PLANTS RULED SURPLUS BY HOUSE GROUP

Approves Restriction on Standby Basis

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—The house naval committee approved today a recommendation by the navy department that 126 government owned industrial plants and shipyards be declared surplus.

Assistant Navy Secretary H. Struve Hensel told the committee the navy has "no doubt whatsoever" that the facilities, with an estimated value of $445,388,000, are surplus to its needs.

"The department prefers to have these plants sold or leased for civilian use, but under special arrangements that will keep the facilities in readiness," Hensel said. "Failing this, consideration will be given to their retention in standby."

All Tools Not Included

He said the proposed surplus declarations included the land and the holdings listed, but that it did not necessarily include all of the equipment and machine tools.

Rear Adm. G. F. Hussey Jr., chief of navy ordnance, told the committee the navy has taken steps to take over two plants to be held as standbys for future ordnance construction if need should arise. They are the torpedo plant in Forest Park, operated by the Amertorp corporation, and an Indianapolis plant operated by the Luas-Harold corporation for the manufacture of bombsights and aircraft control equipment.

The surplus plants with principal products manufactured and the estimated cost of the plant, include:

Model Service Station Plans Told by Sinclair

New model service stations were described to 125 Sinclair Refining company dealers in the Knickerbocker hotel yesterday at an area meeting called by A. H. Sus, central district manager. The stations will be designed to make merchandise more easily accessible to the customer, and to make it easier for the dealer to service cars. Sus said a complete line of automotive accessories will be carried in all stations thru an arrangement with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

Volume Sewing Machine Output Due in November

Singer sewing machines will be available for volume distribution to consumers by the end of November, the Singer Sewing Machine company said yesterday. By concentrating on six basic models and expanding production schedules as rapidly as materials are available the company hopes to reach 1941 output levels by next spring, tho this will only partly satisfy demands which have been accumulating for nearly four years.

ALTON ISSUE AUTHORIZED

The interstate commerce commission authorized the Alton railroad to issue $599,000 of promissory notes to help finance the purchase of 250 steel gondola cars.

GAS REFRIGERATORS

Please give me a report on Servel, Inc.—A. R.

With the last of its war contracts canceled, Servel is preparing to begin shipment of its customary civilian products about Oct. 15. Production of its civilian refrigerators and other appliances had been suspended since April, 1942. Large deferred demand and replacement needs apparently assure a satisfactory sales volume for the company for some time, altho the profit outlook is not clear.

Servel makes absorption type refrigerators, actuated by gas or kerosene fuel, gas fired air conditioners, and water heaters. The company's exclusive rights on gas refrigerators expired with the basic Swedish patents in December, 1943; but its position in this field is strengthened by its ownership of patents covering improvements.

For fiscal years ended Oct. 31, the profits per share on 1,726,926 shares [1,781,426 in 1941 and earlier] were: 1944, 96 cents; 1943, $1.06; 1942, 61 cents; 1941, $1.54; 1940, $1.67; 1939, $1.62; 1938, 86 cents. Common dividends, paid each year since 1935, have been at the yearly rate of $1 from 1941 on.

A decline in earnings in the nine months ended last July to 57 cents a share from 61 cents a year earlier was due to dividend requirements of 60,000 shares of $4.50 preferred stock issued in January. There is no funded debt. Net working capital last Oct. 31 was $12,060,000.

VICK CHEMICAL SALES SET NEW PEAK; PROFIT UP

Sales of Vick Chemical company ltotaled $35,608,278 in the fiscal year ended June 30 to reach a new high for the seventh consecutive year and exceeded those of 1944 by 10 per cent, W. Y. Preyer, president, told stockholders in his annual report yesterday.

Profit was $2,737,662, or $4.03 a share in the fiscal year compared with $2,460,916, or $3.62 a share, a year earlier.

Profit of Francisco Sugar company in the fiscal year ended June 30 was $145,820, or 74 cents a share, against $1,048,599, or $4.52 a share.

Designated for liquidation are: War Damage corporation, Defense Homes corporation, institute of inter-American affairs, institute of inter-American transportation, Inter-American educational foundation, Inter-American Navigation corporation, Prencinradio, Inc., Cargoes, Inc., Petroleum Reserves corporation, Rubber Development corporation, United States Commercial company, Smaller War Plants corporation, Home Owners' Loan corporation, Defense Supplies corporation, Metals Reserve company, Rubber Reserve company, Disaster Loan corporation, Defense Plant corporation, United States Spruce Production corporation, and United States Housing corporation.

CATTLE DEMAND STRONG; REPORT SET-ASIDE PLAN

Best Steers at Peak; Receipts Large

All of the better grades of cattle were in broad demand yesterday at the Chicago stock yards on reports that the government may revive a set-aside order to packers to obtain good to choice grades of beef not available in sufficient quantity to fill all of federal needs.

In recent weeks government meat buyers have had to compete with civilian trade for meat, and some competition among the packers to regain customers was reported.

Ceiling Paid for 38 Carloads

Thirty-eight carloads of corn fed cattle sold at the $18 ceiling per hundred pounds, within two carloads of the largest number on record to bring the top in one session.

The $16.85 average was the highest since 1919 and a record for a September Monday. Top heifers reached $17.65. Steady to 15 cents lower prices prevailed for lower grade cattle.

At the Kansas City stock yards receipts of 34,000 cattle set a two year peak, tho below the record of 47,136 on Oct. 18, 1943.

Hog Receipts Small

Chicago cattle receipts of 21,000, compared with 19,297 a week earlier, and only three daily totals since March have been larger. The hog run of 6,500 set a new 1945 low for Monday.

Sheep receipts of 8,500, were the third largest for a Monday since July 2. Sheep and lamb trade was slow and prices weak to 25 cents lower, with $14 top for lambs and $5.75 for old ewes. Hog prices remained at ceilings. The $14.75 top was paid for a slightly larger percentage of the supply, lifting the average 5 cents to $14.60, with packing sows and stags at their $14 ceiling.

No One Will Get a Rise Out of Steel Operations

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—The operating rate of American steel mills this week probably will remain a secret until the elevator strike in New York ends. The American Iron and Steel institute, which reports the rate each Monday, has its offices on the 33d floor of the Empire State building and the elevators were idle. If any one tried to climb the 33 flights, he either failed to make it or was too out of breath to answer the telephone.

WHEAT, BARLEY, RYE PRICES RISE; CORN IS LOWER

Grain futures prices mostly were higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. December and May wheat sold at new seasonal peaks before profit taking caused a reaction. Net gains on wheat were ¾ cent a bushel on the active futures with September ¼ cent lower. Rye futures rose 1¼ to 1⅝, oats were unchanged to ¼ higher, and barley ⅝ to ⅞ higher. Corn lost ⅛ to ¼, attributed more to lack of support than to aggressive selling.

Expectations that the Commodity Credit corporation would raise its buying price for wheat, having been unable to obtain supplies for several weeks because of demand from mills, elevator interests, and feed manufacturers, was a factor in lifting futures about 1 cent over Saturday before the buying subsided.

RAIL BOND GROUP RALLIES

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—A last minute rally in a group of medium priced rails put the bond market on a higher level today. Prices had moved in an extremely narrow range earlier.

Principal interest centered on a dozen popular carrier issues. Milwaukee road 5s and adjustment 5s both were in demand. International Great Northern 5s and 6s moved up 2 to 3. Chicago and Alton 3s added a point along with Rock Island convertible 4½s. Seven Missouri Pacific issues rose 1¼ to 2⅝.

CHICAGO LIST IS UNEVEN

Prices closed irregular in turnover of 31,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. More active issues included Asbestos Manufacturing, up ⅛; Chicago corporation common and Commonwealth Edison, unchanged, and Radio and Sinclair, each off ⅛.

PIPE LINE PACTS LITTLE CHANGED BY RATE PLANS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24 (AP)—Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company is making as few changes as possible in existing arrangements with its customer companies under proposed reduced rate schedules, a company rate expert said today.

O. W. Morton, rate department manager, told the federal power commission that revised rate schedules filed for FPC approval involve a reduction of more than 5 million dollars below 1941 revenue in line with an order of the commission.

BRONZE STAR IS AWARDED TO COL. SHEAHAN

Lt. Col. John D. Sheahan, formerly of Chicago, has been awarded the bronze star for meritorious achievement in the Philippines. He is a brother of Gary Sheahan, Chicago Tribune war artist and correspondent.

Col. Sheahan, attached to the general staff corps, was chief of the plans and analysis branch, depot operations division, at Manila, and was responsible for producing statistical studies and other services relating to war supplies.

Milk Bill Cut $25,000 at County Institutions

Milk for Cook county's institutions will cost $25,000 a year less under new contracts than under those prevailing in 1944, Clayton F. Smith, county board president, said last night. Contract awards made yesterday were from 1¼ cents to 2 cents a gallon below those of a year ago. They were for the final quarter of the year. The county jail will be served by Bowman Dairy company at 38 cents, compared with 40 cents last year. At Oak Forest the Pearl Creamery will deliver milk at 35 cents a gallon against 37 cents in 1944.

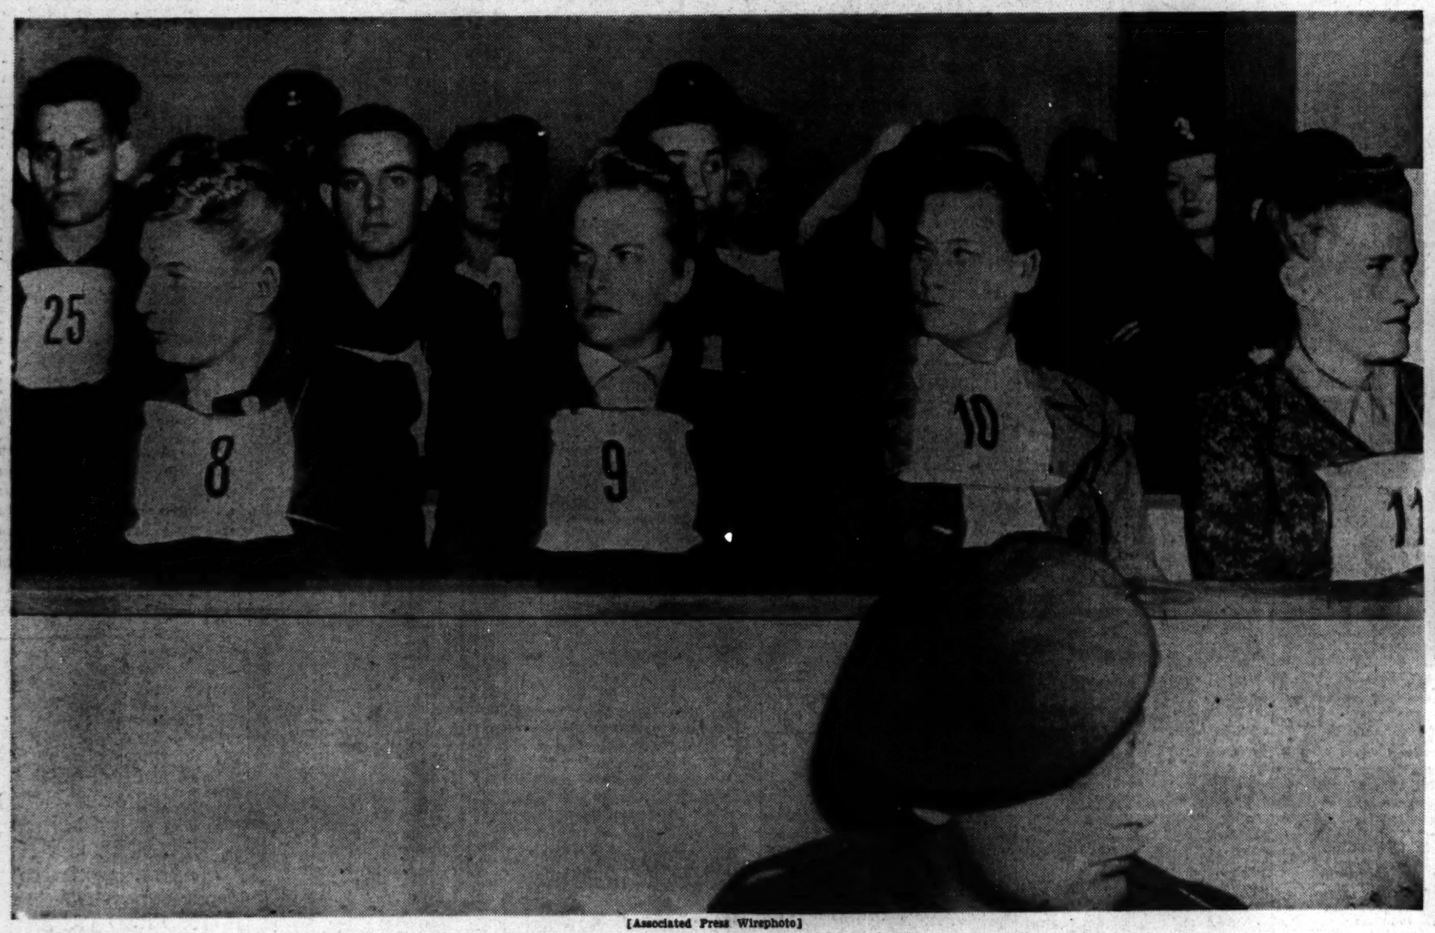
Men and Women Nazis on Trial for Prison Crimes in Germany—Child Hangs Herself in Game



[Associated Press Wirephoto]
